MUSEUM NEWSLETTER

On the occasion of the closing banquet for the Coupe des Alpes and Nebelhorn Trophy International Competition, which was held on the top of the Nebelhorn Mountain in the Bavarian Alps, August 29, 1981, Maxi Herber Baier was presented with her Hall of Fame Plaque and medal, honoring her and her pair partner Ernst Baier's induction into the USFSA Hall of Fame. The presentation was made by Mr. Benjamin T. Wright, Chairman of the USFSA Hall of Fame and Museum Committee. Assisting Mr. Wright was Dr. Wolf-Dieter Montag and Dr. Wolfgang Kunz, the President and Vice President, respectively, of the Deutsche Eislauf-Union. Also present were Herman Schiechtl, ISU Vice President and Herbert Kunze, President of the Deutscher Eissport-Verband.

Maxi and her partner Ernst Baier were Olympic Pair Champions in 1936, World Pair Champions in 1936-39, European Pair Champions in 1935-39, and German Pair Champions in 1934-36, and 1938-41. Maxi was also German Ladies Champion in 1933-35. They were inducted into the USFSA Hall of Fame in 1979.

Benjamin T. Wright presenting the Hall of Fame plaque to Maxi Herber Baier at Oberstdorf, 1981.

The USFSA Hall of Fame and Museum was invited to participate in the 1981 Festival of Christmas Trees which was presented December 4 through December 20, 1981, at the Fine Arts Center, Colorado Springs, CO. A small tree dressed with golden ice skates, ice skating scene ornaments and gold bows was appropriately named "Come Skate with Me."

Among our recent visitors at the Museum were Richard Ohlbrein, Curator/Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C., and Michael Brooslin, Director/Curator of the soon to open National Museum of Roller Skating, Lincoln, Nebraska.

The staff at the USFSA Hall of Fame and Museum wish you all the Happiest of New Years!

It is a human frailty, and part of human behavior, to justify our opinions and acts, as well as those of the people close to us.

The skating community is no different than any other in this respect. As a matter of fact, it is difficult to imagine life in the skating world without a daily series of "excuses."

I thought it would be interesting and amusing to list a few of these rationalities that I have heard and notated in the past few months, along with contributions by skaters, coaches and parents, whose aid I solicited in this project.

Although all of the excuses listed have actually been said, no offense is intended towards any particular person or persons. It has been written only to cause the reader to be amused and/or to think.

I CAN'T SKATE BECAUSE:

1. The game isn't over yet.
2. I can't find my gloves.
3. I can't get my warm-up suit zipped.
4. She's french braiding my hair.
5. My nails are wet.
6. There are fumes and I can't breathe.

I COULDN'T JUMP BECAUSE:

1. My nose was running.
2. My boots are too small (too tight, too loose, too dull, too sharp).
3. Someone was in my way.
4. I didn't know which way she was going.
5. I forgot what you were saying.
6. I got in a rut.
7. The ice was too hard (too soft).

8. My hair was in my face.
9. I lost my balance.

SHE/HE/I DIDN'T SKATE WELL BECAUSE:

1. The girl before had bad figures.
2. The ice was too slippery and I kept going downhill.
3. My mother was mad at me.
4. I have ingrown toenails.
5. It was too hot (too cold).
6. There are too many (not enough) people on the ice.
7. I couldn't hear my music.
8. He lost his jumps.

I DON'T WANT MY LESSON NOW BECAUSE:

1. It's on the first session.
2. I was first last week.
3. I'm hungry.
4. I forgot to put my "sweats" on.
5. I forgot my tape.
6. My Mom lost her checkbook.

MISCELLANEOUS EXCUSES:

1. I was late because I forgot to get up.
2. I weigh 140 pounds but it's all muscle.
3. She won but she's been in Novice for three years.
4. The reason she can't land her double Axel is because she has had too much ballet, and points her toe too much.

