NORTH AMERICA REVISITED

I would like to thank all those wonderful, kind Canadian and American friends who helped me and my daughters, Sharon and Robyn, on our trip to those countries in December, 1968, and January and February, 1969. . . . We were all very impressed with the U.S. Nationals and particularly enjoyed the Novice Ladies. I had forgotten how beautiful skating was as it is 12 years since I had returned home. . . . Skating has certainly improved. Things that were thought to be difficult and done only by a very few top skaters are now done by everyone—and with such ease. Also music means a great deal more. . . . Now that we are home again my children are inspired. Both did well in the National Junior Championships. . . . —Nancy Burley, Victoria, Australia.

WANTED: PEN PAL

I am very interested in skating, especially American skating. . . . perhaps somebody (minimum age 18) would like to correspond with me on this fine sport.—Ruth Fichtner, Kreuzbergprom 9, 5020 Salzburg, Austria.

SPONSOR NEEDED

My little friend Miss Yun in Korea has written me that Mrs. Leichty is really helping everyone. I am in the process now of trying to get a college or community group interested in bringing Miss Yun to America. I will sponsor her but I will need financial help. Mrs. Leichty thinks it would be wise for Miss Yun to train here. She is only 11 and came in second in the ladies championships this summer. Maybe you can offer some suggestions.—Al Sciarino, 106 Main St., Mt. Morris, N.Y. 14510.

Ed. Note: See "Kudos to Korea", page 9, January issue.

FEMALE PROPRIETY

In the past few years a revision of skating apparel has brought style to a point of vulgarity. It seems as if female adults engaging in this splendid sport are generally patterning their wearing apparel after the youngsters. . . . An outfit on a youngster is certainly not suitable for a female adult. . . . The skirt of a female adult skater should hang at least one inch below the crotch and one inch below the derrière. . . . —Name withheld upon request.

The Editor welcomes all letters provided they are signed. Names will be withheld on request. Send mail to SKATING, 178 Tremont St., Boston, Mass. 02111.

in this issue

Big news is still competitions. And it will be until after Worlds In Ljubljana, Yugoslavia, in early March. Regional winners have already tested their abilities against their peers at Sectional level which is covered in depth in this March issue. For the first time we have run the results beside the reports of Easterns, Midwesterns and Pacific Coast Championships, allowing the reader to refer handily to the actual marks as he absorbs the story. We wish space allowed for comment on every skater's performance, for the same amount of exacting practice, dedication and hope characterizes the efforts of both winners and losers. See stories, photos and results on pages 8-25.

With the excitement, stress and strain of competition behind him, a skater begins to think of preparation for the next season. There are tests to be passed, new moves to be learned and perfected, music to be selected for a new free skating program and choreography to be designed to display his prowess and individual style. That's when thoughts turn to summer skating school.

To aid skaters in making a choice for the ideal environment in which he can make the best progress, SKATING includes its annual Summer Skating School Directory in the center fold. Watch for additional schools which will advertise their special services in subsequent issues of SKATING.

American and Canadian summer skating schools offer the best opportunities for growth in the sport. But if you're more of a fun skater or if, perhaps, you've decided to take a sabbatical from study, consider the exotic idea of a European skating holiday. It doesn't have to be expensive, and such a trip can be a groovy family vacation. The five Aitkens have a recipe for a family tour which could be inspirational to others seeking a low-budget, high-enjoyment spin around the Continent (page 30). Mrs. Aitken said that she found the listing of foreign rinks in SKATING (March, 1969) a good starting point for planning. She wrote to the directors of those listed with adequate addresses and followed this up by writing the tourist agency in each country. Daughter Peggy felt that she had sacrificed gains she could have made by enrolling in a working American school, but says she wouldn't swap the experience for anything in the world!

St. Moritz ISC, Berkeley, California

January 8-10, 1970

Story and photos by Bill Udell

An ice skating aficionado attending the 1970 Pacific Coast Championships was treated to plain good skating. Surprises and upsets were rare. Of the 13 events skated, 11 were won by Southwest regional qualifiers who also took 26 of a possible 39 placements. Northwestern skaters captured five placements with one first in Gold Dance, and Central Pacific entrants took eight placements with one first in Junior Ladies. Los Angeles FSC won the McMinn Trophy. As expected the St. Moritz Ice Skating Club, one of the most experienced of all West Coast clubs, ran a smooth, well-scheduled competition with few hitches.

Roger Bass

In the senior singles events Dawn Glab, who won figures at Nationals last year, captured the Senior Ladies title after skating an excellent free program which protected her figure lead. She was strongly challenged by runnerup Jennie Walsh. Christy Ito pulled up from sixth place in figures to secure a third place. As expected, Ken Shelley took the Senior Men's title. Roger Bass again skated well enough to take second place from Robert Bradshaw who stood second in figures.

In Junior Ladies Juli McKinstry was not to be denied first place winning both figures and free while Candy Aylor, who always seems to come up from behind, traded her fourth figure place for Sylvia Mennine's second with an outstanding free style performance. In the men's Richard Ewell III also moved from fourth to second. A seemingly tireless skater, he's a most exciting performer, but his free program could stand better arranging. Jimmy Demogines held his first figure place although his free skating was not quite up to his usual form.

