BOBEK, LIPINSKI MAKE COACHING CHANGES

Reigning U.S. ladies champion Nicole Bobek has announced that she is departing the Detroit stable of Richard Callaghan and has begun training in Las Vegas, Nev., under the direction of Barbara Roles Williams.

Bobek's Dec. 18 announcement as she was touring with "The Nutcracker On Ice" comes less than one month before she is to take to the ice in San Jose to defend her national title at the 1996 State Farm U.S. Figure Skating Championships. The move marks Bobek's ninth coaching change in as many years.

"Barbara is someone I have trained well with in the past; someone I believe can take me to the next level," Bobek said in a prepared statement. "I certainly appreciate the work Richard Callaghan did with me, but we both agreed it was in my best interests to make this change at this time."

In another recent coaching change, 1995 U.S. Junior silver medalist Tara Lipinski of Sugarland, Texas, has departed Wilmington, Del., and coach Jeff DiGregario. Ironically, the 13-year-old Lipinski, who will be the youngest competitor in the 18-skater field of senior ladies at the upcoming U.S. Championships, will fill the void left by Bobek as she is now training with Callaghan in Bloomfield Hills, Mich.

PSA POSTPONES 12TH U.S. OPEN PROFESSIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP

The recently postponed 12th U.S. Open Professional Figure Skating Championships, originally slated for Dec. 1-3, 1995, in Richmond, Va., has not yet been rescheduled, but organizers insist the show will go on.

The competition was postponed in early November due to "circumstances totally beyond our control," PSA Executive Director Carole Shulman said in announcing the postponement, adding that "it is the PSA's intention to continue to produce this event for many years to come. The Open will go on."

In a report from The Sports Network wire service, Shulman cited the "11th hour withdrawals" of sponsors as the reason.

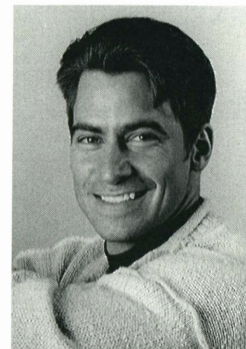

The PSA was still in the process of determining makeup dates as of press time.

RIEDELL SIGNS NIELSEN

U.S. men's bronze medalist Aren Nielsen of Kansas City, Mo., is appearing in a variety of promotional materials on behalf of Riedell Shoes, Inc. He is the first male figure skater signed to endorse the boot-maker's line of products.

Nielsen, who is preparing for his eighth consecutive run at the U.S. senior men's title, is featured in Riedell's product catalog, in magazine advertising and as part of a promotional poster being distributed to skating retailers nationwide.

"Riedell and Aren Nielsen make a perfect team," said Dan Riegelman, vice president of the Red Wing, Minn., company. "Our customers are children of all ages and adults too. Aren appeals to the entire spectrum."

BOBEK, THOMAS TO JOIN IN FEB. 1 "WOMEN IN SPORTS DAY" CELEBRATION

Reigning U.S. ladies champion Nicole Bobek and 1988 Olympic bronze medalist Debi Thomas are among the many prominent female athletes that are scheduled to be in Washington, D.C., on Feb. 1 to mark the celebration of the 10th Annual National Girls and Women in Sports Day (NGWSD).

Established in 1986 by Congress, NGWSD was created to acknowledge the achievements of women in sports and to highlight the importance of sports and fitness for girls and women of all ages.

Bobek and Thomas will be joined by several other well-known female athletes including tennis greats Billie Jean King and Martina Navratilova and two-time Olympic gold medalist swimmer Donna de Varona to join in the Day's activities.

The five collaborating organizations that promote events celebrating the day nationwide are: Girl Scouts; Girls Incorporated; National Association for Girls and Women in Sport; Women's Sports Foundation and the YWCA of the USA.

"FAIRY TALES ON ICE" TO HIT VIDEO STORES IN '96

The first two titles in a new original series of figure skating adaptations of classic fairy tales are slated to hit video store shelves during the coming year, the collaborators on the project announced recently.