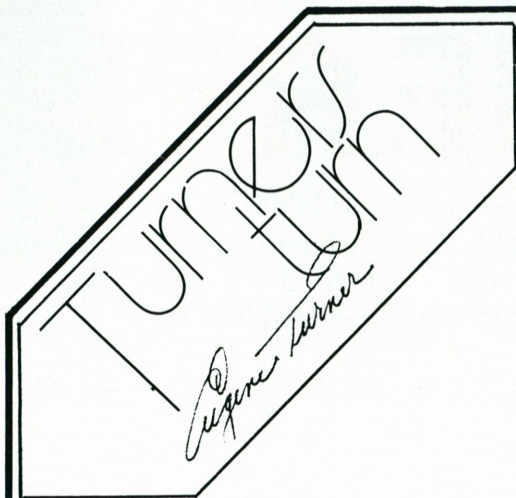

WHAT'S YOUR EXCUSE?

We were on the way home from a competition. My two oldest girls had competed, events were being discussed and the subject of placement in competition arose (the girls had been commiserating with a friend who placed last in her division.)

I tried a question. If you were second out of two skaters, how would you feel? The answer came quickly. "Fine," said the older girl; her sister echoed it. I tried again. What if you were third out of three skaters? "Mmmmm . . . okay," said the younger one. The older one shrugged. "How about fourth out of four?" "Welllll, I don't know, said one. The other made a face.

I went on but the answers came slower. The girls seemed to sink lower in the car seats, and their voices sank lower, too. You could feel them being covered by all those bodies. Of course, around eighth place it had to come. "You mean laaassst!? Out of eight? You see the girls knew. They'd woken up at the end of a competition to find everybody else sitting on top of them.

But reverse all this. Say you're a winner. You're first, the top, the king—or queen—with all those "slaves" looking up at you. Some are glaring but never mind, you ignore them and concentrate on the bubbles in your brain and the adrenalin flowing like gold through your body. What a feeling!

Funny thing about winning, though. It can hurt. There should be a small message printed on every gold medal or cup. "Warning! Winning can be dangerous to your health." Marlon Brando once said, "Success has a sting." So has winning. But how could that be? How could winning possibly hurt? Winning is what it's all about, isn't it? It's what we all want, right?

What happens is not easy to understand. The pitfalls are subtle, and secretive. They creep up on you unawares. Take the obvious ones. You win a tournament. You were the best of two, or ten, or two hundred. When? At the moment of the win. For how long? Same answer. Very satisfying, winning. But enjoy it while you can, tomorrow is another day. Dwelling on the win can lead to some upsetting surprises.

Say you win when everybody else is sick. You win when your opponent has an off-day. Or when he loses his skates/ golf clubs/tennis racket/ping-pong paddle. What then is your measure of accomplishment? How do you grade yourself? By winning?! Tomorrow, your opponent recovers his health, his sanity, or his ping-pong paddle and you get blasted. Where are you now?

You see where we're headed. So let's try a tricky one. You win and get congratulated. Repeatedly. No boos, only applause. You begin to like it. Strangers come up to you and pat you on the back. All the world seems to be paying you attention. You begin to crave it and want more! You can't stand not being noticed . . . ! And that applause . . . !

Still obvious? Okay, let's take another example. A youngster wins and gets overwhelmed by parents and relatives. They love her to death. She notices. She then loses, and so "loses" their "love." To regain it, she tries to win again. And tries again! How sad.

A winner needs to be strong emotionally, mentally, psychologically. It would help more if he placed winning a distant second to love of his activity. The other way around there are nothing but problems. He who says, "Winning isn't everything, it's the only thing!" obviously needs an awful lot of winning to satisfy his emptiness. ●

Ennia Challenge Cup

by Howard Bass

Competitors for the Ennia Challenge Cup International in The Hague, Holland, were appropriately housed in the 19th century Kurhaus, the stately building by the sea where the International Skating Union was formed in July, 1892. This fourth major meeting of the season—St. Ivel, Skate America and Skate Canada were the others—had the largest entry, with eighty-eight skaters from twenty countries contesting the four events.

With full emphasis on free skating—there were no compulsories—an added incentive was the team trophy, designated participants scoring points for their country on a graduated scale.

In the opening pairs event, a stimulating aperitif was provided by the Canadians, Barbara Underhill and Paul Martini, who resumed where they had left off at Lake Placid. After an ominous lead in the short, they were rich in difficult content in the long, excelling with a brilliant triple Lutz twist, a daring lateral twist lift and a triple Salchow. The only error was when Paul touched down on a double loop.

