COVER

This beautiful pose by Stacey Smith and John Summers captured at the Olympic Training camp at Squaw Valley is the work of Dr. Roger Minkow, Petaluma, Calif., who was the doctor at the camp. In Dr. Minkow's words, "After seeing John and Stacey's routine to Romeo and Juliet I decided to do a (pencil) drawing that would show as much as possible their beautiful style and incredible grace."

LOESER on MUSIC

Frank Loeser

THE POSSIBILITY of skating to music was first realized during the late 1800's by the American, Jackson Haines, who transferred his skill as a ballroom dancer to the ice. However, it took a more receptive Vienna to accept his new "radical" style of skating. In Vienna, Haines was a sensation. For his vision, he came to be known as "the father of modern figure skating".

Social dance was the first dance influence on figure skating and then, in 1909, when Serge Diaghileff brought the Russian Ballet to Paris, skating along with all of the arts was swept into a stylistic and movement revolution. Two of the stars of that first ballet, Anna Pavlova and Vaslav Nijinsky, became familiar names to everyone for the next three decades and by the 1920's and '30's skaters were bringing these dancers' influences to the ice.

Sonja Henie was the first to present a skating program after Anna Pavlova's famous "Dying Swan". Both performed their solo variations to Saint-Saen's work for cello and orchestra from "Carnival of the Animals".

One of Henie's chief rivals, Vivi-Anne Hulten, possessed a less sugared but more aesthetic sense, regarding figure skating as simply ballet on ice. She travelled with her own ballet master and presented interpretations from great Romantic ballets such as "Les Sylphides" and "Swan Lake". One of Hulten's Canadian exhibitions inspired Mary Rose Thacker (North American Champion in 1939 and 1941) to present the first musically choreographed program in a Canadian National Championship.

These women were performing in a time when skating programs were created without music. A skater would arrive at an event and request a rink-side orchestra to play a waltz or ten-step to which they would display their variations. The advent of inexpensive records and playing equipment in the 1930's eliminated the need for live musicians at figure skating events. Ice dancing kept the rink-side musicians in existence longer than solo performers but eventually this expensive form of musical accompaniment disappeared. With it, one of the more social aspects of skating also vanished.

Post-World War II developments in figure skating were completely dominated by Dick Button and other North American talents, and the activity became an athletic endeavor. Music began to play more of a background role and, save for the efforts of a few exceptional, artistic individuals, this trend has persisted to the present day.

During the 1950's and '60's the notable artistic skaters included Jacqueline du Bief, Tenly Albright, Hayes Alan Jenkins and Andrea MacLaughlin. These skaters revealed their artistry in competitive programs but exhibitions gave them opportunities to display their other artistic ventures.

Although not known as a great competitive skater, Andrea MacLaughlin was famous in North America as an interpretive skater. One of her more famous exhibitions was to Rossini's "Semiramide".

During the 1960's, music became so strongly identified with certain skaters that no other performers or competitors would approach the work for fear of comparison. The individual who found this right piece of music often experienced lapses in popularity when he or she attempted to interpret another work. Donald Jackson, with his quick-reflexed style, was immediately associated with Bizet's "Carmen" and John Petkevich, with his huge suspend-and-release movement, never succeeded in totally escaping the public's desire to see him skate repeatedly to "Espana".

The Soviet pair, Ludmilla and Oleg Protopopov, came onto the skating scene during the 1960's and they brought to the medium exceptional artistry and musical sensitivity. They did not perform a pair routine so much as they created exquisite pas de deux. "Liebestraum" by Liszt and the "Moonlight Sonata" by Beethoven were among their famous interpretations and in 1974, several years after they had retired and when their technique was waning, they appeared at a World Professional Championship with a beautiful version of "The Flying Swan".

During the last two decades there have been technically talented women skaters but few striking individuals in terms of artistry. Janet Lynn was the exception.

Of the recent past, the men have been the adventurers. Toller Cranston has brought to the medium a flamboyancy typified by the program he exhibited to "The Sabre Dance" from Khachaturian's "Gayne Ballet" and (although it was not well received competitively) his adventurous study to excerpts from Prokofiev's "Cinderella".

John Curry's recognition came with a clearly ballet-derived program to selections from "Don Quixote" by Minkus. Since his Olympic and World wins in 1976, Curry has gone on to develop a Theatre of Skating where he performs many works created by famous dance choreographers including Twyla Tharp, Kenneth MacMillan and John Butler.

In contemporary amateur skating, the musical development of most interest is being done by the ice dancers. To date, ice dancing has meant "ballroom dancing on ice" but because of the work by Soviet dancers and two gifted choreographers, Elana Chaikovskja and T.A. Tarasova, ice dancing has taken on a more theatrical appearance. Great skating moments as well as marvellous musical experiences have been given by the Soviet dancers, Ludmilla Pakhomova and Alexander Gorshkov and Irina Moiseeva and Andrei Minenkov.