Entitled "Fairy Tales On Ice," the series will feature 1994 Olympic silver medalist Nancy Kerrigan and other internationally renowned skaters in five, 60-90 minute programs narrated by well-known celebrities. The series is being produced and distributed by ABC Video in conjunction with PS/StarGames and On Ice, Inc. ■

CAREER MOVES

KRALL

As National Program Director, Krall will be responsible for creating athlete development programs and training camps, coordinating activities with appropriate USFSA committees and working with adjunct organizations such as the U.S. Olympic Committee, the Professional Skaters Association (PSA) and the Ice Skating Institute of America.

Krall currently serves on the USFSA Board of Directors as a coaching representative and is a member of both the USFSA

Coaches Committee and Singles and Pairs Committee. She also has been a member of the PSA Board of Directors (1980-82, 1992-95). As the PSA chair on the USFSA Singles and Pairs committee, Krall was instrumental in developing and implementing the USFSA's "Moves in the Field" test program.

A three-time U.S. medalist (1963-65), Krall trained under Edi Scholdan and, following Scholdan's death in the 1961 World Team plane crash, under Carlo Fassi at the Broadmoor World Arena in Colorado Springs, Colo. She placed seventh at the 1964 Olympic Winter Games and earned a fourth-place finish at the 1965 World Championships before retiring from competitive figure skating.

Since then, she has been a figure skating instructor at the Broadmoor World Arena and the Colorado Springs World Arena and Ice Hall, coaching numerous international and national competitors including 1994 U.S. junior champion Jere Michael and national figures champions Kelly Ann Szmurlo (1991-1993) and Eric Schultz (1994). Krall will retire from teaching upon assuming her new full-time duties following the 1996 State Farm U.S. Figure Skating Championships this month.

Krall and her husband David have three daughters and reside in Colorado Springs.

Peter Martell, Vice President of the Ice Skating Institute of America (ISIA) and Chair of the USFSA Rink Management Committee, has resigned his position as Vice President and General Manager of Ice Chalets, Inc., to form his own company, Sports Management Services.

Martell joined Ice Chalets as manager of the Houston Galleria Chalet in 1978 and served in a variety of capacities before being appointed President in June 1993. Instrumental in the chain's rapid expansion during the 1980s, Martell coordinated the opening and operation of New York's Wollman and Lasker rinks for the Trump Organization. Following the purchase of Ice Chalets, Inc., from International Broadcasting Corp.

by Recreation World in March 1994, Martell continued to oversee the day-to-day operations of the company.

Martell's new company, Sports Management Services, is an independent recreation management, training and consulting firm specializing in the ice skating industry. Among the services it offers are: developing business plans and budgets; designing and scheduling revenue-generating programs; creating internal and external sales and marketing programs; analyzing income and expense controls; recruiting, training and scheduling personnel; and installing operating policies and procedures. Sports Management Services is based in Pasadena, Calif.

The decision to make a coaching change is seldom a simple one. A very close relationship exists between skater and coach, disrupting this relationship is difficult for both. It is important to talk to your child about a possible change and get his input. Even very young children can have insight into what they need from and expect of their coaches.

Assess the situation carefully. Many parents wrongly assume that because a coach has not passed a certain test level, he/she cannot teach at that level. This is when you hear Mrs. Pusher proclaim to all, "Suzie has outgrown Linda." Teaching credentials are more important than personal performance achievement. It may give you great satisfaction to say that your child is coached by a national competitor, but winning titles alone does not necessarily prepare one to teach. Coaches need special skills of understanding and communication that supersede the ability to do a triple Lutz.

Likewise a coach's ability may be questioned if the parent decides that his child has stopped improving. It is important to define "improving" and to understand why the skater is not meeting this definition. Improvement means different things at different times. It can mean polishing a skill, learning a new one, passing a test or winning a competition. Be sure your goals for improvement are the same as your child's. Inadequate coaching is one of many possible reasons for lack of improvement. Physical growth spurts, illness, outside pressures and overly ambitious goals can all thwart an individual's improvement.