A good figure lead assured Dorian Shields top spot in Novice Ladies, but she had to skate hard to hold off an exciting charge by second-in-figures Donna Arquilla—a real tossup going into the finals. Wendy Burge's strong free program brought her from a fourth figure standing to third overall. But in the men's division Glen Schulke's strong program with big jumps and sure landings moved him past Billy Schneider, second, and Forrest Craig, third, to become a popular winner.

There was no Senior Pairs event, but Junior Pairs saw a closely contested battle between first and second place with Laurie Brandel & Jim Hulick receiving enough points for technical merit to overcome Georgia Truffini & Bill McPike's superiority in composition and style. Lisa Illsley & Daniel Henry were third.

In Novice Pairs Jill Harbin & Terry Kubicka, a small, well-matched pair, showed fine unison with some good shadow moves. Though their skating is strong, Terry is too small to accomplish the big lifts. Even so, they won over Jodie Martin & Robert Berry who were a close second. Both Terry and Robert were one-two in Intermediate Men.

Another tiny one, Barbara Smith, pulled from third to win Intermediate Ladies nudging out Kathy Nitz who finished second.

Brad Hislop and his new partner Debbie Ganson outclassed all Gold Dance contestants in every phase—compulsory, original and free. Runnersup Joan Sherbloom & Tom Easton and third placers Barbara McEvoy & Michael Wayland skated well but were overshadowed by Ganson and Hislop.

Silver Dance was strongly contested. There were almost as many choices for winners as there were entrants. At the end of the initial round first place marks were split five ways. It was so even at this point that in the final round every place changed—third to first, first to second, fourth to third, and second to fourth. Dorothy Barker & Herb Swain won with second place going to Karen Warloe & Richard Kolodziej and third to Carol Paulsen & Jerry Leonard.

In Bronze Dance the first three initial round placements prevailed in the finals with Linda Lichlyter & Bill Topps first.

Recapping our impressions of Pacific Coast highlights: Jennie Walsh looks as good as we have ever seen her. She has lost weight in the right places, and her style, which could always be exciting, has matured into artistic sureness. Dawn Glab doesn't miss anything she puts into her program which is beautifully skated but lacks difficulty.

Ken Shelley seems to be one of the surest and most versatile skaters. He is strong and dependable and is not afraid to use a variety of unusual moves. Juli McKinstry is absolutely solid. You know she's going to come through. However, we feel she could develop more audience rapport. Richard Ewell III never holds back on a jump in a program which builds up strength and speed. Placing fourth in the men's and ladies' novice events, respectively, Joe Thola had the greatest variety of spins we can remember in a man's program, while Laurie Brandel skated a sure-footed free with all the doubles landed solidly.

In spite of the coldest weather in a century, judges and competitors managed to arrive on time for all events in a championship in which skaters from the Wagon Wheel FSC topped all other clubs by piling up 74 points to win the coveted Memorial Trophy presented by the Cleveland SC. It was the first time that Rockton, Illinois, skaters had brought home the Midwestern Team Trophy since its inception in 1945. The 74 points were accumulated by seven skaters five of whom qualified for U.S. Championships.

After winning the Southwestern Senior Ladies event Cindy Watson was determined to capture the Sectional trophy—and win it she did in the closing program at Hobart Arena. It was her first Sectional title. On the other hand there was little doubt about John Baldwin's superiority in the Senior Men's division although his performance was less dynamic than that which won him the regional trophy last month. He failed to land a triple salchow jump cleanly but compensated by executing an abundance of double jump sequences tied into complicated footwork.

Honors for one of the competition's most spectacular programs went to petite Melissa Militano who ran away with the Junior Lady title. Drawing last place in the order of skating, she overshadowed the above average skating of her predecessors by the ease and elevation of her jumps, effortless flow and smiling confidence.

The amazing Glenn family from Wagon Wheel FSC contributed immeasurably to the club's team points. Roger captured the Junior Men's crown, Nancy, the Novice Ladies', and together they took second place in Junior Pairs. A sister, Leslie, gained a fourth place in Intermediate Ladies' which was won by Carter Ellison.

Third place winners in the 1969 U.S. Junior Pair Championships, Barbara Brown & Douglas Berndt skated with elegance and beauty in a sophisticated program of polished maneuvers which won them the Junior Pair title and left little doubt that they would be serious contenders for the national title in Tulsa.

The Novice Men's free skating was particularly advanced. Not only did David Santee jump from a third figure spot to first, but Tom Van Camp, characterized by many as a junior version of John Petkevich, pulled from sixth to third. Santee later teamed with Lorrie Reed to secure second place in Novice Pairs. One of the competitions most spectacular breakthroughs came when Alice Cook, who had placed ninth in Novice figures, skated an exciting free style to place third overall in the division. So overcome was she that tears of joy streamed down her cheeks as she accepted her medal from Frederic LeFevre, competition chairman.

A tight contest for first place in the Gold Dance event had the audience on the edge of their seats as a virtual tie in the initial round left Kathy West & Paul Spruell a gasp away from first place—a situation they speedily remedied by their free dance which settled them comfortably in top position. Runnersup were Mary Campbell & Johnny Johns with third place going to Ginni Luttenton & Eddie Marshall.