In the past, several individuals have had music composed specifically for skating (most notable Maxi Herver and Ernst Baier, Patrick Pera and Irina Rodnina and Alexandr Zaitsev) but this is an exciting area yet to be explored.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

Your article on Skating Stamps (July 1979 issue) is interesting, but I wish you had given the artist, Jim Cunningham, credit.

He is one of this country's most well known illustrators.

Doing so many beautiful stamps certainly deserves credit.

*Constance Spitzmeyer
West Reading, Connecticut*

Editor's note: I couldn't agree more — Jim's designs are indeed beautiful. Your letter more than adequately covers our omission. Thanks.

Dear Editor,

Upon receiving my June issue of SKATING, I was pleased to see the recognition you gave my partner Craig and I under the "Turned Professional" column.

I would like to inform you that we have declined Ice Capade's offer and have signed with Holiday on Ice in Europe, to begin our tour in July. I hope you will list this correction in your next issue.

*Dee Oseroff

Dear Editor,

Once again, I was very pleased with the way you elected to illustrate my piece on "Competition Campers" (June 1979). I felt the black and white reverse was very strong, and made a good contrast with the color in the rest of the book. I was, as you might imagine, very taken with the line drawing of my van.

I have enjoyed being published in SKATING, and hope to be able to have more pieces accepted in the future.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

I love SKATING magazine and have been enjoying it for two and a half years. The July, 1979 issue arrived today — terrific as always. The background illustration for "Sleek Slick Ice" is very striking but the blue should have been solid blue. I found it difficult, almost impossible to read the black print on the blue/white dotted background. Other than that, keep up the good work.

Maureen E. Harney

Editor's note: The color/screen combination did indeed "get away from us". Experiments in reproduction processes are often a game of chance. In our effort to make pleasing presentations we sometimes get caught.

RODNINA COMEBACK?

Irina Rodnina, the veteran Soviet pair skater, is to make a comeback. Her run of ten world titles was halted last season by the birth of her son. She will compete in the next major international meeting, the Flaming Leaves (Norton) pre-Olympic competitions at Lake Placid, September 20-23.

Resolved to defend the Olympic title in February with her husband and second partner, Aleksandr Zaitsev, she hopes to shatter several records this winter. She is shown here with Aleksandr and baby Sasha.

Whether her stamina, at 30, can withstand pressure from the much younger American world title defenders, Tai Babi-lonia and Randy Gardner, promises to keep interest in pair skating on a par with the singles.

WHEN IS A VILLAGE NOT A VILLAGE?

When it's a prison of course! Hard as it may seem "It's to be called a village, and the press guide describes it as a campus. But, in fact, the athletes' quarters for the 1980 Winter Olympics in Lake Placid will be a prison. Construction is 70 percent complete, and already there are steel bars on the windows and doors of 1½-inch thick heavy metal frames. The electrical outlets will be 'tamper-proof.' "

BARBARA ANN SCOTT IN THE HALL OF FAME

her induction into the USFSA Hall of Fame. Smilingly presenting the plaque is Joseph L. Serafine, First Vice President and midwestern chairman, USFSA.

Barbara thrilled millions in the 1940's with her interpretive performance that gained her a Gold in the first post-war winter Olympics. Barbara Ann was the first ever to win a major championship in figure skating from North America. Barbara Ann now has a place of honor in the USFSA Hall of Fame - Museum in Colorado Springs.

THE OLD AND THE NEW AT LAKE PLACID

Ice Dancing

State of the Art in America

Ice Dancing is a paradox. It is perhaps the oldest form of organized "gliding" on ice yet it is the newest of the international events, making its debut in the Olympic Winter Games in 1976.

Ice Dancing first became part of the ISU World Championships in 1952 when England and the United States dominated not only the execution but also the creation of the competitive ice dances.

The dance events of 30 years ago were primitive, controlled affairs. If viewed today they would seem stuttered and terribly slow-paced. Today's ice dancing is a fast, graceful and emotional sport/art. Creativity and choreography are the keys to ice dancing with emphasis on proper timing and music to carry the dancers' message.

Today's masters of ice dancing clearly are the Soviets. Their recent superiority is attributed to speed and flow, their unique steps performed with exacting precision. And much of their success is attributed to their skaters maturity. It is not unusual for Soviet skaters to skate well into their 20's and early 30's, whereas skaters past the age of 25 in the United States are rare.

That holds the key to the necessary pattern of a skater's life in the United States. The "eastern Bloc" nations support their athletes, allowing them to train and mature, to continue to excel in their field. The dancers from the United States receive little financial support (that support only coming from the good work of the United States Figure Skating Association's Memorial Fund). Their drive comes from their absolute desire to compete.

The United States is not, however, without its share of able dancers. Our nation's three top couples are ranked among the top ten in the world and continually show improvement. Dancers from the United States proved themselves in the 1976 Winter Olympic Games by earning the silver medal.

United States Dance Champions Stacey Smith and John Summers, from the Wilmington SC (Delaware), have a strong repertoire of dances and a determination for excellence that comes through with each passing performance. Their compulsory dances are smooth and fast, secure and with deep edges that make them strong contenders with the best dancers in the world.