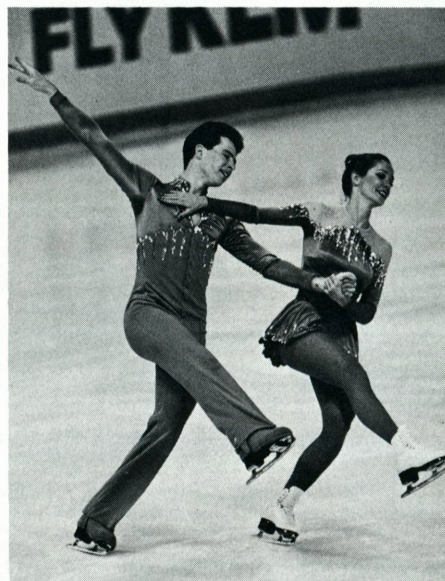

While the Soviet world junior champions, Larissa Selesneva and Oleg Makarov, tucked firmly into second place, an all-American battle for third was won by Vicky Heasley and Peter Oppegard, gliding smoothly into top gear to overtake Lea Ann Miller and Bill Fauver, Lea's fall from a triple throw Salchow proving costly. His Axel over her back-tracking spiral lent a nice original touch.

Kathie Witt of East Germany gained a psychological boost when defeating Elaine Zayak for the women's prize. Kathie included three triples—two toe loops and a Salchow—in a performance noted for its fluidity of movement. She fell heavily near the end from another intended triple Salchow, but had achieved enough for victory.

Elaine landed three triple toe loops but slipped out of a fourth. She touched down on a triple Salchow and fell from a double Axel. These great rivals were the only two among twenty-two contenders to achieve triple toe loops in the short, when Kathie's cleaner landing was a decisive factor. Their next meeting in Copenhagen is awaited with relish. The two Canadians, Diana Ogibowski and Kerry Smith, ended third and fourth.

Men's winner Rudi Cerne of West Germany resisted pressure from runner-up Janes Santee while the Canadian, Dennis Coi, outpointed Tom Dickson in a keen duel for third place. In the short, Rudi and Dennis each linked a triple toe loop to the required double toe Salchow and James was the only competitor to land the arguably more difficult triple loop.

In the long, a lacklustre Rudi exercised caution, but featured three different triples—toe loop, loop and Salchow. The tall, Chicago-born James, five years younger than his brother David, made two expensive triple Salchow errors, but included a great triple Lutz, a triple toe loop and the now rarely seen cantilever spread.

The elegant Carol Fox and Richard Dalley impressively won the ice dance only a fortnight after their Ottawa success. The Michigan couple's comprehensive free dance gave no chance to the Czech runners-up, Jan Bartak and Jana Berankova. In an absorbing all-Canadian duel for third place, Robert McCall and Tracy Wilson narrowly pipped John Thomas and Joanne French.

The United States comfortably retained the team challenge cup, with Canada runners-up and USSR third.

The most memorable Nationals ever awaits you in Indianapolis, Indiana, on January 25-31, 1982. You are invited to attend this event where one hundred and fifty young skaters will vie for ten U.S. titles.

Peggy Fleming and Dick Button will provide commentary for this event to be televised nationally on ABC Wide World of Sports. According to Pam Robinson, '82 Nationals Indianapolis Chairman, "at least 70,000 spectators are expected to attend." The competition is again sponsored by The Travelers Insurance Companies, Hartford, Connecticut.

All-event tickets are $55.00 plus $1.00 handling charge, and individual tickets are available at Market Square Arena, 300 East Market Street, Indianapolis, Indiana 46204, or at charge-by-phone 317-639-4444.

Special Events Planned

Special events chairman Kathy Jenkins and her committee have arranged, "fun-filled events that offer opportunities for the entire family to share the excitement of this week in Indianapolis." Apart from the special events planned for officials and skaters, public events will be as exciting and interesting.

L.S. Ayres & Co. will host a "Nationals Kick-Off Brunch" on Wednesday, January 27, at 11:00 A.M. This public event will feature a nationally-known skater and will benefit the local Special Olympics Skating Program and the Indianapolis Family Support Center. Later that day, opening ceremonies and a skating exhibition are scheduled on the Monument Circle. At that time, Market Street leading from the Circle to the ice rink at Market Square Arena will be renamed "Avenue of Champions" for that week. Throughout the week, the Monument Circle skating rink will offer free skating for the public.

