NEWS BRIEFS

During the 1989 fall international season, U.S. skaters made a very impressive showing, winning a total of 40 medals at 13 competitions. The "take" included 14 gold medals, 18 silver, and 8 bronze. The depth of our international team was especially strong, and sights are being set on the showdown in Halifax in March.

The 1989 NutraSweet World Professional Figure Skating Championships from Landover, Maryland, will be aired in two telecasts on NBC's SportsWorld on February 25 and March 4, both starting at 1:00 P.M. EST.

The 1989 NutraSweet Challenge of Champions professional competition from Moscow will be seen on ABC's Wide World of Sports February 17, March 24, and April 7, all starting at 3:30 P.M. EST. Check local listings for your area.

Jayne Torvill and Christopher Dean were recently honored by American Skating World as the Professional Skaters of the Year. Publisher, Michael E. Romanus, Jr.

presented the couple with a silver trophy during their performance in Pittsburgh with the Russian Allstars.

Douglas Graham, Editor of ASW, stated, "Each year we recognize the professional skater or skaters whose artistic and humanistic contribution to the sport, both past and present, continue to have an influence on skating.

Torvill and Dean were further honored earlier this year with election into the World Figure Skating Hall of Fame in Colorado.

United Cerebral Palsy Association of California awarded their highest fund raising honor to their Los Angeles affiliate for the successful "Icetravaganza '89 Solid Gold" produced by the Los Angeles FSC in September. Funds raised from the ice show have gone to operate 33 homes and programs UCP operates in Southern California. This second annual benefit featured National Champions Christopher Bowman, Susan Wynne and Joseph Druar, Kristi Yamaguchi and Rudi Galindo, Olympic Champion Robin Cousins, and other national competitors.

Many people were surprised at the announcement that three-time Olympic Pair Champion Irinina Rodnina will be coming to the U.S. to teach at the Ice Castle International Training Center in Blue Jay, California, in February. The Russian government has given approval for Rodnina to migrate to the States for a three-year period of work with potential world and Olympic competitors. She will live at Lake Arrowhead with husband, Leonid Minkowski, and her two children, ages 11 and 4.

Rodnina won Olympic Gold in 1972 with her first partner, Alex Ulanov. She then teamed with Alexander Zaitsev, later her first husband, to win her 1976 and 1980 Olympics. In addition, she was also ten times World Champion and eleven times European Champion with the two partners. In honor of her achievements and contributions to the sport, she was elected into the World Figure Skating Hall of Fame in 1989.

Her experience and expertise will hopefully help develop greater interest in pair skating in the U.S., which has been showing a steady decline of competitors both nationally and internationally over the past several years.

There was no shortage of surprise at the USSR Soviet National Championships held in Leningrad in December. Due to a leg injury, World Champion Sergei Grinkov was unable to compete with partner Ekaterina Gordeeva. The Pair's title went to Larisa Selezneva & Oleg Makarov, with Natalia Mishkutienok & Artur Dmitriev second, and former World Junior Champions Elena Leonova & Gennadi Krasnitski defeating Elena Bechke and Denis Petrov.

In Ladies, Natalia Lebedeva won, followed by Natalia Skrabnevskaya & Ludmilla Zamonina Marina Klimova and Sergei Ponomarenko handily won Dance over Maia Usova and Alexander Zhulin, with Oksana Grischuk & Igor

Platov, third.

The Men's battle saw Victor Petrenko take an early lead only to fade in the freestyle after a fall and lose to perennial champion Alexandr Fadeev, with Dmitriev Gromov in third. Next up in Leningrad is the European Championships in early February.

The United States Olympic Committee recently announced its selection of Athletes of the Year 1989. In figure skating, two people were singled out for recognition. The 1989 Skate America and U.S. Champion and World silver medalist, Christopher Bowman was honored, along with the 1989 Skate Canada and Pacific Coast Champion and National silver medalist in Ladies and U.S. Pair Champion, Kristi Yamaguchi. Each year, the USOC honors individual athletes for their accomplishments in their chosen sports and their achievement of excellence. We congratulate both Kristi and Christopher on their well-deserved awards.

We regretfully note the retirement from competition of Kelly Szmurlo of Milwaukee and of James Cygan of Colorado Springs. We extend best wishes to them both.

SKATING

The 1990's get off to an exciting start with the inaugural tour of the new ice show "Brian Boitano and Katarina Witt Skating." The reigning Olympic Gold medalists will be joined by an international cast for an extended tour of the U.S., Canada, Europe, and Japan.

The show will feature four production numbers including Witt and Boitano for the first time skating together to a selection from their film Carmen on Ice which will be released in Europe in February and shown on HBO in the States in March.

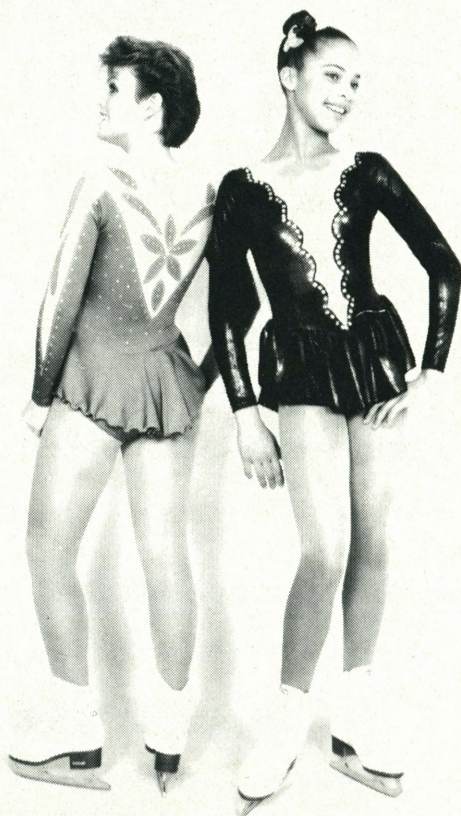

The company features Olympic and World Champions, including Elena Valova and Oleg Vasiliev of the Soviet Union, Rosalynn Sumners, Canada's Barbara Underhill and Paul Martini, and Tracy Wilson and Rob McCall. Also featured are Caryn Kadavy, popular Soviet and Canadian men Vladimir Kotin and Gary Beacom, and Spain's Yvonne Gomez.

