Lipinski selected Sports Woman of the Year

1997 World Champion becomes third figure skater to win prestigious USOC award

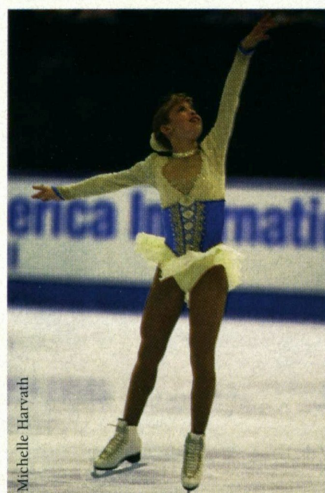

Current U.S. and World champion Tara Lipinski of Sugar Land, Texas, has been selected as the 1997 U.S. Olympic Committee's SportsWoman of the Year.

Lipinski was chosen from among more than 45 female athlete nominees including soccer standout Mia Hamm, track and field World champion Marion Jones, and Olympic swimmer Jenny Thompson.

"What a great honor to receive this award," Lipinski said. "When I was first told that I won it I asked, 'Really? Me?' The list of athletes that have previously won this award is very impressive, and now to see my name included, too, is incredibly exciting."

Lipinski recorded a stellar 1997 season capturing the "triple crown" of figure skating by winning the 1997 State Farm U.S. Figure Skating Championships in February, the Champions Series Final and the World Figure Skating Championships both in March.

She also became the youngest U.S. and World champion ever at the age of 14. Lipinski is known for her element-packed programs including her signature triple loop/triple loop jump combination. The now 15-year-old trains at the Detroit SC in Bloomfield Hills, Mich., under the direction of Richard Callaghan.

The USOC SportsWoman and SportsMan of the Year awards have been presented annually to the top overall male and female athlete from within the USOC member organizations since 1974. Voters for the prestigious award include members of the national media, the USOC Board of Directors and Athletes' Advisory Council.

Lipinski becomes only the third figure skater and second ladies' singles skater to win the USOC award. Two-time World champion and Olympic silver medalist Linda Fratianne won it in 1977, and Scott Hamilton, four-time World champion and 1984 Olympic gold medalist, was honored in 1981.

U.S. lands four in Champion Series Final; Kwan forced to withdraw due to injury

After the six Champions Series events were complete and the entries for the Dec 19-21 Champions Series Final in Munich, Germany, were set, American skaters earned four of the spots allotted.

LIPINSKI

Michelle Kwan and Tara Lipinski earned spots in the Final. Kwan led all ladies' scorers with 24, tied with Tanja Szewczenko of Germany. Szewczenko won two events after 19 months away from the sport due to injury.

Lipinski tied for third in ladies' scoring with 18.

Joining Szewczenko, Kwan and Lipinski at the Final are three Russians: Irina Slutskaya, Maria Butyrskaya and Elena Sokolova.

Todd Eldredge fought through an injury to win Skate America, but was bothered by it at Trophy Lalique. His performance was good enough to earn him the fifth qualifying spot among men

KWAN UPDATE

Still recovering from a minor stress fracture to the second toe on her left foot, Michelle Kwan withdrew on Dec. 11 from the Champions Series Final, Dec. 19-21, in Munich, Germany.

"Michelle's rehabilitation is going very well and there is noticeable improvement in her condition," Kwan's coach Frank Carroll said. "However, she is still experiencing some slight pain and her doctor has recommended that she not compete in Munich in order to allow the injury to completely heal."

Kwan is expected to fully recover in time for the '98 State Farm U.S. Figure Skating Championships, Jan. 4-11, in Philadelphia, Pa.

with 17 Series points.

Canada's Elvis Stojko and Russia's Alexei Yagudin each won two events to tie for the top qualifying spot with 24 points.

Ilia Kulik and Evgeni Plushenko, both of Russia, and Igor Paskevitch of Azerbaijan also qualified for the Final.

Americans were shut out of pairs entries in the Final. Kyoko Ina & Jason Dungjen's 12 Series points were good enough for seventh place.

Three Russian pairs qualified: Marina Eltsova & Andrei Bushkov, Elena Berezhnaya & Anton Sikharulidze and Evgenia Shiskova & Vadim Naumov. Also qualifying were Mandy Wötzel & Ingo Steuer of Germany and Xue Shen & Hongbo Zhao of China.