Parents also will consider changing coaches when a skater becomes "stuck" on an element. If this happens, instead of destroying a team, consider adding to it. Discuss this problem with your coach and suggest that your child take a few lessons on the element from another coach. Many coaches work well together this way; often seeing a new approach will be just the thing to get the skater back on track.

Coaches want their students to be successful. Some specialize in the young skater, providing a sound foundation and developing the positive attitudes that will support the skater throughout his/her career. They usually know when it is time to pass the skater on to someone else and will help you choose the new coach.

If you are considering a coaching change, there must be clear and open communication. Set up a meeting with the coach in a private place to discuss your concerns. Think through what you want to talk about and use a list to be sure all topics are covered. It is important to remain calm and business-like. This is a time for exchanging information and could very well clear up the situation without a change being made.

Sometimes changes must be made. Careful selection of a coach can minimize these changes. When it is necessary, inform the coach and end the relationship on a professional basis. If there are outstanding bills, make arrangements for them to be paid.

Out of respect for the situation, do not fire a coach one night and begin lessons with someone new the next morning. Consider a few days without lessons to allow the skater and coach to adjust to the change. Remember, your child will still have frequent contact with the coach and his other students. It will take a while for your child and the new coach to adjust to each other. Give the relationship time to develop and plan to meet with the coach to review goals and progress. ■

2ND TROPHÉE DE FRANCE

BY JEAN-CHRISTOPHE BERLOT

The third stage of the newly created Champions Series of Figure Skating — The 2nd Trophée de France, Nov. 15-18, in Bordeaux, France — proved to be as successful as its American and Canadian counterparts, providing a responsive audience with a world-class competition in all four events.

MEN

World Champion Elvis Stojko of Canada was a clear favorite of the men's event. Stojko took a clear lead in the short program with a triple Axel to triple toe loop combination. Everyone then thought that the competition was over for Eric Millot of France and Ilya Kulik of Russia, second and third respectively heading into the free skate. It was not.

Stojko skated his free program before his main rivals. After a clear opening triple flip, Stojko singled his triple Axel and doubled his planned quadruple toe loop. Later he stumbled again on another triple Axel attempt and fell on a triple Salchow.

"The mistake on the first Axel disturbed me a lot," Stojko said later. "Still I tried to hang on to my program until the end, so it was okay. This is the first competition of the season, you try new things in a new program, you cannot skate perfect every day."

Indeed, the world champion pulled off a fantastic triple Axel to triple toe loop combination and a triple Lutz to save his program. The overall result was nonetheless a big surprise — Stojko finished third.

In spite of omitted combinations and shaky landing on his two triple Axels, Millot's routine to cowboy themes brought his home audience to their feet. He finished in second place overall.

With Stojko and Millot leaving room at the top of the standings, the 18-year-old Kulik seized the opportunity in his free skate to music from Aladdin. Dressed in an all green costume of the title character, the reigning European champion skated to near perfection. His combinations included a triple Axel to double toe, triple flip to triple toe and he sprinkled in each of the five major triple jumps again. His program was undoubtedly the most consistent of the field. Kulik won the Trophée and took yet another major step up in the world hierarchy.

Skating in between Stojko's Last Mohican, Millot's cowboy and Kulik's Aladdin, Damon Allen of the United States elected to skate to a more classical theme, that suited well his elegant line. He stumbled twice on a triple Axel attempt, but pulled off an otherwise flawless performance and ended fourth overall.

LADIES

Current world champions indeed had a hard time in Bordeaux.

Just like Stojko in the men's event, Chen Lu of China was favored to win. Unlike Stojko, however, she lost all her chances early on, when she singled the planned triple Lutz of her combination in the short program. That mistake turned into a disaster when she singled a subsequent triple toe loop. She left the ice devastated and was unwilling to comment on what led her to an unpredictable seventh place after the short program.