The production is directed and choreographed by Sandra Bezic, with special choreography by pop star Paula Abdul. Boitano and Witt are acting as co-artistic directors.

*On Teaching Methods
For Technique & Style
Part I*

You should try to teach your students to be able to carry out anyone's choreography. The ideal combination is the performer who has had a big technique, but, as in the case of professionals, can subjugate technique if he or she has to in order to do things in the form of the choreography. In amateur competitive skating, one cannot always do that, but programs can be made to look dramatic and exciting outside the technical concepts with thought and care.

What is technique? It is the manipulation of the body and the ability to manipulate the body. On top of that is style. Every car has a function: it is motorized and can go somewhere. Basically all car engines are the same though some are more powerful than others. Then the designer puts something over that which gives it style.

Remember two things—the engine (technique) and the style. You must be aware that the engine carries the carriage (or the style). So the engine must be good and strong as that is the foundation. In teaching, you must not only bring out the individual quality, but also make the performer very proficient and defy gravity as much as possible.

Along the way to making a person do anything, are steps and style. For example, there are differences between choreographers like Toller Cranston, Robin Cousins, Sandra Bezic, and myself. Every choreographer has his/her own style and own way of moving. Some have many styles. They are eclectic. Each program has a different style.

You cannot do this at the beginning, however. You can do it somewhat, but not very much, or the young skater gets confused. As the skater progresses, you can teach dif-

TOP VOLUNTEER

Warren Spencer was named the Volunteer of the Month by the U.S. Olympic Committee in Colorado Springs. He is retired from the U.S. Air Force, Safetran Electronics, and was a former vocational teacher. He joined the USOC Volunteer Program in January 1989 and has served over 462 hours, most of which have been at the USFSA headquarters. He is the husband of Lillian Spencer, International Liaison at National Headquarters. The Association expresses its deep appreciation to Spence for his invaluable assistance and dedicated service.

BEREAVEMENTS

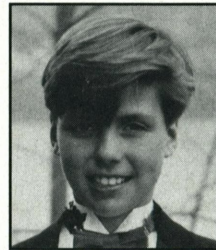

James Hulick, 38, prominent pairs coach and former champion, died of cancer in West Covina, California. Hulick was the 1971 U.S. Junior Pairs Champion, with partner Cynthia Van Valkenberg, and following a career with Ice Follies International, he began coaching four years later. Among his most prominent students at the rink in Dublin, California, were current U.S. Senior Pair Champions Kristi Yamaguchi and Rudi Galindo whose career he guided from its beginning. In 1987 he coached Galindo to the World Junior Men's title and in 1988 guided the team to the World Junior Pair's title. Despite his illness which was diagnosed in August 1988, he continued coaching and last summer conducted a pair's seminar for the Canadian Figure Skating Association in Calgary, Canada.

"It always seemed like he blocked out his sickness for us," Galindo said. "I really do have admiration for him to put all the medical things aside to do something for us."

Hulick traveled to Kobe, Japan, with Yamguchi and Galindo to the NHK competition over Thanksgiving. He checked into the hospital upon his return to the U.S. and died two weeks later on December 10.

Brandon Demesy-Brown, 12, of Edina, Minnesota, and a member of the Braemar-City of Lakes FSC, passed away on September 25 at the beginning of a promising young career. The 1988 Pre-Juvenile Boys Upper Great Lakes Champion and 1989 Juvenile bronze medalist, he had numerous gold medals to his credit from non-qualifying competitions and was also an active hockey player. He was a sixth-grader at Creek Valley Elementary School where he collapsed playing touch football and died from respiratory distress due to asthma.

Kelly Ann Sullivan, 24, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, passed away in November. A Low Test Judge and a double gold medalist, she had also taught at one time at the Tulsa Figure Skating Club. She was a graduate of Edison High School and Oklahoma State University where she earned a degree in accounting in 1986.

MAGIC MEMORIES ON ICE

For the many viewers who never saw the Protopopovs, Peggy Fleming, Janet Lynn, John Curry, or even Dorothy Hamill in their competitive days, it is worth the price for those memories alone. It is one that you will watch over and over, and each time wish it were longer, but time does not allow complete performances or excessive lingerings and it moves along quickly. The tape is outstanding as an accurate chronology of the developments in the sport especially in the last three decades.

Meg Streeter Lauck, the producer (and also a former skater), worked over two years reviewing, compiling, editing and creating this project. She is well known by many national skaters for her work at numerous U.S. Championships, and in this video makes a major contribution to the sport.

Janet Lynn, Toller Cranston, the Caruthers, Pakhomova and Gorshkov, Rodnina and Zaitsev, the Sladkys, Tenley Albright, Carol Heiss, David and Hayes Jenkins, Scott Hamilton, Elizabeth Manley, Brian Boitano, Brian Orser, Tai Babilonia and Randy Gardner, Denise Biellmann, Jayne Torvill and Christopher Dean are only a few of the giants of the sport seen who gave us these wonderful memories. No skating library will be complete without a copy of Magic Memories on Ice.

Produced by CBS Fox, the video release date has been set to coincide with the U.S. Nationals in early February and is available through the USFSA.

If you buy only one videotape this year, this should be it!

Magic Memories on Ice is a superb new video release that will please and delight the most discriminating skating fan or competitor and fill a void in most video collections. Culled from almost 30 years of ABC's coverage of figure skating, along with additional footage from CBS and the World Figure Skating Museum, narrators Dick Button and Peggy Fleming trace the most memorable moments and performances in the sport. Starting with Gillis Grafström and Sonja Henie, every major World and Olympic champion is featured up to Midori Ito and Kurt Browning.

It is an hour-and-a-half total entertainment package which combines commentary, performances, and interviews. What is most compelling is that the focus is entirely on amateur competitions, mainly Worlds and Olympics, and not on professional performances.

SUGAR FOR QUICK ENERGY?

by Rick L. Sharp, Ph.D.

An experience common to all athletes is that tired, low-energy feeling that sometimes occurs in the middle of the afternoon. Athletes who feel this way right before a practice or competition may not understand the cause of this sensation but certainly realize the need to get rid of the feeling as quickly as possible.