An American dance team qualified for the Final for the first time.

Winning at Skate America and a second-place finish at Skate Canada earned Elizabeth Punsalan & Jerod Swallow a spot in their final year as eligible competitors.

The Americans tied for third with Canadians Shae-Lynn Bourne & Victor

Kraatz. Tied for first with two event wins each were Oksana Grishuk & Evgeni Platov and Angelika Krylova & Oleg Ovsiannikov, both of Russia. Also qualifying is Marina Anissina & Gwendal Peizerat of France.

Long revered as one of this nation's "cradles of democracy," Philadelphia will again serve as the site offer a historic gathering as more than 300 of best figure skaters in the United States converge on the City of Brotherly Love, Jan. 4-11, to compete at the 1998 State Farm U.S. Figure Skating Championships.

With 15 U.S. titles in skating's three competitive levels — championship, junior and novice — and nine berths on the 1998 U.S. Olympic and World Teams (three ladies' singles, two men's singles, two pairs and two dance) to be decided, the week-long competition is one that will surely go down in the annals of U.S. figure skating history.

For those in attendance at the 1998 State Farm U.S. Figure Skating Championships, the event promises to provide a unique look at skating's glorious past, present and future. Set in the ultra-modern, state-of-the-art CoreStates Center in downtown Philadelphia, the Jan. 6 Opening Celebration will include a nostalgic look back at the 1968 U.S. Championships — the last time the U.S. Championships were held in Philadelphia. Other activities slated throughout the week include the naming of the Chevrolet Lumina/USFSA Scholastic Honors Team, the introduction of the 1998 class of inductees into the U.S. Figure Skating Hall of Fame and the awarding of the Chevrolet Perfect 6.0 Award to the competitor(s) who earn the most 6.0s during the week. The Championships will conclude with the Chevrolet Skating Spectacular on Sunday, Jan. 11, where the 1998 U.S. Olympic and World Teams will receive a rousing and patriotic sendoff.

For the millions of skating fans throughout the country who will be watching from their homes, ABC Sports, ESPN and ESPN2 will combine to offer more than 12 hours of television coverage (see schedule below) from Philadelphia — an unprecedented amount.

In this issue, Skating takes a look at how the championship-level events are shaping up heading into this all-important Olympic year along with a complete listing of all of the competitors expected to compete at the 1998 State Farm U.S. Figure Skating Championships.

With the World Champions of the past two years among the field of 19 Championship Ladies' competitors, the central questions in everyone's minds seem to be: In which order will the two favorites finish and who among a handful of talented challengers will fill out the podium and grab that third and final spot on the U.S. Olympic and World Team?

Unfortunately for armchair prognosticators, events of the early season have provided more questions and few answers.

For 1997 U.S. and World Champion Tara Lipinski and 1996 U.S. and World Champion Michelle Kwan, the Road to Nagano has become more like a year-long collision course with the only checkpoint this season coming in late October at the Thrifty Car Rental Skate America International '97. It was there that Kwan appeared to have shed much of the mental baggage that had slowed her through the end of last season by edging Lipinski in her own training backyard of Detroit.

Since then, the U.S. teen phenoms have followed separate routes around the world through a variety of international competitions. For Lipinski, the recent journey has been a "puzzling" one as her technical marks have fallen below the expectations of herself and her coach Richard Callaghan — most recently resulting in a second-place finish at Trophy Lalique in France.

"I don't feel any doubts from what they (the judges) are doing," Lipinski said. "I may be a little puzzled by it, but I've gained a lot of confidence from the Tour (of World Champions) and winning (at Worlds) last year, so I feel pretty good."

For Kwan, many of the final steps toward the U.S. Championships and the 1998 Olympic Winter Games have been hampered by the cast she wore in mid-November to rehabilitate a minor stress fracture on the second toe of her left foot. The injury, sustained during training in August, was aggravated during Kwan's gold-medal performance at Skate Canada in early November. While she retook the training ice on Dec. 1, Kwan was "still feeling slight pain" in mid-December and was advised by her doctors to withdraw from the Champions Series Final.