Skating first of all main contenders in the free, Chen Lu however quickly recomposed herself. Her magnificent program to Rachmaninov's second concerto will remain as a special treat for all skating enthusiasts.

"I had nothing to lose, really," she said after the contest was over. "I arrived late in Bordeaux coming from China, I was not feeling well with the time lag, yesterday I felt sleepy while skating. Yet this was my first competition in France, and I wanted to skate well for the French audience." Chen won this section and finished second overall.

Returning to the ice after a one-year stint in the ineligible ranks, Josée Chouinard of Canada did not let the pressure interfere with her programs, as she used to earlier in her competitive career. She won the short program and her second place in the free skate led her to a much-deserved victory.

"Two years ago, after all the failures I endured in amateur competitions, I could not trust myself anymore," Chouinard conceded. "Now, a new Josée is back to reach a World podium."

France's Surya Bonaly could not overcome her problems with her skates. Her boots and blades are still linked in a quite unconven-

BY KLAUS-REINHOLD KANY

The inaugural tour of the Champions Series of Figure Skating made its fourth of five stops in Gelsenkirchen, Germany, site of the 1995 Nations Cup competition. This marked the seventh time that Gelsenkirchen had played host to the prestigious international competition, but none of the previous six carried the drama or excitement that this competition delivered as the next to last competition in the Champions Series.

Event organizers were pleased with the whole I.S.U.-sanctioned event because there were no serious incidents — on- or off-the-ice. Most events in the relatively small rink were sold out, despite the present-day lack of high-profile German skating stars. More than 20 media from the USA were on-hand, while Fox Television and several European television stations transmitted the competition all over the world.

LADIES

With wins at Sudafed Skate America and SunLife Skate Canada in the past three weeks, Michelle Kwan of the United States entered the competition as the early favorite and garnered her fair share of attention from fans and media alike.

The 15-year-old phenom from Torrance, Calif., performed a clean short program with a triple Lutz combination, a wonderful spiral sequence and a good interpretation of her flamenco music good for marks ranging from 5.7 to 5.8. In her free program, she did five clean triples and only one shaky Lutz. Many people who knew her from the year before were astonished how much she had improved in speed and style.

Right after her performance she said in an Eurosport TV interview: "My family helped me for the costume and the hair style. Everybody has put in some ideas, especially my sister. I said yes or no to their ideas."

It is not easy for a 15-year-old girl to interpret the exotic Lady Salome, but she did it in a mature style. "My choreographer Lori Nichols helped me a lot in between the elements," she added. "And my coach Frank Carroll has always been there when I needed him. He helped me to build confidence. That is very important in skating, because without confidence you can't do very much in skating."

With her victory, she got the maximum 24 points and qualified for the Champion Series Final in Paris, Feb. 23-26.

Right after the exhibition she appeared on Germany's most popular Saturday night sport show (channel ZDF) for a 15-minute interview about her whole life. While her music was being played and the spectators could see the program, she described all her elements.

For the first time in years, Maria Butyrskaya from Russia managed to do all the triples she can do in practice, in the short and the long program. Delivering two excellent performances with clean jumps and a presentation with a lot of sparkle, she won the silver medal and almost matched Kwan's marks. Two of the seven judges even gave her the first place.

The U.S. champion Nicole Bobek performed better than at Skate America and the Starlight Challenge in New York, but still had problems with some of her jumps, especially the two Lutzes at the beginning of both programs. She did no flip, doubled the loop and won the bronze medal mainly because of her good presentation. Germany's Tanja Szewczenko competed in her first competition after a series of injuries this year. She showed a promising style, but not all of her triple jumps were clean.

MEN

For the men's competition, the experts had predicted a duel between Todd Eldredge and reigning Olympic champion Alexei Urmanov, but the showdown never materialized.

Instead, Ukrainian Viacheslav Zagorodniuk was the leader after the short having performed a brilliant combination of triple Axel and triple toe loop. A good free program with seven triples, among them two Axels, helped Zagorodniuk win, although he was only second in this part.