A unique seminar on Sports Medicine and the Figure Skater is scheduled on Saturday, January 30, from 9:00 A.M. to noon. Nationally-known speakers include Tenley Albright, M.D., former Olympic Gold Medalist and medical consultant to the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports; psychologist Bruce E. Ogilvie, Ph.D., member of the USFSA Sports Medicine Committee and consultant to individual members of the World Skating Team; and

The '82 Nationals mascot "Shivers the Penguin" holds the souvenir size "Shivers" that is available from Indianapolis. With "Shivers" is Pam Robinson, '82 Nationals Indianapolis Chairman.

Leslie M. Bodnar, M.D., consultant to the athletic teams at Notre Dame University and Medical Director of the Sports Medicine Clinic of St. Joseph's Medical Center. Otis R. Bowen, M.D., Professor and Director of Undergraduate Family Practice Education, I.U. School of Medicine, and former Governor of Indiana, will be moderator of this seminar also sponsored by The Travelers Insurance Companies.

Preceding the Exhibition of Champions on Sunday afternoon, January 31, at 1:30 P.M. is a City Market Brunch at 11:30 A.M. This special event will feature The Indianapolis Jazz/Rock Ensemble, the Midsummer Mime Theatre, a magician, popcorn and "Shivers the Penguin," the '82 Nationals mascot. Fifty-two specialty stands will offer breakfast and luncheon menus.

Tickets will be available at the Indianapolis ice rinks and downtown hotels.

Stocking Stuffers Available

Souvenirs for '82 Nationals are ready in time for holiday giving.

"Shivers the Penguin" is a lovable, 11", stuffed penguin. This furry gift by R. Dakin & Co., has been customized with a red and blue hat and muffler and a Nationals logo. He will be available in Indianapolis in January.

THE HALL OF FAME

Willie Frick
Germany
(1896 – 1964)

On this and the following pages are accounts of the lives and distinguished careers of the most recent members elected to the USFSA Figure Skating Hall of Fame.

by Benjamin T. Wright

Figure skating in the United States underwent its greatest period of growth and development in the period between the two World Wars, primarily under the leadership of two old and strong clubs, the Skating Clubs of Boston and New York. During the entire period and thereafter, the principal teaching professional at the Boston club was Willie Frick, who came to the club from his native Berlin, Germany in 1920.

When compared with major champions in any sport, it is difficult to place in true perspective the comparable achievements of those behind them, their teachers. In the case of Willie Frick, however, it can be truthfully said that he was largely responsible for the tremendous record of the Boston skaters in national and international competition during his tenure at the Boston club, for at one time or another, he trained all its major champions, from Theresa Weld Blanchard, the first National Ladies' Champion to Tenley Albright, the first World and Olympic Ladies' Champion from the United States.

Denied the opportunity to compete internationally due to the long suspension of competition as a result of World War I from 1914 to 1922, Frick was, nonetheless a fine all around skater, as all those who saw him can attest. Extremely versatile, he was equally skilled in the compulsory figures, free skating, pair skating and even ice dancing! Prior to World War I before coming to America in 1920, Frick gave exhibitions throughout Europe and was fondly known as "The Boy Wonder of Berlin".

In America, despite a heavy teaching schedule during the relatively short skating season (by modern standards) of the time, Frick continued to participate actively in exhibitions and carnivals in both singles and in pairs with his wife Cathleen Pope. He was particularly noted for his "candle dance", in which he performed intricate and complicated maneuvers, often on one foot, around and between a pattern of lighted candles placed on the ice, but without ever touching, putting out or overturning them. His performances were invariably a "tour de force" and demonstrated tremendous skill and control.

In a more conventional sense, he demonstrated his mastery of the compulsory figures, when he took and passed in 1933 all the tests of the National Skating Association of Great Britain up to and including the First Class (Gold) Test, in one day!

An innovative coach, Frick early recognized the value of summer skating, both for established champions as well as for the rising young stars of the future. In 1933, he traveled to England with Maribel Vinson, George Hill and James Madden and in 1935 with Joan Tozzer and Bernard Fox. Maribel was truly the leading lady skater of her day nationally and a strong and feared challenger to Sonja Henie internationally. She was nine times the National Ladies' Champion, the North American Ladies' Champion in 1937 and four times the National Pair Champion with Hill, himself a nationally ranked singles skater, as was Madden, who was the National Pair Champion with his sister Grace in 1934.