In this competition all competitors' music was taped on cassettes assuring the the skaters of absolutely correct timing and eliminating the danger of broken records. At the conclusion of the competition each skater's cassette was presented to him while those not picked up were destroyed to prevent any opportunity to crib another competitor's music.

Most attending the 1970 Midwesterns agreed that the overall calibre of free skating was excitingly high. The progress of those going on to Tulsa will be studiously followed by everyone who had the pleasure of cheering them on in Troy.

Wissahickon SC, Philadelphia,

Story by Marty MacDiarmid

Split-second timing saw completion of a beautiful new lounge overlooking the ice surface at the Wissahickon club just one day before the Eastern Championships opened. The new space not only provided judges with a gracious, warm retreat but also was the scene for the farewell luncheon on Sunday following competition events. All other facets of the competition were handled in the same efficient, hospitable manner.

The 1969 Senior Lady Champion Joanne Darakjy had no difficulty holding her first place in figures after an exacting free program which included three well-executed double axels and a change edge spread eagle culminating in a double loop bringing her a 1970 win. In spite of a late arrival due to traffic conditions, Suna Murray skated a program which was a little rushed but still good enough to secure a second place. Mary Lynn Gelderman's strong and varied program assured her third place. In the men's division winner Pat Lalor's program was highlighted by a triple toe loop and an exceptionally high double axel. Runnerup James Stuart, though faltering on a triple salchow and flying sitspin, was strong in a program composition well set to unusual music. Lacking his usual zing, Gordon McKellen Jr., second in figures, was nevertheless strong enough to place third. Basically, Senior Men's skating was disappointing.

Karolyn Stafford

Kathy Normile & Gregory Taylor had little difficulty in retaining their initial round lead in Senior Pairs with a polished and intricate program. The same was true in the Millier's defense of their Gold Dance title in which Harvey and Ann, in an outstanding free dance, outdistanced their closest rivals, Dianne & Bruce Tyler.

The ten Junior Ladies were an exceptionally beautiful and talented group of skaters. Last to skate, Dorothy Hamill was worth waiting for—like a pink cloud floating over the ice in a program of exquisite continuity accentuated by a roll-over flying camel which climaxed into a back sitspin (a Hamill camel!). Deborah Milne's lilting style and musical sense assured her second place while Audrey King moved from sixth in figures to third with a powerful and mature performance. Juniors Dean Hiltzik, Mahlon Bradley and David DeCaprio were one, two, three in figures and maintained the same positions after the free, all skating consistent, sure programs although not up to the excellence of the Junior Ladies.

Cathy Mishkin

In a close competition Cathy Mishkin & Donald Bonacci outdistanced Gale & Joel Fuhrman in Junior Pairs with the winners displaying a bit more maturity and polish than the runnersup who, nevertheless, were strong individual skaters.

The Novice Ladies event was topped by Karolyn Stafford who looked like a champion but who would do well to develop greater audience projection. Ellen Kinney, leader in figures, incorporated some imaginative spins in a free program which brought her a second place. Ladylike DeLancey Hollos skated a sure free with few mistakes to place third. It was a duel between Scotts in Novice Men's free skating with Cramer edging out Henderson in spite of his fourth figure standing against Henderson's second. The Novice Pairs division included some promising young talent with a lot of verve and versatility. Kristin Gilbert & James Huffer Jr. came out on top in a content-packed program while runners-up Cynthia Conner & Warren Keahey demonstrated a lovely flow. Tiny Sheryl Franks & Stephen Wright produced a well-timed performance with good individual moves for third place.

not up to par. Barbara Solomon had little trouble holding her first figure place in the Ladies and Tom Zink's smooth, steady style brought him from fourth in figures to top of the Men's class.

Silver Dance provided a good example of varied style with Mary Bonacci & Gerald Lane showing excellent strength and flow for a winning position. The Bronze Dance field was really exciting. Andrea Peterson & Guy Sexton reinforced their lead in the initial round with a strong Ten-Fox and Willow Waltz to emerge in top position.

All the Veteran dancers displayed fine dancing style. Elizabeth Stroukoff & F. Ritter Shumway reinforced their initial round lead by a strong European Waltz assuring them the title. A very nice Blues gave Katrine Neil & Charles Lally a secure second place.

rad- cliffe spAce skAte

by Karen Kornetsky

Blast-off time was scheduled for 9:30 on Saturday morning, December 13. Astronauts in command were everyone who brought skates. Destination was the Moon, or as far as a skater could travel until he got tired.

"Radcliffe in Orbit" was the theme for the third Annual Skating Party sponsored by the Radcliffe Club of Boston. The skating party idea originated three years ago with the purpose of providing an opportunity for total family involvement in a recreational get-together. Club members, all of whom are Radcliffe graduates, were encouraged to bring their children.

This year more than 250 moms, dads and kids turned out for a morning on the Moon. Party chairman, Mrs. John Adams, Belmont, Mass., and her committee at mission control saw to it that all systems were "GO" to insure a heavenly atmosphere for all lunar lovers. Decorations ranging from pictures of Stonehenge, an ancient astronomical lookout, to NASA charts of the Apollo flights, transformed Watson Rink into the world's first skating space center. Skaters flew to the music of the spheres and replenished their fuel supplies with refreshments that were out of this world—cosmic coffee and cocoa with doughnuts dipped in moondust.