WORLD ARENA

Stacey and John are much improved since first winning the United States Dance Championship in 1977 and have gained much valuable international experience since then. That experience abroad cannot be underestimated. Skating in Europe, and representing the United States, matures a skater faster than a whole season of training. To perform in front of judges from other nations—judges often with different dancing philosophies—has given Stacey and John confidence and added a dimension to their skating.

Right behind the national dance champions are Carol Fox and Richard Dalley, from the Wyandotte FSC. Carol and Richard, or “Beanie” as he is probably better known, also have much international experience under their blades. Their style and flair for the dramatic is evident in their free dancing that make them favorites of the crowd in every competition. A handsome couple, defeating Stacey and John in Sports Festival I in 1978, Carol and Beanie are crisp and clean in their compulsory dances and always have put together invigorating and demanding free dances. They make some of the most difficult footwork and steps appear simple.

Following Fox and Dalley are Judy Blumberg, from the Los Angeles FSC, and Michael Seibert, from the ISC of Indianapolis. Relative youngsters to the hierarchy of world ice dancing, Michael and Judy show promise for the future. Training at the Broadmoor World Arena in Colorado Springs, Colorado, Mike and Judy have blended their skills in just over one year together, into a team filled with potential.

Mike and Judy were winners of the ice dancing event at Sports Festival II last July and there showed just how much they have improved since the national championships last February. They are an extremely hard-working couple and already show the maturity of dancers years their senior. Their compulsory dances are consistently crisp and they continually experiment with their free dance—learning to dance together as a couple usually takes more than the one year they have spent dancing together.

Behind these three couples is a crop of young skaters who will create keen competition for the Soviet couples in the future. But for 1980 the United States hopes are with our “veterans” who know the pressure and will do their best for themselves and for their country.

Sports Festival II:

A Record Turnout for this Fledgling Event

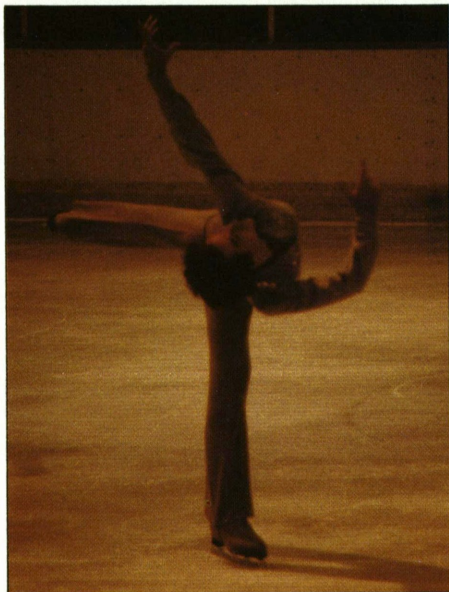

Gregory R. Smith

The 1979 USOC Sports Festival in Colorado Springs, Colorado, July 26-30, 1979, was bigger and better than ever. More than 2,000 athletes gathered in Colorado Springs and competed in 31 Olympic sports over the five-day festival.

The figure skating events were hosted by the Broadmoor World Arena, site of last year's inaugural USOC Sports Festival figure skating event. One of the most popular events, the figure skating featured 37 of America's best skaters including 1979 World Champions Tai Babilonia and Randy Gardner and former World Champion Charles Tickner.

Charlie was given a stiff run for his money in the men's event by Scott Cramer, hometown favorite of the Broadmoor SC. Scott, second at the U.S. Championships last February in Cincinnati, was just behind Charlie in the compulsory figures and beat him in the short program. Scott's short opened with a nice double loop/triple toe loop combination and he flowed through his two minutes with apparent ease. He said after learning he was ahead of Charlie that he can only win by consistent skating. He had never before been ahead of Tickner and was "overjoyed" at his number one standing—putting real pressure on Charlie.

Charlie's short program was below his standard. He fell on his double toe loop combination but his footwork was, as usual, noteworthy. He received marks from 5.0 to 5.2 for technical merit but scored a 5.8 for composition and style. Charlie finished third in the short program but was in second place going into the free skating.

Charles Tickner

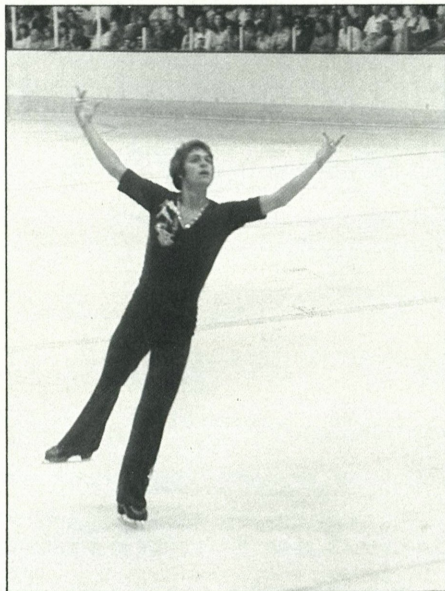

Robert Wagenhoffer, Arctic Blades FSC, put together a fine short program and was second in the short. With a high flying camel, a great spin combination and a double loop/triple toe loop combination, he skated ahead of the leaders. He knew he had performed well at the end of his two minutes and looked like the happiest skater of the event.