Looking to repeat his performance that earned him a win at Skate Canada earlier in the month, Urmanov doubled the required Lutz in the short and settled for a fourth-place standing.

tional way, with pieces of wood placed to compensate for the poor alignment. Bonaly fell on the triple Lutz of her short program and had some difficulties again in the free, especially with her spins. She was still quite satisfied with her third place overall.

Young Irina Slutskaya of Russia proved she would be a strong contender for the competitions ahead. She finished a strong fourth, ahead of Tonia Kwiatkowski of the United States.

PAIRS

Jenni Meno and Todd Sand of the United States, did not win in Bordeaux, however, their unison and harmony won them the hearts of many.

The newlyweds were second after the short program. In the free skating, they managed to land all of their moves and their trademark lifts were undoubtedly the strongest of the field. Todd had some difficulties, however, with his individual jumps and they had to settle for the bronze.

Latvians Jelena Bereznaiia and Oleg Shliakhov won both the short and the free program with decisive parallel as well as thrown triple jumps. Their performance this time was flawless, unlike that at Skate America three weeks earlier. Second overall were Russians Oksana Kazakova and Artur Dmitriev.

DANCE

Although the dance event provided a brilliant demonstration of ice dancing, there was not much of a competition for the gold medal. Current Olympic and World Champions Oksana Gritschuk and Evgeny Platov were out of reach even for the best ice dancers gathered in Bordeaux.

The French audience was of course delighted by the performance of their newly crowned national champions, Marina Anissina and Gwendal Peizerat. Not only did Anissina and Peizerat take a solid silver medal, their performance to South American music was full of energy and enthusiasm. Ukrainians Irina Romanova and Igor Yaroshenko completed the podium.

With still two stages yet to run (in Germany and in Japan), the best skaters of the world showed in Bordeaux that they are now getting ready for the major competitions of the season. Given the energy they have invested every week in the Champions Series, there is little doubt that the competitions leading up to the Champions Series Final and the 1996 World Championships will reach the highest skating standards. ■

Nations Cup

The next day he delivered an excellent free program with all triples, the classical style for which he is known (he used operetta music by Emmerich Kalman) and a smiling presentation. All judges put him in first place in the free and gave him 5.8s and 5.9s, but because of the mistake in the short, he managed only the silver medal.

The U.S. champion Eldredge could not repeat the brilliance of his performance at Skate America and seemed to have some problems with the time lag. He doubled the toe loop in the short as well as the Lutz and Salchow in the long. His technical difficulties cost him a shot at the gold or silver and he had to be content with the third place.

The United States' Scott Davis turned in a flawless short with excellent spins and was ranked in second place. But in the long he successfully completed only four clean triples, singling the flip and falling on the loop. His shortcomings in presentation coupled with the technical problems left him in fourth place.

The German champion Andrej Vlatchenko, who competed for Latvia until 1994, was more impressive than he had been at Skate America and Skate Canada, and placed fifth.

The ice dancing competition was a full triumph for Coach Natalia Linichuk's couples.

As everybody expected, they won all three medals and all of the prize money. All of them used folk music in their free program. Spectators in Gelsenkirchen saw excellent programs performed to Russian (Anjelika Krylova/Oleg Ovsiannikov), Greek (Irina Romanova/Igor Yaroshenko) and Italian (Irina Lobacheva/Ilia Averbukh) folk music.

The United States' Renee Roca and Gorsha Sur were fourth with an exciting Paso Doble and last year's impressive free program. Compatriots Amy Webster and Ron Kravette were pleased with their 10th place. Their artistic impression is excellent, but they seemed to lack the difficult steps for a top position.

PAIRS

Winners of the pairs competition were Russians Marina Eltsova and Andrei Bushkov, four-time winners of Skate America.

They skated the best performance of their life. Last summer they had chosen Natalia Pavlova as their new coach, because their former coach Igor Moskwin stressed only the elements and had neglected style. Their new, more romantic style and very difficult elements — including three triple throws — were suc-

The German couple Mandy Wötzel and Ingo Steuer also were in good shape, though both underwent knee surgery only six weeks before. Their new free program to music by the Rolling Stones was choreographed by the Finnish ice dancers Susanna Rahkamo and Petri Kokko, who mixed pairs and dance elements into one program.