Space explorers far outnumbered a reluctant few who chose to sit back and watch. In true pioneer spirit, many ventured onto the ice for the first time only to find traveling more difficult than it looked, but certainly more fun than they had anticipated. One little girl had the whole technique figured out as she quipped reassuringly to her somewhat hesitant companion, "If you can stand up without falling down—you don't have to move, you know—then that means that you can skate." Not exactly, but it was a start. In no time the two were off, hand-in-hand, whizzing around the rink on anything but their blades, but having a marvelous time, anyway.

In self-defense against unidentified flying objects, soaring comets or misguided satellites, one youngster came outfitted in his own crash helmet. Another wore his own skates but chose to travel the easiest way—sound asleep in his father's arms (photo left).

For the most part, the more accomplished skaters stayed in the center of the rink practicing mohawks, choctaws and salchows. But with both gravity and traffic rules virtually non-existent, their greatest difficulty seemed to be watching out for the beginners who hadn't as yet mastered control of either the brakes or the landing gear.

Of those who had been on skates before, none had been setting edges longer than Miss Mary Lee, Chestnut Hill, Mass.

A member of the class of 1917, Miss Lee, who dates herself as "more than 70-years-old," has been on blades since she was five and still skates twice each week. When asked to pose for a photo, she remarked candidly, "Oh, I'm afraid I'm not too ornamental." One of the most spirited members in attendance, she glided about the rink with dexterity and self-assurance.

An exhibition from a galaxy of skating stars added a highlight to the morning's festivities. Party organizers didn't have to travel far from the launching pad to round up a star-studded cast. Right from the Harvard-Radcliffe community came Radcliffe Freshman, Fizzie Grogan, 1968 New England Senior Lady Champion; Harvard Junior, John Misha Petkevich 1968 Olympic Team member; and Harvard Sophomore, Scott Allen, 1964 Olympic Bronze medalist and two-time U.S. Champion (1964 and 1966). Appearing with them were similar pairs partners, Emily Wendell, 1970 New England Special Juvenile Girls Champion, and Paula Surette, The SC of Boston. While they warmed up, World Judge Benjamin Wright, Belmont, Mass., announced various skating moves which the exhibitors demonstrated to the delight of an extremely attentive audience.

As one glanced quickly through the bleachers while the exhibition programs were being performed, one could sense visions of future Olympian glory running through the heads of those same youngsters who had been tripping around on the ice only minutes earlier. After all, the programs certainly were impressive, but somehow champions have a way of making it all look so easy. Hardly! And a step back onto the ice after the program dispelled most illusions and over-sized goals.

By 11:30, after two fun-filled hours of flying time, the space voyage was over—but only until next year. The success of the Radcliffe Club's skating parties has sky-rocketed so high that plans are already underway to schedule the fourth Annual Skating Party as part of the 25th Reunion activities.

there's a bit of the promoter in all of us. When we hit on something rather super, what do we do? Talk it up, try to make converts. That's just what Charter Oak FSC members, individually and collectively, have been doing for years. But last November they chose a particular target and launched a united promotion to educate Greater Hartford, Conn., educators in the fine points of the intricate art-sport of figure skating.

Groundwork was carefully planned in the early Fall—lists of school principals and directors of civic recreational organizations compiled, invitations printed, publicity outlined and special attention given to preparation of a content-packed program. Monday, November 17, was the chosen date and 5:30 P.M., the appointed hour.

Five for FUN

by Genevieve Charles, Public Relations
Chairman, Overlake FSC

Anyone will tell you that planning is the first requisite in pulling off a successful camping trip. Maps, check lists and dry runs are standard for the savvy veteran. But if you're programming your first camping trip 5,000 miles away from take-off and you must rendezvous for conveyance and passengers at several strategic points, you've either got to be super organized or almost spastically casual. We suspect that the Aitken five from Bellevue, Washington, managed a lovely balance between cerebral preparation and on-location quick wittedness to achieve a memorable mini-budget, maxi-interest European holiday which zeroed in on daughter Peggy's special interest—figure skating.

It was almost like fitting the pieces of a human jig-saw puzzle together.

Peggy's skating was not the only itinerary consideration (though it was fortunate that all the summer skating facilities were located in Alpine villages which suited her brothers' mountain climbing hobby). Brother Gary, a Junior at Union College in Schenectady, N.Y., was to be settled in Zurich, Switzerland, where he would continue his studies at the Swiss Federal Institute of Technology. Another brother, David, with the U.S. Army stationed in Asmara, Ethiopia, was to join them for his four-week leave. Pop's vacation was scheduled to coincide with David's leave. Then there was the Volkswagen camper bus to be picked up at Weidenbruck, West Germany. Here are the logistics for this seemingly unwieldy timetable.

Mom, Peg and Gary flew to London where Peggy made tracks for the Queens Ice Club where she had a chance to admire the English speciality—ice dancing. She also found a fellow American, Althea Samson from Detroit, who was living in London for a year.