The free skating was the competition's most exciting event. Charlie, in second place, was in the "hot seat." But, no stranger to pressure and skating directly after Scott, Charlie showed no outward signs of turmoil. Cramer opened his long program in grand fashion. He jumped with ease and sureness but could not maintain the same level of excitement generated in his first minute throughout the program. He received marks of 5.6 and 5.8, leaving plenty of room for Charlie — provided he did not buckle under the pressure.

Tickner's program was a polished and stylized set of skating. He oozes grace and was the only skater to be applauded by John Curry (1976 Olympic Champion at the event providing the "color" commentary for NBC Sports). Charlie received a 30-second standing ovation. He had the crowd on the edge of its seats and beat Scott Cramer to take the free skating and the title.

Scott was in second place followed by David Santee, Chicago FSC, who put on his best performance in several years — and he knew it. He was close to tears as he finished his program showing the judges and audience that he still had the talent that had him in sixth place in the 1976 Olympic Winter Games. David was second in the free skating, defeating Cramer, and he finished with the bronze medal.

The ladies event featured all the top American ladies except World Champion Linda Fratianne and 1979 U.S. Ladies Bronze Medalist Carrie Rugh. The early stages of the competition were dominated by Priscilla Hill, Winchester FSC, as she swept the compulsory figures. Priscilla was making her first appearance since successfully defending her Eastern Ladies title last January. She missed nationals because of injuries. Lisa-Marie Allen, Los Angeles FSC, was second in the figures and Jill Sawyer, Lakewood WC, was third.

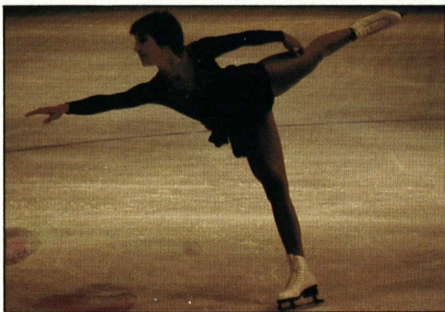

Lisa-Marie Allen

The short program was highlighted by Lisa-Marie's great doubleflip and double Lutz/double loop combination. They seemed effortless—so smooth and clean. She juggled her required elements well in her own inimitable style. In second place in the short was Simone Grigorescu, SC of New York. Her combination was a triple toe loop/double loop and she put together a fine program. Simone flowed across the ice and commanded attention at every move, perhaps the most stunning of the 11 short programs.

Jill Sawyer was third with a short program. Priscilla Hill, figures leader, turned in a disappointing program that dropped her to third place going into the free skating.

The free skating, as the short program, was highlighted by Lisa-Marie Allen and her mistake-free and ever-graceful program. Lisa-Marie received marks of 5.7 and 5.8, securing for her the title. Behind her in the free skating was Sandy Lenz, Rockford FSC. Sandy's program, to "Nobody Does It Better," was an entertaining program over all too soon. Sandy earned the silver medal while the bronze went to Jill Sawyer and in fourth place was Simone Grigorescu.

The 1979 World Junior Ladies Champion, Elaine Zayak, SC of New York, who just recently passed her Eighth (Gold) Test, finished in fifth place and was impressive throughout the competition, even her new hairstyle shows a maturity over last season. (See People, Places, and Faces, in this issue.)

The Pairs event of the Sports Festival was significant in many ways. First it featured the 1979 World Pair Champions, Tai Babilonia, Los Angeles FSC, and Randy Gardner, Santa Monica FSC, and second, there were some unexpected results.

Tai and Randy easily won both the short and long programs with their championship style and strong and secure programs. They highlighted their long program with their throw triple Salchow and executed a spectacular catch waist camel spin.

Tai Babilonia and Randy Gardner

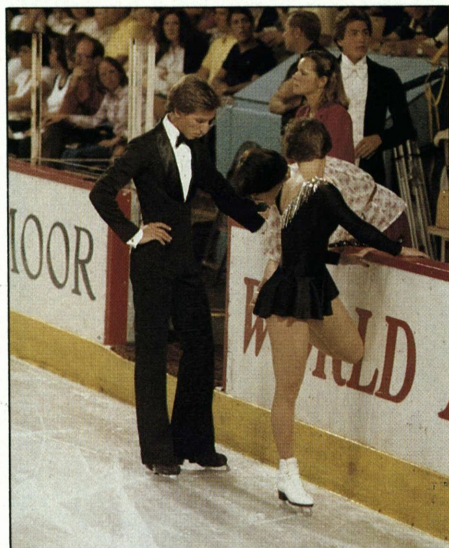

However, in second place for both the long and short programs were Caitlin and Peter Carruthers, Comet FSC. Caty and Peter, now being coached by Ron Ludington in Wilmington, Delaware, showed great improvement over their performance at nationals last February. They skated with better unison and precision and sharpness with added strength and confidence. In third place were Vicki Heasley and Robert Wagenhoffer, Arctic Blades FSC, 1979 silver medalists at nationals.