"I am disappointed because I really did want to compete at the Champions Series Final," Kwan said. "But at the same time, I want to be able to skate my best at Nationals so I have to listen to my doctor's advice."

Kwan will not be the only skater in the field trying to rebound from injury to make the U.S. Olympic Team, as 1996 U.S. Silver medalist Tonia Kwiatkowski and 1997 World Junior Champion Sydney Vogel enter these Championships with legitimate shots at contending for the third spot.

Kwiatkowski, 26, has rebounded from ankle surgery during the off-season to post a second-place finish at Vienna Cup and a first-place finish at Piruetten in Norway in mid-November. She followed up her fine international showings with a first-place finish at the Midwestern Sectionals in early December.

"I've trained hard since my surgery and I feel that right now I am skating better than I have in years," Kwiatkowski said.

Vogel, however, has had less luck overcoming the effects of the nagging shin splints that forced her out of last year's U.S. Championships. Named as a replacement for the injured Kwan at NHK Trophy in late November, Vogel finished 13th and said she was still feeling some pain in her legs.

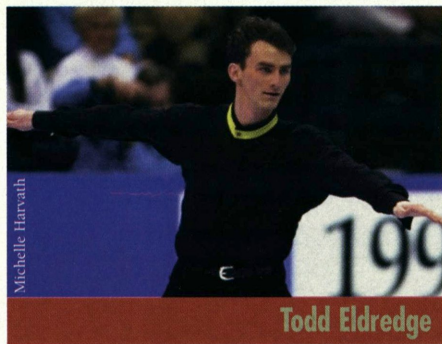

Another perennial medal contender at the U.S. Championships, Nicole Bobek figures to be among the pack of challengers for the U.S. Olympic Team. In a tumultuous year that included the untimely death of her coach Carlo Fassi in March, Bobek has proven as resilient as ever. As she proved with her third-place finish in Nashville, she can never be counted out.

Chief among the darkhorse contenders for the medal platform is 17-year-old Angela Nikodinov, who skated into the spotlight last season with a fourth-place finish in Nashville. Her fourth-place finish in her senior international debut at Skate America '97 this past October should give her a boost in confidence heading into Philly.

The roller-coaster ride that has been Todd Eldredge's eligible figure skating career hit an all-too-sudden low on a simple stroking move during a warm-up before his free skate at Thrifty Car Rental Skate America International '97.

An unexpected fall on uneven ice left the defending U.S. Champion's right shoulder out of socket and left him in obvious pain. Surely, in Eldredge's mind was the possibility of missing out on the one title he hasn't won — an Olympic gold medal.

After finishing Skate America and coming away with a win despite the obvious pain, the problems continued for Eldredge.

Todd Eldredge

Compensating for the pain in his shoulder caused his ribs to become sore and that hampered him at Trophy Lique, where he finished fourth.

In his mind, Eldredge had visions of his 1994 season, a year in which he failed to make the Olympic Team after being a 1992 Olympian.

"That was probably the worst skate that I've had in a long time and it brings back some memories of older times," Eldredge said.

Normally gregarious with the media, Eldredge avoided the journalists in France and retreated to a nearby park to collect his thoughts in this all-important year quickly spinning out of his control.

"I guess I just needed a little time to think things over a little bit," he said. "I went over to the park that's right by the rink and just kind of sat up there and thought about a lot of things. I should have come and talked to (the media), but I didn't. I just needed to get away and have a few hours by myself."

With the shoulder and ribs healing, but not 100 percent, Eldredge chose to compete at the Champions Series Final, but only time will tell if he will be completely healthy.

With Eldredge the pre-season favorite to win the U.S. Championship and secure one of two spots on the World and Olympic teams, several skaters had the second spot targeted as theirs. As the season progressed, the battle for both spots has become murky, with the Eldredge injury and performances of prominent U.S. skaters.

Making a charge at a spot on the team with a fourth-place finish at Skate America and second-place finish at NHK Trophy is Scott Davis. Familiar with this position, Davis, the 1993 U.S. Champion, was battling for one of two spots on the 1994 team.

"For me, it's similar to my situation in 1994 with Brian Boitano returning and there were only two spots available on that team. Everyone seemed to think that Todd and Brian were going to take the two spots."