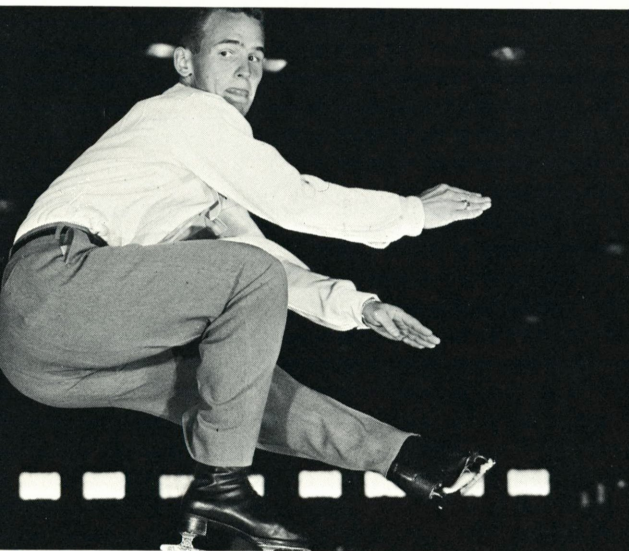

Next stop, Weidenbruck, to pick up their home-away-from-home—the jolly, red VW camper. Actually, the bus had been ordered by friends who were to teach in the fall at the International School in Frankfurt and was conveniently available for rental during the summer months. On to Copenhagen and bear hugs all around as Pop and David completed the passenger list.

Copenhagen, the Paris of the North, is not to be skimmed over lightly. Besides exploring the treasure trove of tourist delights, Peggy discovered the Gladsaxe Recreation Center located in the northwest residential section of the city. It was the second day of the Center's summer program which, besides skating, included instruction and facilities for tennis and swimming. About 60 figure skaters, both boys and girls, were patching—all dressed in identical navy blue stretch pants worn with Eisenhower-type matching jackets. The usual schedule was three hours of patch in the morning, another three hours in the afternoon followed by free style! Most of the skaters were low test level and lived together in a large dormitory about two blocks from the rink. Peggy was impressed with the program and with the rink, one of four completely indoor rinks of the 12 she eventually visited.

From Denmark the real camping trip began. David had brought Army blankets, there were two bedrolls, a tent and ice box by way of equipment. Mrs. Aitken suggests that a bedroll apiece is better planning since evenings are often cool. The only real hangup was finding ice for refrigeration, a rare commodity in Europe. But they discovered that ice was always available at breweries and made it a habit always to stock ice before buying food. Finding a camping site was never a problem. The many areas assigned to campers are equipped with showers, hot water and electrical outlets for shavers and hair dryers. And if you're caught short, farmers don't seem to object to your camping in their fields.

Heading south from Copenhagen, the happy five careened through Germany, touching on France's Normandy beaches, then turned east to Switzerland. Above Interlaken they took a narrow gauge railroad to Wengen, overlooking the spectacular Jungfrau mountain which was clearly visible while skating on a partially open rink. Peggy began to clue in to accepted European summer skating procedures: ice time is hard to get for the tourist since it is sold in advance to the pros who arrange schedules to suit their pupils. However, even lacking facility in German or French, it was almost invariably possible to convey one's wishes for a spot of patch or free skating ice because everyone went to great lengths to find interpreters who, in turn, would see to the necessary arrangements. Peggy was surprised that many foreign skaters wore slacks for patch and ordinary leotards for free skating (something which would be frowned upon in our country but reduces the amount of personal luggage one would need as a skater anywhere in Europe.)

1 man's opinion

by Paul Toomey

the ideal figure Skater

Having spent uncountable hours practicing at the sport of figure skating, this thought suddenly occurred to me: What is the ideal figure skater? Is it some idol with whom I could identify? Is this skater a Dick Button, a powerful, masterful champion? Or is this person a highly stylized individual with a far reaching imagination like that of Tenley Albright? Perhaps my ideal is a dynamic fireball like Carol Heiss or an esthetic beauty comparable to Peggy Fleming. He even could be a composite of Ronnie Robertson with the soulfulness of Cathy Machado and the spirit, vivacity and charm of Barbara Roles.

Eventually I formulated a concept of my ideal figure skater. Yes, the qualities of past heroes and heroines were part of my image, but most importantly this ideal figure skater must be himself.

The ideal skater is not necessarily a champion or even a Gold medalist. He is an artist. He must realize that skating is a thing of great beauty and significance and should be treated as an important art form. To my way of thinking, skating fuses many different art forms. You may ask, "How is this?"

Like a sculptor the skater must learn to mold his body into correct positions in order to present what he wants us to see. But first he must have a clear mental picture of the perfect form for whatever move he is skating, be it a rocker, counter or triple salchow. The skater must have as great a sense of line and form as a dancer who is conditioned to a concept of total body alignment.

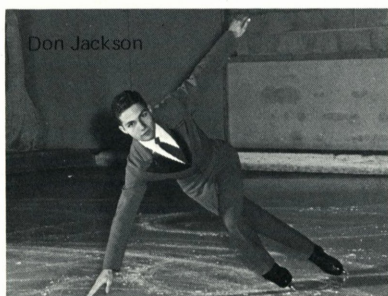

Above all a skater must have the objectivity to evaluate both himself and his work. Then he can develop his own style and personality. Free skating offers the widest scope for expression through the choice of music and choreography. In a sense this is a form of acting except that the skater is portraying himself. Since no two people are alike, he is also establishing his own individuality.