The Carruthers' free skating was typical of their new style. At the end of the four minutes Peter was still lifting Caty and at an altitude of 6,000 feet, that is quite an achievement. Vicki and Robert had a bit of trouble in their opening but settled down quickly, with a fine side-by-side jump combination.

The dance event only consisted of three couples — a disappointment to spectators and the press. However, the three couples provided enough competition to anticipate a greater challenge in next January's U.S. Dance Championships. The two top rated couples did not compete but the number three and four teams did, as did the 1978 U.S. Silver (now Junior) Dance Champions.

Judy Blumberg, Los Angeles FSC, and Michael Seibert, ISC of Indianapolis, 1979 national bronze medalists, won each round of the competition, dancing away with the title. But, they were given a struggle by Kim Krohn and Barry Hagan, Arctic Blades FSC, followed by Judy Ferris and Scott Gregory, the handsome young couple from the Buffalo SC.

In the OSP Kim and Barry danced a "steppy" number but seemingly a bit slower and not as varied as Judy and Michael's routine. Scott and Judy were never far behind since all the marks ranged within 0.8 of a point.

Judy and Scott's free dance was sure and clean and they appeared to really enjoy their dance, receiving marks of 5.1 and 5.2. While Kim and Barry presented a smooth and difficult free dance they could not match the flow and emotion of Blumberg and Seibert.

An aerial photograph of the Atlanta skyline, featuring several tall skyscrapers and a large body of water in the foreground. The word "Atlanta" is written in a large, bold, black serif font, slanted diagonally across the upper half of the image.

Atlanta

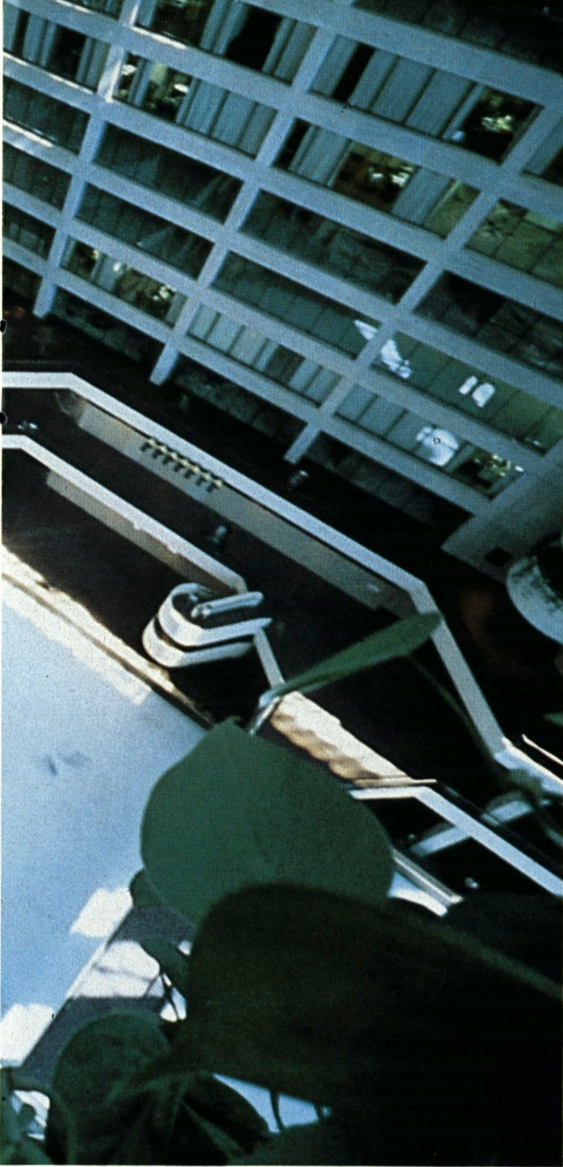

The Place to be in 1980

Atlanta is the place to be in January, 1980! Figure skating's Olympic Year will officially begin Tuesday, January 15, at Atlanta's OMNI coliseum. The quadrennial excitement will build throughout the week as members of the United States Olympic Figure Skating Team are announced and, after a grand appearance at Sunday's exhibitions, cheered on their way to the Winter Olympic Games in Lake Placid.

Atlanta's southern hospitality will be warm, whatever weather January may bring. While temperatures in the chilling teens or euphoric seventies are possible, highs in the low fifties are typical of the season.

When Scarlett O'Hara pursued Rhett Butler and General Sherman burned the town, Atlanta was home to about 30,000 men, women, children and mules. Today you can scarcely find a mule, but upwards of 1,845,000 people reside in the rolling wooded hills of the ever-spreading metropolitan area. Although magnolia trees flourish — “honeychile” belles still drawl, and breakfast means grits — downtown Atlanta is a cosmopolitan metropolis whose architecture excites with its world-of-tomorrow look.