The solution, all too often, may be to reach for a high-sugar snack (e.g., a candy bar, regular soda, fruit rollup, dextrose, or honey) to get a quick burst of energy and "recharge your batteries." Unfortunately, while this temporarily makes you feel better, in the long run your performance may actually suffer.

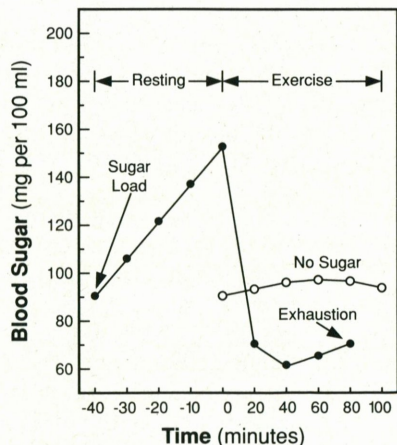

The low-energy sensation that you experience is frequently caused by a small drop in the blood sugar level. This sugar is called "glucose" and is used by all tissues of the body, especially the nervous system and muscles. Frequent meals help keep the blood sugar stable throughout the day so that these important tissues can function at their best. When blood sugar levels start to drop, the body is forced to rely more than usual on its stored fuels—carbohydrates (glycogen), fat, and protein.

Simple logic tells you to correct the problem quickly and eat something that contains a lot of sugar. You might then expect the blood sugar level to rise back to normal, or even a little higher than normal, supplying a quick energy boost and maybe even extra energy for the upcoming performance. This line of reasoning does not work, however, because of the complex nature of your body's regulation of blood sugar level.

What happens when you eat or drink something with too much sugar, one or two hours before a performance? First, the blood sugar level rises rapidly back up to normal and even beyond (see graph). Then, the pancreas senses that the blood sugar level is too high and secretes large amounts of insulin, a hormone that causes blood sugar to drop. As soon as this insulin circulates through the tissues, the blood sugar level starts to drop back to normal.

However, in some people, the insulin stays in the bloodstream longer than needed to bring blood sugar back to normal. This causes blood sugar to drop far below normal, a condition known as hypoglycemia, meaning low blood sugar. Studies have shown that exercise when combined with high insulin levels, results in even larger drops of blood sugar. Within 30 minutes to one hour after the sugar is ingested, blood sugar levels may be only half their normal level or exactly the opposite of what you intended when you ate the sugar!

Exercising at a low blood sugar level may reduce your endurance, because muscles will burn more of their stored fuel and eventually run out of it. Some studies have shown that fine muscle coordination may be reduced because the nervous system, which relies on blood glucose for its fuel, seems less able to control the muscles' movements. So, eating a high-sugar snack one or two hours before a performance may only increase that low energy feeling.

Try to eat three or more well balanced meals and, because of the potential rebound effect of blood sugar, avoid foods consisting purely of simple sugars before practice and competition. Instead, plan for the low energy periods by choosing snack foods that help prevent that mid-afternoon sag and contribute to your overall nutrition and fitness. Foods rich in complex carbohydrates, such as fruit or grain products, are excellent choices. These foods can be absorbed fairly quickly and cause a more gradual rise in blood sugar. They do not generally cause the rebound effect normally associated with high-sugar foods. Also, because they provide vitamins, minerals, and fiber, these foods contribute to a more nutritionally balanced diet.

Rick L. Sharp, Ph.D., is associate professor in the Department of Physical Education and Leisure Studies at Iowa State University. Dr. Sharp spoke on nutrition at the "Campbell's Soups Sports Medicine Seminar" during the 1988 National Championships.

We welcome your ideas! If you have suggestions for future topics of "Campbell's Soups Food for Thought," please share them with us. Write to: Campbell's Soups Food for Thought, Golin/Harris Communications, 500 N. Michigan Avenue, Suite 300, Chicago, IL 60611.

PRECISION SKATING — SOUTHERN STYLE

by Jenise Jensen

What has 8 wheels, 86 pairs of feet, and more luggage than the Harlem Globetrotters? Two bus loads of skaters from the Stone Mountain FSC on their way to competition! The Stone Mountain Ice Chalet has become home to seven precision skating teams in the last two years.

When the Ice Chalet opened in the spring of 1984, there was an abundance of enthusiasm but a limited amount of skating ability. Almost all of the skaters had no experience on a pair of ice skates. As the class program at the Ice Chalet developed, the professional staff, under the direction of Dawn Malone, put together skating drill teams.

These drill teams performed various formations on the ice. Their routines included basic skating skills performed in unison to music. The majority of the skaters on the teams at this time were under a preliminary freestyle level. Both boys and girls participated on the teams.

In 1985, the teams traveled to the Ice Skating Institute of America's Recreational Team Championships. They returned as the Precision Formation Champions. They competed the following year in this division also.

At this point the teams began to work on precision skating. They began to incorporate more speed and footwork into their routines. They also began to work towards USFSA competitions. In 1988, the club sent one team, Goldrush, to Easterns. In 1989 they sent 4 teams, from Juvenile to Adult.

Currently the precision teams are part of the group lesson program at the Ice Chalet. There are two types of precision skating teams: Precision Formation and Precision Skating. The Precision Formation teams consist of skaters working on their basic skills (crossovers, turns, and stops) and they compete only in ISIA. Teams are divided by age and currently include a tot team (ages 4-7 years, a youth team (8-11 years) and a teen team (12 years and up). The Precision Skating teams compete in both USFSA and ISIA using the same program and music. Currently there is a Juvenile, a Novice, a Junior and an Adult team. Team members progress within the program. As skaters advance on the precision formation teams, they are promoted to one of the precision skating teams. The precision formation teams practice once a week, while the skating teams practice twice a week.

Male skaters are an integral part of our teams. Programs and costumes are designed with "the guys" in mind. Some of our teenage boys were originally hockey players who have learned that the best place to meet girls is by being on one of the teams! Another big advantage to having "the guys" around is that they help carry their coach's luggage!

Team members have attendance and practice attire requirements. Discipline and dedication has strengthened their performance in the last two years. They now have set their sights to move up in the Nationals this year.