Through his work a skater actually gains self-fulfillment. The ideal skater is not necessarily the most talented, but his "thing" is skating, and he loves every minute of it. Think it over, skaters. Do you evaluate yourself correctly? Are you presenting an overall picture of yourself? Are you the Ideal Skater?

King Street's Demon Tailor

by Chris Wahlroth

Until the post war building boom King Street was the hotbed of fine tailoring in Canada. In earlier days it was Toronto's "Peacock Alley" where everyone walked the four blocks from York to Church streets to see and be seen. Though each tailor jealously guarded his particular secrets, he made no provision for the perpetuation of his business. Unfortunately, since World War II these grand old gentlemen, who as members of the Custom Tailors and Designers Association were close personal friends, have become a vanishing breed. Soaring real estate values have made it impossible to maintain street locations profitably so, as in New York, tailors have moved upstairs. However, the finest Canadian men's clothes are still made in Toronto. And my close associate, Mr. Neil Maukonen, is not only highly respected in his craft but he also has built an international reputation as a designer of skating costumes.

Neil Maukonen was the last apprentice to come off King Street. It took seven years for him to learn his craft, and for the first two years he worked under his father who was foreman and a strict taskmaster for Stanley & Bosworth. His first duties were to light the stoves at 5 a.m., heat the irons and sweep the workshop. Later he worked "on the board" for R. L. Hewitt and eventually became assistant to George Nyberg who was designer and cutter for T. Eaton & Co. During the Depression he designed and cut for Birchard & Co. in Winnipeg, returning to Toronto just before the outbreak of war to operate the workshop of Ed Provan Ltd. It was not until after the war that Neil Maukonen branched out on his own.

One of his clients persuaded Mr. Maukonen to make the costumes for the Toronto Ballet Company and, as a result, he was approached by people from the Toronto CS & CC to make costumes for its very popular skating carnival which was a highlight of the season until the advent of the professional shows. It was not long before the current teachers were wearing Maukonen apparel, and they in turn passed the word along to their pupils.

Mr. Maukonen has a secret of sleeve construction which has never been successfully imitated. His garments follow every move of the skater without stress, strain or distortion. For the younger skaters Mr. Maukonen makes allowance for growth. When a young skater shows championship form, it is safe to assume that sooner or later he will end up in Mr. Maukonen's hands. We share the same showroom, and I have been amazed at the distances people travel to consult with my associate—from Kentucky to California and a wide Canadian clientele as well.

Neil Maukonen has twice served as President of our Toronto Merchants Tailors and Designers Association. He is probably the only tailor of my acquaintance who can design, cut and make any garment worn by man with his own hands. As a matter of interest, his current hobby is gourmet cooking, and when my friend James Beard comes to see me from New York, I am studiously ignored!

Though Neil Maukonen may be best known for the skating costumes he has designed for the likes of Otto Jelinek, Don Jackson and Donald Knight, he is a demon ladies' tailor as well.

ROGER BASS

Inspired while watching the 1960 Olympics on television at age eleven, Roger Bass has been skating ever since. Roger's climb up the competitive ladder has led him to National competition where he was 1965 Novice Men's Champion and 1967 Junior Men's Champion. This season he was Pacific Coast Senior Men's runnerup.

Under the tutelage of John Nicks, Roger, who hails from Long Beach, Calif., practices 5-6 hours a day. In addition to his rigorous schedule at Long Beach City College where Roger studies commercial art, he finds time to enjoy gymnastics and handball.

JIMMY DEMOGINES

When the local roller rink was converted to an ice rink, Jimmy, at age eight, exchanged wheels for blades, a happy decision as Jimmy's impressive competitive record suggests. A long list of firsts in figure skating began in 1967 with the Southwest Pacific Juvenile Boys' title and also included the 1969 U.S. Novice Men's title. This year he is the 1970 Pacific Coast Junior Men's Champion.

A 7th test skater, Jimmy trains under Frank Carroll, is a member of the Los Angeles FSC and is a student at Byrd Junior High. Modern dancing, swimming and gymnastics occupy what little time Jimmy can spare after studies and skating.

MARY ELIZABETH MARLEY

A petite 4'10" and weighing in at only 89 lbs., Mary Elizabeth Marley of Lynn, Mass., is climbing to impressive heights on the competitive scene. This diminutive skater is 1970 New England Junior Ladies Champion and was fourth in Junior Ladies at the 1970 Easterns. Mary showed true sportsman's spirit when she had to reskate her free skating program after the plug had been inadvertently pulled from the record player during her performance at 1970 Easterns.

Besides skating and maintaining good marks as an eighth grader, Mary finds time for ballet and modern dance, both of which help with her skating.

DEAN HILTZIK

A creditable performance in Philadelphia wrapped up the 1970 Eastern Junior Men's title for Dean Hiltzik of Westbury, N.Y. Laurels for Dean also include the 1968 U.S. Novice Men's title. That same year Dean had the unforgettable experience of losing a blade as he was competing in Easterns—but he still took a second in Novice Men's.

Diligent application and self-discipline on the ice extend to long hours of study for Dean, a high school senior whose major ambition is to concentrate on biological sciences when he enters college.