The 15,200-seat Omni, where all events of the 1980 Nationals will be skated, boasts an exterior structure of raw steel pyramids, deliberately allowed to rust to a handsome red-brown color. Inside, the Omni is pillar-free; every seat has an unobstructed view.

In the adjacent Omni International megastructure, two 14-story office buildings and the 15-story Omni International Hotel share a glass ceiling 174 feet above the ice rink which occupies the court beneath. Balconies hung with live plants enhance the charm of the complex. The Omni International Rink will be one of three practice surfaces available for competitors.

While the Omni International Hotel can accommodate only competitors and officials, all Nationals spectators will enjoy shopping and window-shopping at the many elegant stores, including Hermes of Paris, Givenchy, Christie Brothers furs, and Rizzoli Bookstore. Unusual and often inexpensive souvenirs may be found in the winding International Bazaar section filled with boutiques from all over the world.

Among more than a dozen restaurants located in the Omni complex, Nationals visitors are certain to find several to suit their tastes, budgets and time schedules. Outstanding are The French Restaurant, resembling a Riviera sidewalk cafe, its tables topped with pastel parasols; Mimi's, overlooking the ice rink, with most unusual furnishings cut from tree trunks; Bugatti, for superb northern Italian dishes and an extraordinary Sunday brunch; Reggie's, a genuine English pub; the Chinese Great Wall; and Max, with sophisticated western atmosphere. Fast food establishments include the Omelet Shoppe, open 24 hours a day, and McDonald's. For a nightcap try Burt's Place (owner Burt Reynolds), an unusual nightspot whose decor consists of six movie sets.

Hotels designated for Nationals spectators are the Atlanta American, the Peachtree Plaza and the Hyatt Regency.* Bus service will be available to and from the Omni for all events. Nearest of the three to the competition site, the American is a fine quality high-rise motel.

The Regency and the Peachtree Plaza are splendidly unique hotels, fun to visit even if you are staying elsewhere. The Regency, first design of world-famed architect John Portman, features his trademark, an atrium which reaches from the lobby to the roof 22 stories above. The Peachtree Plaza is another Portman triumph — the tallest hotel in the world — a cylindrical glass tower stretching over seven hundred feet above its multi-story lobby, site of a half-acre lake.

Unless you suffer from vertigo, the most exhilarating experiences in town (free too!) are riding the elevators in the Regency and Peachtree Plaza Hotels. At the Regency, you enter a glass capsule enclosed with wrought iron, somewhat like a parrot cage, to rise about 300 feet up through the flower-filled lobby; suddenly you fly through the roof into a revolving blue bubble dome, where you can relax with a drink or a meal and an ever-changing view of the city. The mind-boggling Peachtree Plaza elevator ascends through a glass tube attached to the exterior glass skin of the building. Up, up, up you go, ears popping, a furlong into the sky. Debarking at the revolving Sun Dial Restaurant, you can enjoy lunch or dinner while surveying a 360° panorama of North Georgia from Stone Mountain to Kennesaw Mountain. Closer by, the plane-a-minute airport, sprawling railway tracks, and intersecting Interstate Highways 20, 75 and 85 graphically demonstrate that Atlanta is the hub of the South. (Incidentally, both the Regency and the Peachtree Plaza have interior elevators, in case glass-enclosed heights are not for you.)

Downtown Atlanta, especially fabled Peachtree Street, has stores and shops of unending variety. The main branch of Rich's (the South's largest department store) is just across Spring St. from the Omni complex, while Davison's shares a block with the Peachtree Plaza Hotel. A twenty-minute ride north will take you to Phipps Plaza and Lenox Square Shopping Centers, across Peachtree Rd. from each other. At Phipps Plaza you may sample the elegance of Lord & Taylor and Saks Fifth Avenue; Lenox Square includes Neiman-Marcus, French and Italian designer boutiques, and many more down-to-earth establishments.

Atlanta is famed for its beautiful residential neighborhoods; although at their most glorious in the spring when dogwoods and azaleas are in bloom, these areas are always verdant with evergreens, and the early-blossoming forsythias and camellias frequently appear in January.

The city has marked scenic routes for drivers. You may choose to visit, on your own or by tour bus, the gorgeous Northwest Atlanta "two gardener" mansion district; stately Druid Hills, where the first Coca-Cola millionaires built their showplaces circa World War I; downtown sights, including Martin Luther King Jr.'s grave; or more outlying areas such as Stone Mountain.

Stone Mountain Park, 16 miles northeast of the city, is a must for Atlanta visitors. Rising 825 feet above the surrounding plateau, Stone Mountain is the world's largest mass of exposed granite. Carved upon the mountain's sheer north face is a startling panoramic view of three heroes of the Confederacy on horseback. A Swiss cable car is an easy (and breathtaking) route to the top of the mountain, or you can hike up a mile-long trail on the sloping west side. While you are in the Park, visit the ante-bellum plantation and Civil War museum, sail Stone Mountain Lake on a sternwheel riverboat, and circle the base of the mountain on an old-time trolley.