Tozzer and Fox were National and North American Pair Champions just prior to World War II while Tozzer was herself the National Ladies' Champion from 1938 to 1940.

A true master of the compulsory figures, Frick's skaters invariably excelled in that discipline, which then, of course, counted for sixty percent of the total value of a competition. One of the outstanding proponents of the figures he trained was Roger Turner, seven times the National Champion and twice runner-up in the World Championships. In later years, Gretchen Merrill, six times National Ladies' Champion and Tenley Albright, herself a five times National Ladies' Champion, twice World and North American Ladies' Champion and the Olympic gold medalist in 1956, both gained their basic foundations from Frick and indirectly benefited from his methods, since both of them were trained by Maribel Vinson Owen during the peak of their careers. Frick also accompanied Tenley to Vienna as her coach in 1955 when she regained her World title, as the stepping stone to her Olympic win the next year.

Frick was not without outstanding free skaters among his pupils, notably James Madden during the 1930's and Bernard Fox, who won the National Novice and Junior titles in consecutive years 1935-36, the first to do so, and of course, Gretchen Merrill and Tenley Albright were equally outstanding in that department.

The outstanding achievements of his many pupils in competition, both nationally and internationally, and the contributions they themselves made to the development of the sport constitute the permanent legacy of Willie Frick to the sport he served so well.

Willie and Cathleen Frick were elected honorary life members of The Skating Club of Boston in 1946. He remained active as a teacher until his retirement in 1960, thereby completing 40 years of service with the same organization, an unequalled record of durability and faithful performance of his duties. He passed away in 1964.

STRETCHING

by Bob Anderson

The neck, shoulders and arms are very important to the skater. Often an entire routine will be virtually ruined because of unnecessary upper body tension that prevents proper carriage and movement of the arms and shoulders. Many skaters need to stretch the arms, shoulders and neck much more than they do. Also, a little added upper body strength would help make their movements easier and more dynamic.

In the following is a neck, shoulder and arm stretching routine that should be done at least once a day and always before and after weight training.

As discussed in the November, 1981 issue of Skating, the stretches should not be painful. They should, in fact, feel good. Holding the stretches comfortably for a prolonged length of time reduces unwanted tension. Holding any stretch in a painful position is absolutely the wrong way to stretch.

©1981, Robert A. and Jean Anderson

Stretching, by Bob Anderson, 192 pp., illustrated by Jean Anderson, $8.95, is available from the USFSA Book Dept. Each book is accompanied by a free stretching chart specifically for skaters. Cost: Members $8.05, Clubs (5 or more, $7.60), Non-members $8.95. Chart is available separately for $2. Shipping and handling charges additional. To order, write: USFSA Books, 20 First St., Colorado Springs, CO 80906.

The dotted areas are those areas of the body where you will most likely feel the stretch.*

Interlace your fingers behind your head and rest your arms on the mat. Using the power of your arms, slowly bring your head, neck, and shoulders forward until you feel a slight stretch. Hold an easy stretch for 5 seconds. Repeat 3 times. Do not overstretch.

Shoulder Blade Pinch: From the bent-knee position, pull your shoulder blades together to create tension in the upper back area. (As you do this your chest should move upward.) Hold this controlled tension for 4-5 seconds, then relax and gently pull your head forward as shown in stretch #1. This will help release tension and allow the neck to be stretched effectively.

Think of creating tension, relaxing the same area, then stretching the back of the neck to help keep the muscles of the neck free to move without tightness. Repeat 3-4 times.

Straighten out your arms and legs. Point your fingers and toes as you stretch as far as you can. Stretch and then relax. This is a good stretch for the entire body. Hold for 5 seconds.

In a standing or sitting position, interlace your fingers above your head. Now, with your palms facing upward, push your arms slightly back and up. Feel the stretch in arms, shoulders, and upper back. Hold stretch for 15 seconds. Do not hold your breath. This stretch is good to do anywhere, anytime. Excellent for slumping shoulders.

With arms overhead, hold the elbow of one arm with the hand of the other arm. Keeping knees slightly bent (1 inch), gently pull your elbow behind your head as you bend from your hips to the side. Hold an easy stretch for 10 seconds. Do both sides. Keeping your knees slightly bent will give you better balance.