High-pitched enthusiasm has characterized the response of international skaters to the figure skating events of the Kennedy Memorial Winter Games. As of this writing, entrants for the events which will take place on March 12-15 at Lake Placid, N.Y., will represent ten countries—Austria, Canada, Czechoslovakia, France, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, Switzerland, United States and West Germany. Not only has the response from abroad been exceptional, but also the calibre of the entrants is tops, with many national champions having expressed a desire to compete. Tickets to the games are available by contacting Olympic Arena, Lake Placid, N.Y.

Canadian competitor Toller Cranston spent last summer in Holland preparing a film for Dutch skaters. In the film he demonstrates every jump and spin and various combinations of footwork; he finishes up with a portion of his competitive program. The film will be shown to skaters in Holland with a film on figures prepared by Arnold Gerschwiler and skated by Sjoukje Dykstra.

Mary Church and Tom Falls, 1969 Canadian Senior Dance runnersup, announced their retirement from competitive skating early this year. Apparently, Mary still had the competitive bug, for she competed with a new partner, David Sutton, this season.

forward gliding on one foot

Adapted from Basic Ice Skating Skills by Robert Ogilvie; copyrighted by the USFSA and J.P. Lippincott Co.

To help find one's balance:

Skate forward bringing feet close together. Keep torso erect, and establish weight over skate (A).

Allow free foot to leave the ice gently and to take its position behind skating foot (B). Do not stroke, just step.

Errors occur if weight is not centered or if shoulders are tipped (C).

Skating ankle drops in if free hip swings out or if free leg is not in correct position (D).

waltz position after rocker turn by Thomas Lescinski, Professional Detroit SC

As dance begins the lady gradually skates ahead on RFI step 4. Assisted by the man's lead, she establishes a strong LFO rocker.

As the lady checks her turn with right hip, the man establishes a good waltz position/1970 march tion. He must not let his RFO go too deep as in (A) thus twisting torso. By keeping right elbow up and RFO on partner's track, the man maintains a good waltz position (B).

Try this difficult rocker sequence on two feet as a couple, observing body position and paying particular attention to body unison.

IN REVIEW

Canadian Skater, Vol. 1 No. 1, December, 1969, Gratis. Tabloid newspaper, published by the Canadian Figure Skating Association.

Publication of the first edition of Canadian Skater marks a milestone in the meteoric growth of figure skating in Canada. Inter-club and inter-sectional communication had become an increasing problem when the number of clubs escalated to 345 this past year, and the seven sectional divisions of the past expanded to include the 12 provinces. The first edition is offered free in a pilot program to explore reader acceptance. It was mailed in bulk to all CFSA clubs which distributed it to members. Decision to print a second edition rests with the readers' written response. There is no indication as to whether future editions will be distributed free or on a paid subscription basis.

The first 8-page run presents a clean, black and white format with the logo banner running in a brilliant red strip across the top of page 1. The tabloid newspaper format seems ideally suited to the informal, chatty writing styles. Content appears to have been thoughtfully selected to appeal to skaters at all levels of development. In fact, there's a strong leaning toward educating what must be the largest percentage of CFSA members in "affairs of skate". Helpful lists of CFSA and Provincial officials, editors of sectional publications and a guide for purchasing CFSA materials make this first edition a handy, year-round reference.

Perhaps Canadian Skater's greatest value lies in the center spread which carries rather detailed reports of specific skating programs in each of the 12 Provinces. It would seem that newly developed sections could gain know-how through knowledge of growth patterns in the more established sections. On-going programs like the National Training Program, the Bursury Fund and the Professional Skating Association of Canada were reviewed from the viewpoint of latest developments.

Sportswriters Jeff Cross and Jim Proudfoot evaluated 1970 figure skating competition prospects for Canada in the Vancouver and Toronto areas, respectively, while sportscaster George Gross' column was devoted to reminiscences of his tangles with officialdom in the course of covering the 1963 Worlds in Cortina, Italy. The breezy styles of newspaper reporters made enjoyable reading.

Rather surprising was an eye-catching center column by Dick Button sandwiched between those of Jeff Cross and Jim Proudfoot. A sizeable photo of Dick with a man-to-man look appears above the caption, "Don't Get Mad at Me, Folks". Dick's article is a straightforward account of the pressures, demands and responsibilities of the TV commentator at figure skating events. Dick summarizes by stating that "The commentator can only hope that he is right as much of the time as possible and that, when emotions have subsided, the long-term record will justify his opinions". Dick has long been on the firing line in Canadian figure skating circles for what was thought to be skimpy coverage of Canadian skaters. The fact that this first edition of Canadian Skater met this issue face to face by carrying Dick's story speaks well for a fair-minded, liberal editorial policy.

Just how editorial policy is formulated is something of an enigma. The statement of ownership states that Canadian Skater is published by the CFSA, lists the names of CFSA President Douglas Pekinpaugh and Executive Manager Hugh Glynn (no editorial staff) with a comment that "opinions expressed are those of contributors and do not necessarily reflect the policies of the CFSA". Doubtless the mystery of how this commendable publication was put together will be solved in subsequent issues. We hope there will be many more to come. ○

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

RSVP's on the invitations mailed provided an accurate guest list so that Charter Oak Board members could be assigned to each visitor as a guide. Junior club members presented invitations to their particular teachers and one can imagine that their "sales pitch" was irresistible. Public Relations Chairman Mrs. Elton Turek coordinated newspaper publicity with the mailing of invitations and the Hartford Times, Hartford Courant and the West Hartford News carried significant explanations of the purpose and content of the program.