Besides practicing and performing, team members have a lot of fun. They travel to local points of interest (the Capitol, Hard Rock Cafe, Brown University, and Southern Methodist University) while at competitions. They have been asked to perform at shows in other arenas and malls throughout the South. Team members take field trips to professional ice shows and lend moral support while fellow members audition. All team members participate in fund raising activities. These activities include: pizza sales, candy sales, garage sales, working at a concession stand, skate-a-thons, and more.

At times, both team members and their coach wonder if this will all be worth it in the long run. However, when all is said and done, it always has been. It has been a joy watching these youngsters turn into young adults. The experiences they share with each other will

EYEWITNESS TO HISTORY

Blue Swords and the Wall

Few people are ever in the right place at the right time. Even fewer are lucky enough to be in the right place when history is made. Members of the U.S. International Figure Skating Team achieved both in November in East Berlin at the Pokal der Blauen Schwerter (the Blue Swords Competition).

The team was made up of single skaters Robyn Petrosky (St. Paul, MN) and John Baldwin, Jr. (San Diego, CA) and pair team, Aimee Offner (Norristown, PA) and Brian Helgenberg (Philadelphia, PA). They were accompanied by team leader, J. Barlow Nelson and his wife, judge William (Will) Smith, (all of Tulsa, OK) and coaches Bob Young (Wilmington, DE), Nikki Reinke (St. Paul, MN), Donna and John Baldwin, Sr. (San Diego).

“We arrived on Monday, and everything was normal at customs. The U.S. Embassy had assured us that things were stable and safe,” Barlow Nelson explained. “Then when we got to town, we could feel the tension. There were demonstrations every night in the square right below our hotel windows. They intensified, and it seemed as if something had to give.

“The first day we walked down to the Wall—the East Wall—and the Brandenburg Gate,” coach Bob Young recalled. “Most people think of one wall, but there are really two: the West Wall and the East Wall with a no-man’s land of mines and barbed wire between.

“We took pictures of the team in front of the Gate and at Checkpoint Charlie. We couldn’t go to West Berlin because we didn’t have exit and entry papers. Since we had less practice time assigned than some of the Eastern bloc countries, we had a little free time to explore the city which is beautiful with magnificent buildings and architecture.

“Everything had been a little intense, yet routine as far as the competition was concerned—until we were at dinner Thursday night and the announcement came that the Wall was open. People were shocked. Some were scared, not knowing if it was a trap.

“At the table was the translator assigned to our group who told us she had applied to leave East Germany and had been waiting for official approval,” Nelson explained. “When the news came about the Wall, she burst into tears. ‘We’re free. They’re letting us go,’ she said and started to cry. She promised that she would stay with us through the competition . . . but we never saw her again after that night.”

“I went immediately down to the Wall when I heard the news,” Young relates. “There was a huge crowd. All the publicity really came from the West Wall, the one covered with graffiti. People were climbing on it, lined as far as the eye could see, celebrating and attacking it with axes. You could hear the singing and cheering and announcements on the loud speakers.

“The East Wall was a total contrast: heavily guarded by soldiers and absolutely quiet. It is painted a plain white without a scratch on it anywhere—a bleak barrier.”

It is an ugly wall. It divides people of a common heritage. It divides families. It is an insane invention of political negotiations. It is the most famous wall in the world.

—Will Smith

“We were there nine days and did not see another American,” according to Nelson, “but you could look across the other side and see Americans climbing the wall and the lights from American TV crews.”

“I was headed back to the hotel when I ran into a British news crew,” Young tells. “I happened to have on an NBC jacket I had traded for ages ago. They saw it and assumed I was there for the same reason they were and told me that at midnight the first hole was going to be opened in the wall for a new crossing. The check points couldn’t handle the thousands of people. Everyone else was gathered at the main gates waiting for something to happen. No one knew about this.”

“Get your crew and get down there,” the Englishman said.

“I raced to the arena and grabbed Will (Smith) who had just finished judging and Brian (Helgenberg). We dashed to the hotel and changed and then went to a tiny side street about four blocks from the Brandenburg called Potsdamerplatz.

An unusual sight: an East German border guard hands a piece of the Wall to a West German over the fence.

It was secluded and had a heavy military force. We got there about 10:30 P.M. and found a little building with people on top. We climbed up and joined what turned out to be foreign news crews.

“An announcement must have been made because TV lights and crews appeared on the west side; there were even cameramen in trees. Trucks began arriving and setting up. Between the walls, other trucks began paving the beginning of a road. Then a little before midnight a giant crane came rumbling down the tiny street under heavy security.

“It moved into place. The engines roared and slowly giant jaws started to lift off the top piece of concrete from the East Wall.”

Before the Wall opened, the team visited the border dividing East and West Berlin near Checkpoint Charlie.

“There were cheers from the West, but it was silent on the East,” Smith recalls. “Then another piece of the wall was removed. Music and fireworks from the West. Silence on the East. Little by little the wall continued to come down.

Smith said that they watched almost hypnotic, in silence. “Little by little the wall continued to come down. We could see the West Wall, hear the people and the music. On our side you could have heard a pin drop. We stood in awe and slowly, I became aware that we were watching what might be one of the most historical moments of the century. We were eyewitness to history.

“My mind was reeling. I had come to judge my first international competition and found my eyes locked not on skaters but on an image that very few others saw and that I’ll never forget.”

The Wall had been built long before any of the skaters in the competition were born. Its existence was known, but the true significance of what the opening of the Wall meant was perhaps not as emotional or overpowering to them as it was to others. (And no one could have imagined what would follow in other Eastern Bloc countries in the weeks that followed.) The opening of the Berlin Wall began to open a free Europe.

Ich bien eine Berliner.