The United States' Kyoko Ina and Jason Dungjen delivered two good, but not flawless programs, but could not manage a medal in the strong field. Compatriots Cheryl Marker and Todd Price gained some much-needed experience in a talented field and finished 11th ahead of Canadians Allison Gaylor and David Pelletier.

A sad topic in Gelsenkirchen was the sudden death of 28-year-old Olympic Gold Medalist Sergei Grinkov in Lake Placid two days prior to the Nations Cup. At the beginning of the exhibition, the announcer asked the audience to observe a moment of silence in remembrance of the late Russian skater who was well-known in Germany. Like many people throughout the world, most Germans regard Ekaterina Gordeeva and Grinkov as one of the best pairs in the history of skating. ■

HEATHER FONS

Heather, 11, a member of the Southwest Michigan SC, in Kalamazoo, Mich., placed first in First Test Figures, second in Pre-Juvenile Compulsory and third in Pre-Juvenile Free Skating events at the Ann Arbor Springtime Invitational in April 1995. Heather is coached three days a week by Karen Baldwin. She has passed the First Figure, Pre-Juvenile Free Skating, Pre-Juvenile Moves in the Field and Juvenile Free Skating Tests. A sixth-grade student at Urbandale Elementary School, Heather won her school's 1995 National Geography Bee and also received the Oscar Brady American Legion School Award for leadership and academic achievement in a city-wide ceremony. Off-ice, she enjoys in-line skating and playing softball.

CHRISTOPHER NELSON

The skating performances at the 1994 World Championships inspired Christopher, 15, to begin skating lessons. A member of the Metropolitan FSC in New Hyde Park, N.Y., Christopher is coached by Dawn Smith and trains four to five days a week at three different rinks. He placed first in the Trophy Cup competition in the Nassau County Figure Skating Championship and second at the Park Mini Free Skating Championships. Recently, Christopher passed the Pre-Preliminary Moves in the Field and Free Skating Tests. He and his partner, Peri Brodsky, have been skating pairs since August 1995. They practice two days a week and take a pair lesson on Fridays. The couple hopes to take the Juvenile Pair Test within the next two months. Christopher works on off-ice conditioning with his coach and on off-ice lifts with Peri. A sophomore at the Archbishop Molloy High School in Briarwood, N.Y., Christopher plans to pursue a career in skating either as a professional skater or as a coach. His favorite skater is Todd Eldredge.

Three members of the Hill family of Chicago, Ill., and their ice dance partners will be skating in the finals of their respective divisions — two at the 1996 State Farm U.S. Figure Skating Championships in San Jose, Calif., this month and one in the 1996 Kodak Junior Olympic Championships in Northbrook, Ill., in April. Elizabeth Hill, 13, and her partner Eleazar (Eli) Lieb, 19, will compete in Junior Dance while Katharine Hill, 12, and her partner Benjamin Agosto, 14, will skate in Novice Dance at the U.S. Championships. James August (Augie) Hill, 10, and his partner Siena Bendixen-park, 10, will compete in Juvenile Dance at the Junior Olympics. This will be Elisabeth Hill's second appearance at the U.S. Championships having competed last year in Junior Dance with Richard Peal. The Hills and their parents, Rod and Judy, are members of the Skokie Valley SC in Wilmette, Ill. Although the Hills also skate at other rinks in the area, they consider the Robert Crown Ice Center in Evanston, Ill., to be their home rink as it is where the children have grown up skating in two ice shows a year under the direction of Sandra Cole. The Hill children and their partners learned the fundamentals of ice dancing from coach Jeremy Lieb and are now coached by both Lieb and Kirk Langseth. It may not be long before another Hill appears on the national scene — as Charlie, age 9, is now learning his preliminary dances!■