Mrs. James Huffer, Test Chairman and wife of the Club's president, greeted guests at the door, handing each of them a fact sheet which explained in simple, concise terms the selection and honing of blades for figure, free skating and dance and outlined the component parts of each of these three classifications. The requirements for competition were listed with an explanation of the testing system and the various kinds of jumps and spins. With a cup of coffee and this guide in hand each guest, accompanied by a Board member, settled down for the exhibitions presented by 150 of the Junior Group ranging in age from 6 to 16. Mrs. James McCormick, Chairman of the Junior Group, was responsible for the program which commenced with group instruction in fundamentals and advanced to patch and demonstrations of putting down figures. Advanced juniors and seniors, many of them regional competitors, completed the evening's program by executing the more complicated figures, skating their free skating and pair programs and illustrating several ice dances.

Recapping the effectiveness of the Guest Night for Educators afterward, Charter Oak FSC members felt that their hard work had been rewarded by enthusiastic receptiveness which created a greater understanding of the dedication and discipline which underline a figure skater's addiction to his sport. William T. Davies, Director of Parks and Recreation, summed up his reaction in a letter to Mrs. Turek: "It was good of you to explain the figure skating routines to us at the Charter Oak evening session. . . . We are pleased that the town's Veterans Memorial Ice Rink is being used by figure skating groups. Figure skating—a lifetime sport depicting beauty in action—sets a standard of excellence that may be achieved by the participant and serves as a motivating force to the novice skater."

FIVE FOR FUN

The beautiful indoor rink in Innsbruck, Austria, built for the 1964 Olympics, was the next stop, then on to Garmisch-Partenkirchen where the indoor rink is partially open to the view of the Zugspitze, Germany's highest peak. In Frankfurt Pop and David had to wave goodbye as each returned to his job.

Mom, Peggy and Gary pulled up anchor for Oberstdorf where they quietly entrenched for their longest stay anywhere. There were mountains to climb, skating in almost tropical noontime heat and a memorable side trip to Füssen where the rink was built into the side of a mountain. Best of all, they ran into Cornelia Franek from Rhode Island who acted as interpreter during their two week stay.

Rested and refreshed, the adventurers embarked on a strictly tourist jaunt through southern Austria, along the Yugoslavian coast, across to Italy then north to more skating at St. Moritz. It was just an afternoon's hop over to Davos where the International Exhibitions were being held and Peggy exchanged news with fellow American skaters Janet Lynn and Julie Holmes. Besides she met such national champions as Haig Oundjian (Britain), Ondrej Nezela (Czechoslovakia), Beatrix Schuba
(Austria), Rita Trapanese (Italy). Highpoint of Peggy's afternoon was an introduction to Mr. George Hassler, Honorary Secretary of the International Skating Union, who arranged for her to skate as his guest after the exhibitions.

Pointing west the tireless threesome "did" the Matterhorn, discovered a charming small rink in Montana-Vermala then pulled to a stop in Villars, a favorite spot for every skating American to visit abroad. Skating there at dusk and looking up to a blanket of stars is one of Peggy's indelible memories.

Across the border in Chamonix, France, the top French skaters were in training. Peggy was greeted by Champion Patrick Pera and was nonplussed to see 1964 Olympic Champion Alain Calmat still performing impressive triple loops. And to top off the trip, they had a chance to watch international skaters in training for the International Grand Prix to be held in St. Gervais, France, a real inspiration to a young lady who had won her first Regional competition the previous winter* and whose competition ambitions had been enormously strengthened by a summer's exposure to some of the world's top skaters.

Then the holiday was over. Total mileage had been 9,500. But how could you estimate the fun? The Aitkens can't. But the little red bus is still grinning.

*Peggy Aitken is 1969 and 1970 Northwest
Pacific Senior Lady Champion.

CAMP CARROLL

HERSHEY, PENNSYLVANIA

JUNE 8—AUGUST 15

Camp Carroll is the first skating camp of its kind in the United States. In addition to skating, the camp offers such additional activities as swimming, archery, badminton, canoeing, tennis and golf.

A Typical Campfire Song Composed by one of the Skaters

Down by the Swatara	Next, on goes the music,	They work and they practice
That beautiful creek,	Free skating and dance.	Without any kick.
There's a camp for the skaters	A'leaping and jumping,	They take all their orders
That really is neat!	Around they all prance.	From "the man with the stick."
Up early each morning	Dutch Waltz and Canasta	Then dozens of children
A'patching they go,	'And then comes the Swing.	All pile in the car.
Around in a circle	If you do the Paso,	The ride to Camp Carroll
They skate to and fro.	You're really a king!	Is not very far.

Come down to the table.
The food is all out.
"There's pot roast for dinner!"
You'll hear someone shout.

An hour for rest time,
They sleep . . . if they can,
Or sit in the sunshine
To get a good tan.

There's swimming and boating
And archery too.
It seems all the campers
Find something to do.

More eating and skating,
It's bedtime, and then
They sleep — for tomorrow,
They'll start in again.

Round the world you may travel,
But you'll never find A place like Camp Carroll —
It's the only one of its kind!