Davis won the '94 U.S. Championships and landed a spot on that team.

Skating his best heading into the U.S. Championships, he has a good shot at the medal stand and World and Olympic teams.

"This year, I've been building up strong. I am much more confident heading into the U.S. Championships this year with my good international outings," Davis said. "The strong performances have helped my confidence level and my skating depends on how confident I feel."

Michael Weiss, the 1997 U.S. Silver Medalist, has his sights set on one of the two available World and Olympic Team. Knowing how important a clean skate will be this year, Weiss said he would likely not include a quad at the U.S. Championships believing a clean program is more important than landing the jump.

For Dan Hollander, the 1997 U.S. Bronze Medalist, bouncing back from a haunting skate at the 1997 World Championships — an 18th-place in his qualifying group — has been difficult. Hollander improved on a seventh-place finish at Skate Canada to finish fourth at NHK Trophy and enters the U.S. Championships on a higher note.

The best battle at the 1997 U.S. Championships might be in the men's event. With so many skaters capable of winning the event and just two spots available on the Olympic and World teams, anything is likely.

Since Jenni Meno and Todd Sand's untimely fall on a short-program concluding death spiral and subsequent loss to Kyoko Ina and Jason Dungjen at the 1997 State Farm U.S. Championships, Meno and Sand have been preparing for a return to the top.

As three-time U.S. Champions, Meno and Sand lost their title to a pair that had been nipping on their heels for each of their three U.S. championship seasons.

Jenni Meno & Todd Sand

Meno and Sand have been so focused on regaining their spot as U.S. Pairs Champions that they limited their season to just one international event — a second-place finish at NHK Trophy in Nagano, Japan — and declined to participate in Nations Cup earlier in the season in hopes of peaking heading into the U.S. Championships.

"Everyone looks ahead when it's the Olympics, but we are looking at nationals now," Meno recently told The Cleveland Plain Dealer. "We want to go there and win our national title back."

For Ina and Dungjen, defending a U.S. Championship is unfamiliar territory. Two brilliant programs at the 1997 U.S. Champions by Ina and Dungjen gave them their first U.S. title.

"We had an extremely successful season last year," Dungjen said. "In some respects, we are farther ahead than last year and in others, we are behind."

Part of their problems have centered around freak mishaps which have haunted them at both their international competitions this season.

At Thrifty Car Rental Skate America International '97, Dungjen caught his thumb in his partner's outfit and partially tore a ligament in his right thumb. After a lidocaine shot, Dungjen performed the lifts that tested his thumb's strength and the pair finished second.

"I couldn't miss any practice time," Dungjen said. "We took it a little easier at first. We'd do the lifts that hurt most a couple of times at the beginning of practice, but we didn't lose any time."

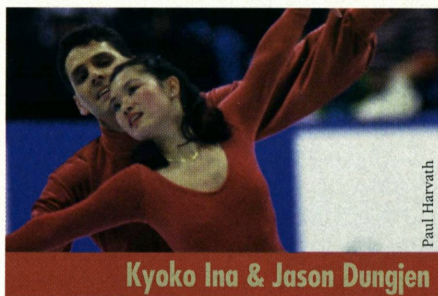

The injury healed quickly, according to Dungjen, but the two were snake-bit again later in the season at Trophy Laliue. A sixth-place finish was not to blame on Dungjen's injured thumb, but an illness.

"It had nothing to do with the thumb. The thumb was fully healed," Dungjen said. "I had eaten something I shouldn't have and just didn't feel well."

Also a concern for Ina and Dungjen was their Zorba-themed short program. Not comfortable with its development through their two international events, Ina and Dungjen decided to scrap the program. Instead, they will use their short program from a year ago.

"We feel very strongly about (last year's) short program," Dungjen said. "We start and we finish and in between we go as fast as we can. It's a powerful program that's a better fit for us."

In a rather enigmatic season, both Ina & Dungjen and Meno & Sand, are still the favorites to land the two spots on the World and Olympic teams. Talented pairs wait in the wings but may still be a year or two away from threatening to take the top spot at the U.S. Championships.

Last year's bronze medalists, Stephanie Stiegler and John Zimmerman, will not return to make a run at the medal stand. A shoulder surgery for Stiegler forced this pair to sit out the remainder of the season.