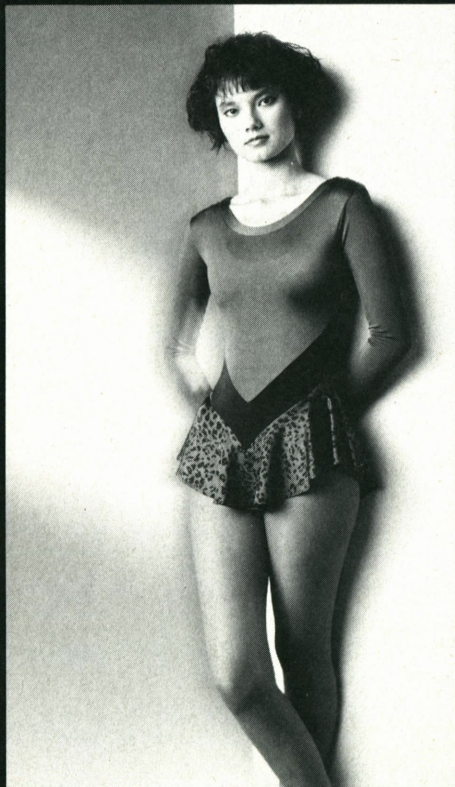

—John F. Kennedy

“When we got back to the hotel, it was like a New Year’s Eve celebration in the city,” according to Young.

One East German skating official was overjoyed with the news. While he had traveled throughout the world, his family had been confined. Early Sunday morning he took his 12-year-old son to West Berlin, the first time the boy had been there, and promises of Paris, Rome, or perhaps even San Francisco loomed for the young man, too young to fully understand the significance.

Young was relentless. “I was determined to get a piece of the wall. So, early the next morning I went down to the place we had been the night before just as they were finishing loading trucks. The guards were sweeping up debris to make everything look nice for publicity. I saw small pieces fly off the truck and tried to remember where they fell. I talked a guard into letting me go through the wall to take some pictures as people gathered. I had a shoulder bag and when no one was watching, started grabbing pieces I could find and stuffing the bag.

"I only picked up those pieces with white paint on them, proof they were from the East Wall. A lot of the ones just looked like pieces of concrete, but I only picked up those identifiable from the East side. And there were no other Americans there. Heaven only knows what the pieces are they are selling.

"Skating was interfering with wall watching," Young joked, "because I had to get back to the competition. So here I was with a bag of rocks running to catch the bus. They were laughing, not knowing what was in the bag, thinking I had been out shopping. I went back down that night, but there was nothing left at all. Everything was gone! But there were literally thousands of people starting to make the first crossing into the West."

The competition also suffered somewhat. The majority of volunteers did not show up, they just didn't care. They either had left the country or were at least taking the opportunity to visit West Berlin. But nevertheless, the competition went on, and the U.S. won medals in both Ladies and Pairs. After nine exhausting, yet incredible days, the team headed home, each with a piece of the wall hidden away . . . a piece of the East Wall which very few others would ever possess . . . and memories of seeing history unfold.

Smith summed up the emotions of the experience, saying, "I doubt if any one of us will ever again think of our individual liberty as anything less than the cherished treasure which it truly is, or take for granted the intrinsic value and worth of our freedom."

This marks the eleventh such tour of champions, which has become almost a tradition among skaters and enthusiasts alike. For many people it is their only chance of the year to see the top skaters of the world gathered together at one time in a single stunning performance.

Even without the professional names that highlighted last year's tour, this year's has an exciting cast of 29 outstanding performers that guarantees top-flight skating and sheer brilliance on ice. The cast members as announced include: Midori Ito of Japan; Jill Trenary and Kristi Yamaguchi, USA; Patricia Neske, Federal Republic of Germany; and Evelin Grossman, German Democratic Republic, in the Ladies. The male performers are headed by Christopher Bowman and Paul Wylie, USA; Kurt Browning, Canada; Grzegorz Filipowski, Poland; Viktor Petrenko and Alexander Fadeev of the Soviet Union.

3rd LALIQUE TROPHY
Paris, France
November 10-12, 1989

by Jean-Christophe Berlot

Surya Bonaly of France, Mandy Woetzel and Axel Rauschenbach of the German Democratic Republic, Angelika Krylova and Vladimir Leliuk and Viascheslav Zagorodniuk of the Soviet Union had two good reasons to rejoice after this year's Lalique Trophy. First, they won a competition of growing international renown. Second, their prize was a unique piece of art, a truly magnificent crystal masterpiece specially designed and created by Mme. Marie-Claude Lalique, the owner of the famous French manufacturer of crystal Lalique and sponsor of the Trophy.

First to start were the dancers. Americans April Sargent and Russ Witherby were determined to display their unique skills in Paris. They took the leading edge over Krylova and Leliuk, their Russian rivals, in the compulsory Starlight Waltz. The Russians reversed the result in the Samba and took the lead. Krylova and Leliuk were first to skate in the last group. They skated their free program with intense emotion to Bizet's Carmen and won the event.

Second to skate were third-placed Susanna Rahkamo and Petri Kokko, from Finland. They train with Martin Skotnicky (and incidentally the Duchesnays) and are just as willing to leave their imprint on today's ice dancing. They skated to folklore tunes played on the accordion and violin and dressed accordingly. The audience responded warmly to their appealing program and they kept their third place. Their bronze medal was the first one ever awarded to Finnish dancers in an international competition.

Sargent and Witherby contrasted elegantly with them. They displayed their international class and commitment to the ice, winning a well-deserved silver medal. Dominique Yvon and Frederic Palluel of France skated an intricate and very difficult program to "Fire Dance" to take fourth place.

ABROAD

Holly Cook, from the United States, won the original program of the Ladies' competition. In the free, she displayed her talent and character by landing two clean triple Salchows, one of them in combination. She gives a measure of power and achievement in her programs, without which no true class is possible. She missed victory by two judges.

Surya Bonaly, France's little prodigy, started her free program with a fascinating double Axel, taken off right on the spot. Bonaly's athletic capabilities were obvious throughout her program, which included five different triple jumps and beautiful spins. For the first time in years a French skater won an international event and the emotion was tremendous when the "Marseillaise" was played for her in Paris. Third of the competition was Laëtitia Hubert, also from France, ahead of Larissa Zamotina, of the USSR.

There were only five pairs competing this year, yet the field was high quality. Woetzel and Rauschenbach of the German Democratic Republic won easily. Indeed the days of the Lalique were to be dedicated to them, as they learned in Paris, right after their program, that the Berlin Wall had been opened. Second were Isabelle Brasseur and Lloyd Eisler, from Canada, ahead of Radka Kovarikova and René Novotny, from Czechoslovakia. Sharon Carz and Doug Williams, from the United States, had a difficult start but they managed to get back on track. They displayed very artistic moves and promising talent. They finished fourth.