The next stretch is done with your fingers interlaced behind your back. Slowly turn your elbows inward while straightening your arms. An excellent stretch for shoulders and arms. This is good to do when you find yourself slumping forward from your shoulders. This stretch can be done at any time. Hold for 5-15 seconds. Do twice.

Hold a towel near both ends so that you can move it with straight arms up, over your head and down behind your back. Do not strain or force it. Your hands should be far enough apart to allow for relatively free movement up, over and down. To isolate and add further stretch to the muscles of a particular area, hold the stretch at any place during this movement for 10-20 seconds.

To stretch the front of the shoulders and arms you can use a wall, doorway, or fence. Face the wall, then put your right arm behind you at shoulder height against the wall. Keep your right shoulder close to the wall as you slowly turn your head over your left shoulder to look in the direction of your right hand. Looking over your shoulder should create a stretch in your right arm and shoulder. Hold a comfortable stretch for 15-20 seconds. Do both sides.

With legs bent under you, reach forward with one arm and grab the end of the mat, carpet, or anything you can hold onto. If you can't grab onto something just pull back with your arm straight while pressing down slightly with your hand. Do likewise pulling on end of mat. Hold stretch for 20 seconds. Stretch each side. Don't strain. You should feel the stretch in your shoulders, arms, sides, upper back, or even in your lower back.

10

From the position illustrated at left, with your palms flat and fingers pointed back toward your knees, slowly lean backwards to stretch the forearms and wrists. Be sure to keep your palms flat. Hold a comfortable stretch for 20-25 seconds. Do not over-stretch. Stretch for a good feeling. Enjoy stretching.

These stretches have been excerpted from various stretching charts.

I recommend 25-100 knee push ups at least 5 days a week. They will help maintain or create strength and tone in the upper body.*

SKATE CANADA '81

REPORT

by Howard Bass

Breakfasts with a stunning panorama from the revolving restaurant topping Ottawa's palatial Holiday Inn were socializing highlights for the forty-one skaters from twelve nations competing in the eighth Skate Canada. The uncertainty of outcome until the last gasp in each event spiced absorbing contests among high-grade entries.

The closest finish was provided by the dancers. U.S.'s Carol Fox and Richard Dalley, after running neck and neck for three days with Britain's Karen Barber and Nicky Slater, came from behind for a tie-break victory through fractionally higher marks in the free dance.

There was so little to choose between these rival duos who had finished sixth and seventh respectively at Hartford. Each had a slice of misfortune, Richard falling in the Yankee polka compulsory and Karen suffering a rib injury from an accident during practice before the free.

Suffice to add that both couples were very stylish and innovative, each had a distinctively interpretative but equally commendable OSP blues and few would wager with confidence on who will finish higher in Copenhagen.

Soviets Natalia Karamysheva and Rotislav Sinitsyn were a firm third without ever threatening the first two while Nancy Berghoff and Jim Bowser won a secondary Anglo-American duel with Wendy Sessions and Steve Williams to clinch fourth spot. It was refreshing to observe far fewer technical breaches than in previous seasons.

There was an anticlimactic end to the men's contest when near-perfect free skating by Canadian runner-up Brian Orser proved insufficient to wipe out the earlier points advantage gained by the West German winner, Norbert Schramm, whose figures lead had left Brian, fourth, with all to do.

Brian's 4½ minutes were flawless. He featured six triples, four of them different and one a precisely landed triple Axel as only he knows how. All seven judges gave him 5.9 for technical merit and nearly everyone else thought he deserved sixes.

By finishing second in the long free, the present controversial scoring system (temporary, one fervently hopes) ensured that Norbert in no way could be overtaken. He landed five triples—four of them different and this is important—and is now probably one of Europe's two best male skaters.

Jozef Sabovcik was third for Czechoslovakia. Each of the final top five had opted successfully for a triple toe loop in the short free. Mark Cockerell, sixth in figures and fifth overall, inserted four different triples in the long and, though visibly tiring near the end, continued to fulfill the high promise indicated when runner-up at Ennia in The Hague last season.