Art lovers will find beauty at the High Museum, part of the Atlanta Memorial Arts Center which houses the visual arts, music, dance and theater, ten minutes north of downtown on Peachtree St. Connoisseurs of small palaces and antiques will enjoy the Swan House, maintained by the Atlanta Historical Society. The Greek Orthodox Cathedral, its dome lined with magnificent mosaics, is a splendid 20th century adaptation of Byzantine architecture. Civil War buffs may want to visit Kennesaw Mountain National Battlefield Park, about an hour's drive northwest of Atlanta.

When you leave Atlanta and the 1980 Nationals, whether your destination is Lake Placid for the Olympics, the beaches of sunny Florida, or home to dream of next year's Nationals in San Diego, we hope you will take to heart Atlanta's oft-spoken invitation, "Y'all come back now, hear!"

U.S. Skaters Show Poise & Strength at Norton

Skate in Lake Placid.

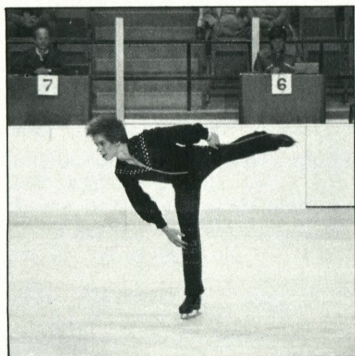

Howard Bass

In the first non-championship international competitions to be held in the United States, there is little doubt that the Norton Skate meeting (September 20-23) provided a most successful and necessary dummy-run for the Winter Olympics to follow.

In many respects, Olympic routine was intentionally adopted, even to the extent of an opening mini-parade, a closing firework display, and staging the compulsories on the small rink adjoining the handsome new Fieldhouse Arena. If snags were to be encountered, there would be time to amend, and so it proved, one example being the corrections found necessary for the lighting on the figures rink in order to afford the judges a clearer view of the tracings.

65 skaters from 16 nations in the four events represented a very high quality entry despite the absence of all but five of the current world medalists.

The demise of Jan Hoffmann and the meteoric rise of Scotty Hamilton dominated an incident-packed men's event. Hoffmann, who began a hot favourite and led convincingly in the figures, sensationally lapsed in the free, ultimately to be humbled in third place behind Hamilton and Scott Cramer.

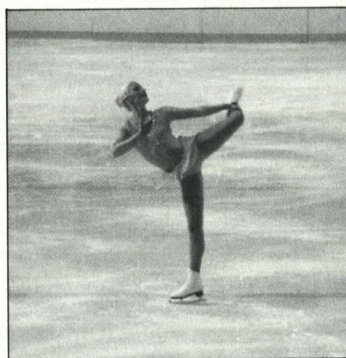

The diminutive Hamilton seized his chance and hardly put a foot wrong, clinching a memorable victory with a brilliant performance that included eight great triples—two salchows, three toe loops, two walleys and a lutz.

Cramer, the runner-up, opened busily with a triple salchow and three consecutive toe walleys, then took a breather before concentrating a rapid succession of jumps and spins in his final minute, including another two triple toe walleys.

Hoffmann, the 1974 world champion, twice fell heavily—from triple lutz and triple toe loop jumps, also over-rotating a triple loop in what for the East German was a mediocre display that must have cast doubts on the tall Dresden skater's hitherto bright Olympic prospects.

David Santee, fourth, was also well below his best but featured the best drop sit spin on view. Gary Beacom, in his first international, looked a likely new Canadian champion after three uncharacteristic tumbles by his compatriot, Brian Pockar.

Despite a fall, Lisa-Marie Allen decisively gained the second home win of the meeting, reinforcing her figures advantage with a superior brand of free skating that left the Italian runner-up, Susan Driano, trailing hopelessly in the blonde Californian's wake.

A much closer scramble for the bronze went to the fast-rising Sandy Lenz, followed by Denise Biellmann, the Swiss reputed to be the world's best free skater, whose relatively weak figures proved to be too great a handicap.

Conversely, Finland's Kristiina Wegelius dropped from second in the figures to over-all fifth, not far ahead of Britain's improving Karena Richardson, who has clearly benefited from summer training in Denver.

Jill Sawyer, who first impressed me when winning the world junior title two years ago, has graduated well to senior status and showed appreciable potential.

The pairs went predictably to the East Germans, Sabine Baesz and Tassilo Thier-bach, winners of the world bronze medal in Vienna last March. They excelled with a triple twist lift and two good throw axels, but Sabine fell from a double toe salchow and kept her head surprisingly high in her death spiral.

The event will be remembered best for an ominous international debut by the American brother and sister, Caitlin and Peter Carruthers, who eased into second place with some powerful overhead lifts and well matched shadow spins and double jumps, the whole very artistically presented to highly suitable music.