Daniel Doran would certainly not have expected to finish fourth in the Men's competition. Zagorodniuk and he skated the only two clean original programs of the day, with the first landing two triple Axels. The Trophy started rather badly for Grégory Filipowski, from Poland, who was trying to perform two triple Axels as well but fell down on both. In the free, Filipowski managed to pull back his triple Axel and finished second overall. Doran stated to skate with determination, however, he endured a fall on his triple Lutz and flip. He dropped to fourth place. Unexpected third was Norman Proft, from Canada. As for the winner, Zagorodniuk displayed a well-mastered program with two triple Axels.

Katarina Witt, the double Olympic gold medalist, could not make it to Paris as she was in Spain for the shooting of her Carmen movie. Yet three famous crowd pleasers took part in the final exhibitions: Paul and Isabelle Duchesnay skated their world-acclaimed “Dream and Reality” free program again, much to the delight of their Parisian fans. Kurt Browning, the 1989 World champion from Canada, amazed the audience with his new back flip.

Less than a year after the World Championships, skaters, coaches, and officials were delighted to return to Paris. The weather was especially nice, allowing visitors to enjoy Notre Dame and the Eiffel Tower in the haze and golden light of fall. Indeed, Kurt Browning expressed the general feeling by giving his huge bouquet of flowers to Mrs. Lalique right after his last exhibition. Her support and dedication to international skating have once more proved most valuable in Paris.

DEFENDERS DEFEATED IN BRITISH CHAMPIONSHIPS

by Howard Bass

All but one of the four events produced new title winners when the British Championships were held on November 5-8 at Basinstoke, a new rink in southern England.

The dawn of a new national era in the singles was heralded when both crowns were captured at first attempts by the previous season's Junior champions, each seventeen years old.

Welshman Steven Cousins, after trailing fourth in the figures, deposed the title defender, Christian Newberry, with an exciting free skating performance which included four cleanly landed triples, thereby overhauling both Newberry and the third-placed Leigh Yip, who had each led the new champion after the original.

Last to skate, Cousins—no relation to 1980 Olympic champion Robin—had a well-informed crowd roaring him home all the way, such is the charismatic style of his presentation. On this form, he could dominate for several seasons.

Emma Murdoch ended Joanne Conway's four-year women's reign after placing only sixth in the compulsories. “I never dreamed I could win so soon,” she said, but the triumph was well merited because the more experienced Conway and Gina Fulton, who finished second and third, failed to match her all-round ability.

She outpointed each of them twice, in both the original and the long free, owing her success mainly to consistently high double Axels and well-varied spins of high quality.

Conway did well to compete at all. After suffering from a spate of injuries, which curbed her preparation, she skated with pain-killing injections in her take-off foot and bravely managed enough to hold second place, which probably kept her in international contention. A triple Salchow fall almost certainly cost her the title.

Cheryl Peake and Andrew Naylor retained their pairs title with little difficulty, challenged by only two other entrants and in the absence of Lisa and Neil Cushley, Neil having injured a groin during Skate Canada two weeks previously.

This was the fifth consecutive victory for Peake and Naylor, the most since Jennifer and John Nicks won for a sixth time in 1952, and that was only once bettered, when Ethel Muckelt and John Page succeeded nine times way back in 1923-31.

The ice dance title vacated by Sharon Jones and Paul Askham, now professionals, was captured by Lynn Burton and Andrew Place, with Ann Hall and Jason Blomfield runners-up.

Karen Quinn and Alan Abretti had led the eleven competing couples in the compulsory dances, but finished third after a slip impaired their tempo in the set pattern samba.

U.S. COLLECTS MEDALS AT WORLD JUNIORS

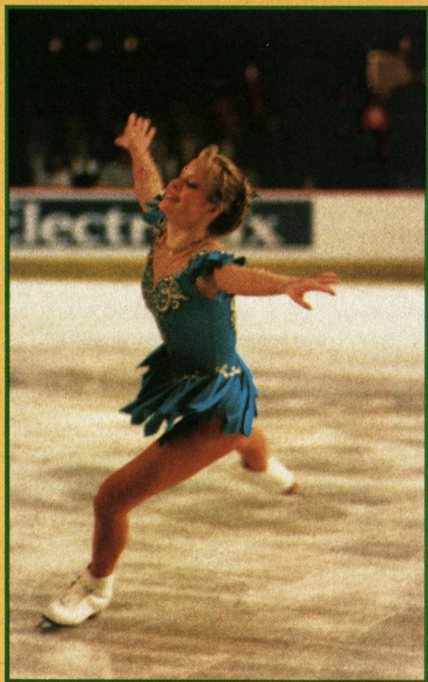

Over one-hundred-twenty athletes from twenty-five countries gathered in Colorado Springs in late November for the 1990 World Junior Figure Skating Championships—the largest number of entries ever for the event. Hosted by the Broadmoor Skating Club for the second time since 1985, the prestigious event featured the world's top skaters between the ages of twelve and eighteen, vying for men's, ladies', pair's, and ice dancing medals.

The weather cooperated with warm days and no snow in the foothills of the Rockies. The event coincided with the opening of the holiday celebrations in the city and at the luxurious Broadmoor Hotel, which added a festive air to the competition throughout the week.

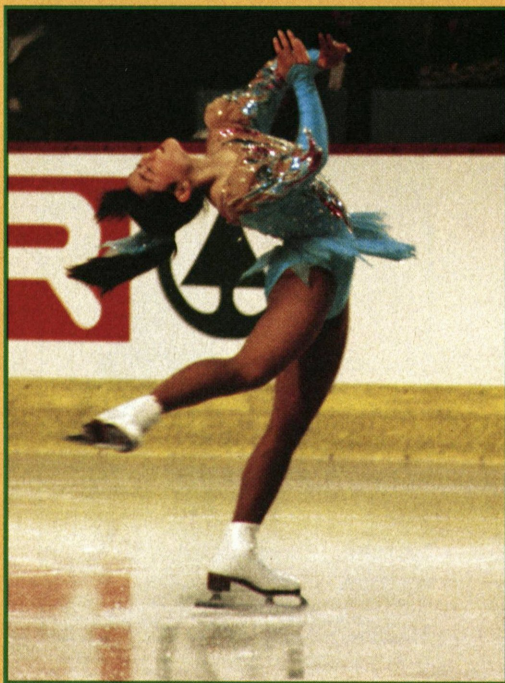

LADIES

The United States team consisted of thirteen athletes, headed by returning 1989 World Junior Ladies' Champion Jessica Mills. Joining Mills in the Ladies' division were Kyoko Ina, of Englewood Cliffs, New Jersey, and Tisha Walker, of Thousand Oaks, California.