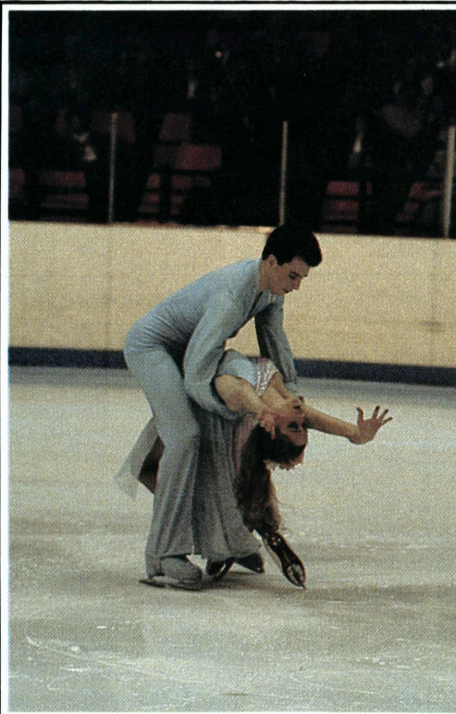

Canadian Tracey Wainman emphasized her overall women's consistency by achieving a slender victory over Rosalynn Sumners even though placing third in each of the three sections.

Although at fourteen the younger, the remarkable Tracey was the more experienced, and Rosalynn's fall from a double toe loop probably settling the issue despite her winning the long free.

Kira Ivanova, the Soviet national champion, edged Claudia Kristofics-Binder out of third place. The Austrian figures specialist at last met her match in the compulsories, yielding to the more accurate tracings and neater turns of Priscilla Hill. Rosalynn's eighth position in the figures underlined the extent of her subsequent rally. No girl attempted a triple in the short.

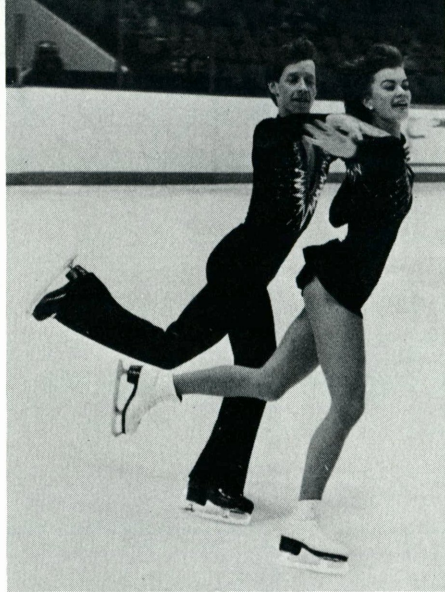

First of the top group to skate the long, Priscilla included three triple toe loops and three successive splits in a well performed four minutes perhaps insufficiently varied.

Tracey landed only one triple, a Salchow, but revealed all-round technical improvement, her three high double Axels being particularly impressive.

Kira landed three different triples—loop, toe loop and Salchow—all in the first minute while still fresh. Elizabeth Manley appeared to have the makings of a great future, but, this time understandably too tense, she fell from a triple toe loop immediately after a great double Lutz, then over-rotated a second triple toe loop before falling from a triple Salchow.

Rosalynn, last to skate, featured triple Salchow and triple toe loop before falling from a double toe loop. This may have caused her defeat because she landed a second triple Salchow in a very well presented performance.

Demonstrating the JUMP TENDER is Laurie Chemsak, who calls it "the PERFECT solo tender for practice jumps."

NEW

JUMP TENDER™

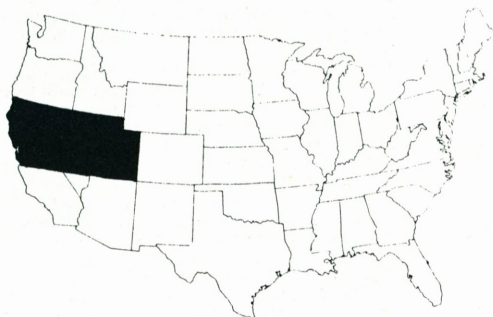

- Practice jumps at home
- Learn rotation and triple jumps faster
- Prevent falls

JUMP TENDER is a ceiling-mounted, safety suspension unit consisting of a 16' tracking carriage with spring-loaded pulley system and support line. The support line attaches to a comfortable parachute-type harness worn by the skater. Has two springs: a 10-pound spring allows a skater to practice jumps naturally without falling; a heavier spring lifts 90% of a skater's weight to aid in learning rotation for double and triple jumps. JUMP TENDER is self-tending; needs no other person to operate it.