Vying for the open spot on the medal stand are several pairs capable of breaking into the top two under the right circumstances. U.S. bronze medalists in 1996, Shelby Lyons and Brian Wells have the most serious chance to crack into the top two. Two up-and-coming brother-and-sister teams will also look to break into the top three. Danielle and Steve Hartsell, 1997 World Junior Champions, and Tiffany and Johnnie Stiegler, 1997 U.S. Junior Champions, will fight for a medal spot.

Defending U.S. champions Elizabeth Punsalan and Jerod Swallow come into the 1998 State Farm U.S. Figure Skating Championships poised to etch their name alongside the all-time greats of U.S. ice dancing, while several of their Detroit Skating Club training mates come looking to complete a Motor City sweep of the medal platform for the second consecutive year.

In this the final U.S. Championships of their long and storied eligible careers, Punsalan and Swallow will be vying for a fifth U.S. title — a feat that would tie them with U.S. ice dancing greats Judy Blumberg & Michael Siebert and Judy Schwomeyer & Jim Sladky for the most U.S. dance titles ever.

Elizabeth Punsalan & Jerod Swallow

As they prepare for their run at the record books, Punsalan and Swallow are enjoying what is arguably the most successful early season of their career. With a win at Thrifty Car Rental Skate America International '97 before a hometown crowd in Detroit in October and a second-place finish two weeks later at Skate Canada, the couple became the first U.S. dance team to qualify for the ISU Champions Series Final in the three-year history of the series.

With only five of the world's top dance couples qualifying at the prestigious Champions Series Final, Dec. 19-21, in Munich, Germany, Punsalan and Swallow are in prime position to improve on last year's sixth-place finish at Worlds.

"This being our last year of competing, we feel there is an outside chance at a medal (at Olympics and/or Worlds) and we're not setting our sights any lower," Punsalan said.

Among the heir apparents to Punsalan and Swallow are fellow Detroit-based dancers Eve Chalom and Mathew Gates, who return from a silver-medal finish at the '97 U.S. Championships. While Chalom and Gates will not be eligible to qualify for the second ice dancing berth available on this year's U.S. Olympic Team due to Gates' British citizenship, the couple has set its sights on returning to the World Championships and improving on its 17th place finish of a year ago.

"It's still a big enough goal for us without having the pressure of the Olympics," said the 18-year-old Chalom.

Eagerly awaiting the opportunity to experience the pressure of the Olympic Games are '97 U.S. bronze medalists Kate Robinson and Peter Breen, yet another couple training out of Detroit SC.

While such a challenge may prove daunting for many couples, Breen brings veteran leadership to this partnership — having competed in the 1992 Olympic Winter Games with then-partner Rachel Mayer. Breen says from experience that the pressure in Philadelphia will be much greater than that in Nagano.

"It sounds funny to say, but the pressure at the U.S. Championships is far greater than at the Olympic Games," Breen said. "There's so much pressure surrounding making the Olympic Team, but once you're there you can kind of relax and concentrate on just skating your best."

Breen and Robinson enter these Championships with a great deal of confidence based on their recent performances in international competitions. They opened their international season with a ninth-place finish at Trophy Lalique and closed with an eighth-place finish two weeks later at NHK Trophy. More important than their final placement was the positive feedback they received on their performances and progress over the past year.

"We had some strong performances (at NHK and Trophy Lalique) and we skated very well," Robinson said. "We were happy with our placements, but more than that we were happy with the way we performed. We really couldn't have asked to skate any better."

Outside challenges for the second Olympic spot could come from last year's fifth-place finishers Naomi Lang & Peter Tchernyshev or recently-crowned World Junior Champions Jessica Joseph and Charles Butler — although both couples may be a year away from making a serious run at the medal platform.

Like the three medal favorites, Lang & Tchernyshev and Joseph & Butler also train at the Detroit SC and are coached by Igor Shpilband and Liz Coates.

For the first time in the eight-year history of a separate figures competition at the U.S. Championships, both men and ladies will compete for a unified figures title.

But this is a bit misleading. No men are among the 36 entrants in the three levels of figures competition.

Everett Weiss, two-time U.S. Men's Figures Champion, is not returning for a shot at a "three-peat." Instead, he will concentrate on the Junior Men's free skating competition. He won the Pacific Coast sectional in that event.