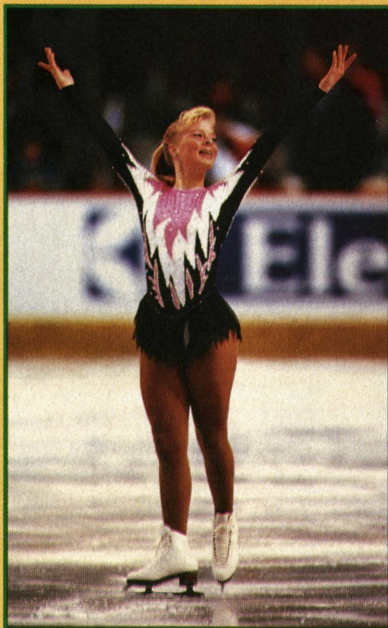

Mills, of Chicago, Illinois, was striving to become the first lady to ever successfully defend her World Junior title. After a second place in figures and third in the original program, going into the final phase of the competition, she was in second place behind Japan's Yuka Sato and within reach of making history. However, with a long program that included only one triple jump attempt, Mills was neither able to catch Sato nor hold off other challengers, and she finished fourth.

"At the beginning of the week, we decided to go with one triple" said Mills. "I couldn't have done a better job. I've been skating like this for the last six months."

Sato, who is coached by her parents (both two-time Olympic figure skaters), held on to the gold medal despite a shaky free program that included a number of mistakes. Sato singled her opening triple Salchow and then fell on a triple toe loop and a double Lutz.

"I wanted to skate much better, much faster" said Sato. "It wasn't my best, but I'm happy (with the results)."

France's jumping sensation Surya Bonaly began her medal quest with a twelfth-place finish in the figures. A second in the original program moved her up to fourth overall and within reach of a medal. Although Bonaly only completed three of the six triple jumps planned in her freestyle program, she won the event and captured the silver medal. Tanja Krienke, German Democratic Republic, after being seventh in figures and fifth in the original, came back with a solid second place in freestyle and edged out Mills by .8 point for the bronze medal.

Ina and Walker ran into difficulties early in the compulsory figures, but both finished strong with impressive performances in the freestyle. Ina was eighth after the compulsories and failed to make up any ground in the original program when she opted for a single Axel instead of a double. She came back with a dynamic long program performance, landing four triples including a triple flip which gave her third in the event and fifth place overall.

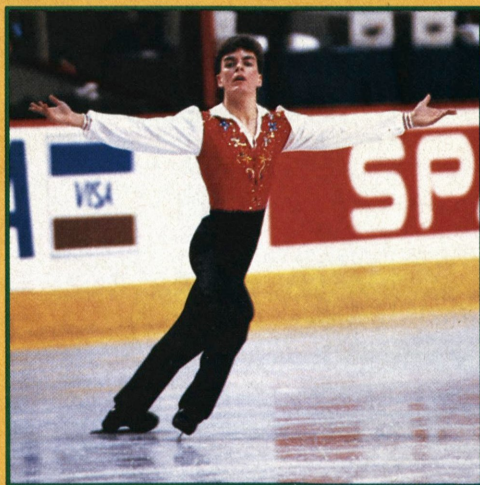

Walker, who was eleventh after the figures, skated an excellent original program, placing fourth, to pull up to fifth overall. She had planned one of the most difficult free programs of the Ladies' event but fell on her opening triple Lutz and then opened up on a triple flip. She had difficulties overcoming the shaky start but still managed to pull off three triples, including a nice loop, to finish seventh out of a field of thirty competitors from twenty-three countries.

MEN

John Baldwin, Jr., of San Diego, California, and Scott Davis, Great Falls, Montana, represented the U.S. well in the Men's division. The Americans took an early one-two lead in the compulsory figures, with Baldwin barely edging out Davis for first place. Patrick-Rene Reinhardt, Federal Republic of Germany, followed in third with Igor Pashkevich of the Soviet Union, fourth.

While the Americans prevailed in the figures, the Soviets dominated in the free skating. Baldwin remained in the lead going into the final phase of the competition after placing third in the original program. However, he was unable to match Pashkevich who had placed second in the original and whose long program included five triple jumps. Alexi Urmanov, seventh in figures and first in the original, also managed to slip by Baldwin with a technically superior long program which featured a solid triple Axel. Pashkevich was awarded the gold medal, Urmanov the silver, and Baldwin took the bronze medal in his first World Junior competition.

A flawed original program dropped Scott Davis into fourth place going into the freestyle. He appeared to lose his momentum, giving a shaky performance in the long with falls on a triple loop and triple toe loop. A nice triple Lutz and triple toe loop/double toe loop combination earned him fifth in the long and fifth overall.

PAIRS

Three-time World Junior competitors and 1989 U.S. Junior Pairs Champions, Jennifer Heurlin and John Frederiksen headed the U.S. pair's contingent along with newcomers Aimee Offner and Brian Helgenberg. Heurlin, of Glendale Heights, Illinois, and Frederiksen, of Arlington Heights, Illinois, were attempting to become only the second U.S. pair team to win the World Junior title.

The Soviets have dominated the event since its beginning in 1978, winning nine times in twelve years. Unfortunately for the Americans, the Soviets continued their streak, with Natalia Krestianinova and Alexei Torchinski, second in the original program, coming back to barely beat out teammates Svetlana Pristav and Vladislav Tkachenko, first in the original and second in the freestyle, for the gold medal. Despite their first place in the original, there was a significant error in the program when Tkachenko singled out on side-by-side double Axels, but because of the viewing angle, it was missed by most judges.