Significantly, Vicki Heasley and Bob Wagenhoffer were pegged firmly below and this may well prompt Bob to wonder whether his chances of international success may not be better in the solo division. But he and Vicki did well to hold off the much more experienced Aleksandr Vlasov and his new partner, Zhanna Iljina, who looked in need of more time together before showing their true worth.

Sheryl Franks and Michael Botticelli have certainly skated better, but had some encouraging high spots—not least an excellent throw axel of spectacular distance, powerful overhead axel and lasso lifts and well timed solo jumps.

The outcome of the ice dance event was never in question, the high world class of Kris Regoczy and Andy Sallay always proving much too good for the Russian runners-up, Natalia Bestemianova, who so very narrowly eclipsed the ever-graceful third-placed Canadians, Lorna Wighton and John Dowding. The smooth free dancing efficiency of the elegant British-trained Hungarian victors, now at their career peak, suggested that they can go on to take Olympic silver, if not gold.

The growing U.S. strength in dancing was very evident and I would not care to bet who will emerge as national champions, so close are all three couples. Judy Blumberg with Mike Seibert and Stacey Smith with John Summers reflected the friendly rivalry between their respective coaches, Doreen Mac Salka and Ron Ludington, and none of them can afford to lapse with Carol Fox and Richard Dalley near the same class.

The performances in all four events by the U.S. team as a whole was most heartening, revealing a worthy quality that will eventually replace the current national champions.

Many Americans I know would like to have the Norton Skate an annual event. Subject to sponsorship agreement, the only practicable way would seem to be a back-to-back arrangement enabling competitors to compete in both Skate Canada and Norton Skate during consecutive weeks. This could be great for the North American skating public and I think most of the world's top performers would be happy to enter.

INTERNATIONAL SKATING UNION (I.S.U.)

Communication No. 536

1. PAIR SKATING

Members are requested to inform all judges, trainers and skaters of this Communication.

The International Skating Union has become increasingly concerned with the trend of recent years not to observe the general principles of pair skating. As a result, there has been a deterioration of the essential aspects of this branch of the sport, which has traditionally emphasized artistry and unison in addition to athletic ability. In particular, Rule 317 has not been followed, nor have violations been adequately penalized by the Judges.

As a result, too great an emphasis has been placed upon purely athletic and solo elements, because the skaters and trainers, in the absence of the proper application of the rules by the judges, have assumed that such emphasis is permissible. To correct this situation, the I.S.U. Council, at the request of the Figure Skating Technical Committee, is issuing this Communication as a guide to judges, trainers and skaters.

Pair skating is the skating of two persons in unison who perform their movements in such harmony with each other as to give the impression of genuine pair skating as compared with independent single skating. Pair free skating consists of a well balanced program composed and skated to music of the skaters' own choice for a specified period of time. A good program contains moves of single skating executed simultaneously, either symmetrically (mirror skating) or in parallel (shadow skating) and, especially, typical pair skating moves, such as pair spins, spirals, lifts, partner assisted jumps, etc., linked harmoniously by steps and other movements. Both partners need not always perform the same movements; they may separate from time to time, but they must give an impression of unison and harmony of composition of program and of execution of the skating.

The following significant deviations from the principles of the rules are those which have been most frequently noted:

- Excessive number of overhead lifts, including repetitions of the same lift or of variations of the same lift.
- Sustained or carried lifts.
- Excessive repetition of twist lifts.
- Excessive number of solo jumps and spins.
- Excessive shadow or solo skating.
- Too little footwork; not enough varied, difficult and original step sequences.
- Lack of primarily pair elements.
- Use of music unsuitable for pair skating.

The reflection of the above deviations from the rules must be made by the judges in their marks. The referees should note all such deviations and any judge who has not made appropriate deductions in marking must be asked for an explanation at the judges' meeting following the event or in writing, and the Referee will be obliged, in such cases, to report accordingly to the Figure Skating Technical Committee in the Referee's Report.

2. Single Short program groups

The sequence of the Junior and Senior single short programs for the next four years will be:

1980/81	Group 2
1981/82	Group 1
1982/83	Group 3
1983/84	Group 4

3. I.S.U. Judges' Seminars 1979

KID TALK

Hey! Kid Talk Readers. . .

According to Edwin H. Paget, a retired professor, the word "kids" is belittling and shouldn't be used. "Children" should be used because "it has a certain dignity to it."

Kids never bothered me, in fact I like the ring to it, but, what do you think? Do you think "kids" is not cool, or do you think it's O.K.?

Let me know.

Dear Kid Talk,
I am 8 1/2 years old.
I am working on my second test. I have been skating since I was five years old. I really enjoy skating.
Someday I hope to be a skating teacher and teach at the Breckenridge ice rink. My skating teacher is Glen Schulte.

Have fun skating!

Dear Kid Talk,

I am eight years old.
I've been skating almost two years now. I skate in the Tara
F.S.C. I have two wonderful pros.
I passed my Preliminary Freestyle and figures test. I'm working on my flip jump and camel-spin and sit-spin and loop jump.
I'm in freestyle 3(three.)
Have a Skating day!