In all, only two men participated at the sectional level this year.

The reason for unification was easy to see. Judges outnumbered men's competitors at each event last year. In all, only nine men, spread out over the three levels, entered the 1997 State Farm U.S. Championships.

Thus, only one of six figures champions returns from 1997 — Novice Ladies Figures champion Kharen Kloeffler — to compete for a chance at a 1998 title.

The 1998 edition of the figures competition marks the next-to-last time the event will be held at the U.S. Championships.

U.S. strikes gold in Great White North

Americans Derrick Delmore and Jessica Joseph & Charles Butler claim world titles at '98 World Junior Championships

Text by Dave MacLean

There were early indications the 1998 World Junior Figure Skating Championships, Nov. 30-Dec. 7, were going to be a memorable event for the United States delegation.

But for all the wrong reasons.

First, the snowstorm.

Then, the injury to Tim Goebel.

And the competition had yet to begin.

Several members of the American team were stranded in Toronto the day before practice was set to begin as the host city — Saint John, New Brunswick — was snowed under by an uncharacteristic winter blizzard that shut down the city's airport.

The U.S. skaters arrived safely one day late.

Then it was the injury to pre-event favorite Goebel, the silver medalist in the men's competition a year earlier in Seoul, South Korea.

Goebel appeared to be in discomfort even before beginning his routine in the Sunday qualifying round at the ultra-modern, 6,800-seat Harbour Station, and was very slow getting to his feet after falling during a jump combination.

"When I went on, I was in pain," he said after the program. "The only way I got through was adrenaline. When I fell on the second triple Axel, I didn't know if I was going to be able to get up.

"I knew something was really wrong

Michelle Harvath

Jessica Joseph and Charles Butler jockeyed between first and second-place with Italians Federica Faiella and Luciano Milo throughout the ice dancing competition before clinching the gold with an outstanding free dance performance.

With their win at the 1998 World Junior Championships, Jessica Joseph & Charles Butler (right) became the first U.S. dance couple to ever win a gold medal at a World Championship-level event.

when I got off the ice."

Despite the injury, Goebel completed the routine and earned a sixth-place ranking from the judges among the 18 skaters in his group.

After being examined by local doctors, Goebel was getting around with the aid of crutches when he returned to the arena later in the day.

"It's a partial tear to the growth plate in my hip," he said of the injury. "Over the past two weeks it's been a bit sore, sort of like a repetitive stress injury."

He flew home to Cleveland three days later (ironically stranded an extra day because of a second major snowfall) to undergo further tests with his personal physician.

Fortunately, that was to be the extent of the bad news for the Americans as the rest of the week produced excellent results, including a historic gold-medal effort by Jessica Joseph and Charles Butler in the ice dance competition.

The victory by Joseph and Butler was the first-ever such triumph by a North American duo and broke the stranglehold held in the discipline by Russians, who had captured 19 of the previous 20 titles.

"We skated well and I was happy, but I wouldn't say that was our best ever. Maybe one of our best," Butler said of the couple's free dance.

"There was room for improvement I would certainly say in the free dance," Joseph added.

The Detroit-based skaters held a share of the lead after the compulsory dances. Joseph and Butler received top marks from the judges in the Cha Cha Congelado and runner-up marks in the Paso Doble. The opposite was true for Italians Federica Faiella and Luciano Milo, who shared top spot with the Americans.

Faiella and Milo moved into sole possession of first after the original dance and held the advantage heading into Friday night's free dance. Both teams earned four first-place marks in the original dance, but the Italian duo had the better aggregate result.

With little to differentiate the two teams, most observers felt the Italians let the gold get away by committing a costly slip late in their free dance.

"It's easier to be at the top," Butler said of the U.S. duo's underdog position entering the final portion. "It's easier to be No. 1 going into the free and try to keep hold of it. It's easier to be on the defensive than the offensive."

Butler added that he was cautiously optimistic after watching the Italian gaffe in the free dance.

"I honestly wasn't sure, but I was hoping," the 18-year-old said. "I was happy with what we did and it was up to the judges and up to the other skaters to do what they had to do. I would rather have seen them skate their best and have it decided that way."