Competing in their last Junior level competition, and on their home ice (both are members of the Broadmoor Skating Club), Heurlin and Frederiksen had only one thing on their minds.

“Our goal here was to get a medal” said Heurlin.

Their military theme original program showed both individual and pair strengths but was marred by a fall on the side-by-side double Axels. Nonetheless confident, they presented an action-packed free program that included perfect side-by-side double Axels and their trademark lateral twist to capture the bronze medal.

“It was great having the American audience behind us” said Heurlin later, “and this was our first 5.6.”

Aimee Offner, of Norristown, Pennsylvania, and Brian Helgenberg, of Philadelphia, made an impressive international debut at the World Juniors, capturing sixth place in both the original

DANCE

The ice dancing event provided some of the most exciting moments of the competition. A new Soviet team, Marina Anisina and Ilia Averbukh, easily swept all three phases of the competition with their innovative style, speed, and fluidity, winning both the crowd and the gold medal. Fellow Soviets Elena Kustarova and Sergei Romashkin earned the silver medal, and Canada's Marie France Dubreuil and Bruno Yvars rose to take the bronze after a fourth-place start in the compulsories.

In only their third competition together, Beth Buhl, of Federal Way, Washington, and Neale Smull, of Wilmington, Delaware, were the top American finishers in dance. The couple placed seventh in the compulsories and the OSP and sixth in the free dance to finish seventh overall out of a field of nineteen competitors from twelve countries. Only together since last spring, the two have a bright future, and their On the Town free dance was richly interpreted and highly creative.

The brother and sister team of Katherine and Ben Williamson, from Colorado Springs, placed tenth in the compulsories, ninth in the OSP, and ninth in the free dance for a final tenth place before their hometown crowd.

Next year the World Junior Championships move to Budapest, Hungary, marking the first time that country will host the event.

Precision Review

remain with them forever. We still laugh over the broken zippers, the lost boot covers, the disappearing skate guards, and the rest. On every trip we have managed to become lost at least once. We managed to get lost in a mall on one trip, and couldn't find the ice! Usually we discover new sights while we wander around, finding our way. We have used every mode of transportation: car, bus, airplane, train. On our next trip we're actually traveling on a boat! As we get ready to travel to Sweden and Finland for our first International competition, our excitement is building. Just to participate has been beyond our wildest dreams. Now our dreams have become reality.

As precision skating continues to grow it will become even more exciting. If your arena or club doesn't currently have a team, express interest in forming one. Both the USFSA and the ISIA have local competitions which teams can enter. Our teams participate in both using the same routines and music. The rules are more lenient in ISIA concerning music and costumes, so if you use the USFSA precision skating rules you can still skate in ISIA competitions without any changes. Your team may be classified in a different division, but that's about it. If you use ISIA precision skating rules, you may need to make some changes in the duration of your music and your costume before you compete in an USFSA competition. Remember — precision skating as a team is the same no matter what organization you belong to.

Precision skating strengthens not only individual skills, but adds confidence to many youngsters. Precision skating is a sport in which all skaters can excel. The rewards are many, both for the skaters and the coach. So are the headaches! As I begin my third season with these teams I see many new faces. I also see many skaters who would have quit skating had it not been for precision teams. We look forward to seeing you at the next competition!

NOW THE MAGIC LIVES FOREVER!

Now you can watch the most incredible athlete/performers in skating history on videocassette, as they turn the ice into gold!

Start with the grace, form and sheer beauty of dance. Add the skill, challenge and excitement of sport. And combine all that with the suspense, tension and pressure of international competition. That's what modern figure skating is all about!

Watch as gold medals, superstars, and sports legends are born!

Recall the delicate art of Peggy Fleming. Experience the courage of Dorothy Hamill, giving one of the great performances of her career just moments after an unsympathetic crowd brought her to tears.

And there's much, much more, including awesome performances by Irina Rodnina, John Curry, Robin Cousins, Scott Hamilton, Tai Babilonia and Randy Gardner, Brian Boitano and Brian Orser.

Here are three decades of Magic Memories on Ice to look back on, be inspired by and swept up into again and again!

To Subscribers:

Unfortunately, the recent issues of Skating have been late, and we wish to apologize for the inconvenience to our subscribers.

We have undertaken a new printing method with a new printer and a new mailing house. The start-up of such new operations, as is often the case, has caused unexpected delays. The magazine is also being mailed now from Denver instead of the southeast which may cause a little longer delivery in some areas.

We assure you that all measures are being taken to get production back on schedule and for you to receive each issue on time. We thank you for your patience and understanding.

Corrections: The photograph of Jeanne Miley and Michael Verlich on page 25 of the December issue was taken by Ingrid Butt. Also, the name of Siriyaporn Jarasviroj of Thailand who finished in 30th place in the Ladies' event was inadvertently omitted from the World Junior results.

ferent styles of persons, countries, appearance. Some skaters like Toller Cranston have a very personal style that comes through no matter what music is used.

If a skater is doing Scheherazade and looks like she is skating Madame Butterfly—it is wrong. Or if one skates to a jazz piece and it looks like a ballet, it could be wrong. If you are skating to a Hungarian Gypsy Dance and do all jazz movements, it would be wrong. It is important to know the difference in style. Each program has a style.

In the training, you must work on a standard style at the beginning. Then, as the skater progresses, style should be rehearsed in every lesson along with the technique.

You must prevent bad habits. These are the most difficult things to get rid of. You must teach in such a way that you prevent them, such as holding the back up, having correct hip placement, turned out legs at the hips, pointed toes, and leg extension. If the stress is on the right places, and things are done correctly, it puts the minimum amount of strain on the body.

You have to follow the laws of physics. You have a mass in space and you have levers, like a cantilever structure on a hill. There must be enough weight in the back to hold it, or the front if you are going back (as in lay-over camels). When you stand on one leg and the other leg is up in second position (90 degrees), you are in a cantilever. That is why hip placement is so important.

You will find tremendous improvement and progress in your student if the following four items are included in some way in every lesson that you give: stretching, strengthening, defining line and form, and coordination.