Joseph said she realized the historic nature of the achievement during the awards ceremony following the free dance.

"For me it was during the national anthem," said the 15-year-old Joseph, who first teamed with Butler more than six years ago.

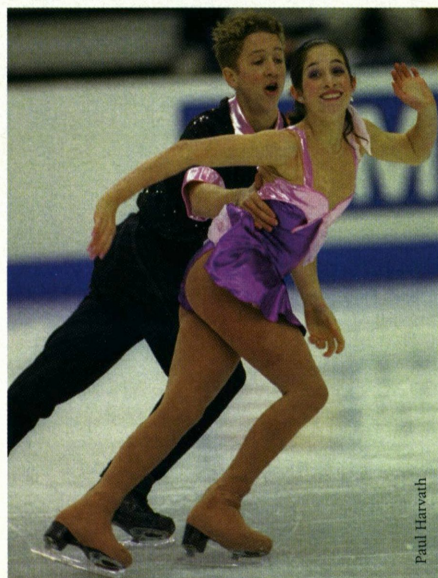

The two-time reigning U.S. junior champions have set modest goals for the upcoming U.S. Championships, the first national senior event for the new world champions.

"We're hoping for top 5," Joseph said.

"I just hope they skate as well as they can," added Liz Coates, who coaches the team along with Igor Shpilband. "Realistically they can place very well."

Faiella and Milo settled for silver medals, while Oksana Potdykova and Denis Petukhov won the bronze.

Meanwhile, Jamie Silverstein and Justin Pekarek continued their steady climb up the international ladder by finishing 10th in the ice dance competition.

The Detroit-based dance team of Jamie Silverstein, 13, and Justin Pekarek, 16, recorded an impressive Top 10 finish in their first appearance at the World Junior Championships.

The younger Coates-coached skaters (Silverstein and Pekarek are ages 13 and 16 respectively) were pleased with the top-10 effort in their first world junior event.

"The real goal was to make it here and put on a good showing," said Pekarek. "At this point in our career, the biggest deal is how we skate."

"We did very well for our first world juniors," Silverstein added. "The top-10 finish is amazing and we're just thrilled with that."

"Every year our skating gets stronger and our routines get better," said Pekarek. "We just need more time to progress."

The podium appearance by Joseph and Butler wasn't the only highlight of the week for the U.S. Team, as Derrick Delmore skated to a dominating performance in the men's event.

After getting top marks in his qualifying group, the Stanford University student grabbed the top spot in the short program and went on to sweep first-place marks from all nine judges in the free skate.

"I wasn't focused on placement," said Delmore. "I just wanted to skate as well as I could. I felt my program was competitive and I guess I knew if I skated well I could be among the top 10."

Top 10 indeed.

Delmore impressed the judges with the presentation of his free program, earning marks ranging from 5.5 to 5.8. His technical marks were from 5.4 to 5.7.

"It's something I definitely have worked on through the years," he said of his presentation. "I feel the whole package is impressive and I'm gaining experience every year."

Delmore, who captured the junior men's portion of Skate Canada 1995 held at Harbour Station, said the term 'world champion' hadn't yet hit home.

"It still hasn't sunk in. I feel like it's not me. It's just words — it has no meaning yet."

Delmore, who celebrated his 19th birthday on Dec. 12, five days after the Parade of Champions, hopes to improve on his 11th-place finish at the 1997 U.S. Championships.

"Once again, I don't have a particular placement in mind going in," he said. "I just want to go in and skate as well as I can."

Sergei Davydov of Russia took home the silver medal, while China's Yunfei Li picked up the bronze.

While she couldn't prevent a Russian medal sweep, Brittney McConn of Marietta, Ga., was more than satisfied with her fourth-place finish in the ladies' competition.

The 17-year-old was elated at having climbed two spots from sixth after the short program. She also had guarded expectations for the world event.

"I just wanted to skate as good as I could and represent my country as well as I could," McConn said. "I hadn't faced most of these girls before, but in my heart of hearts I was hoping for a top-10 finish at least."

"I'm really excited," she added. "I could have finished third if I hadn't touched down on my triple flip and fallen on my triple Lutz. But it's a great confidence booster. It's pretty incredible, I didn't expect to finish as high as I did.

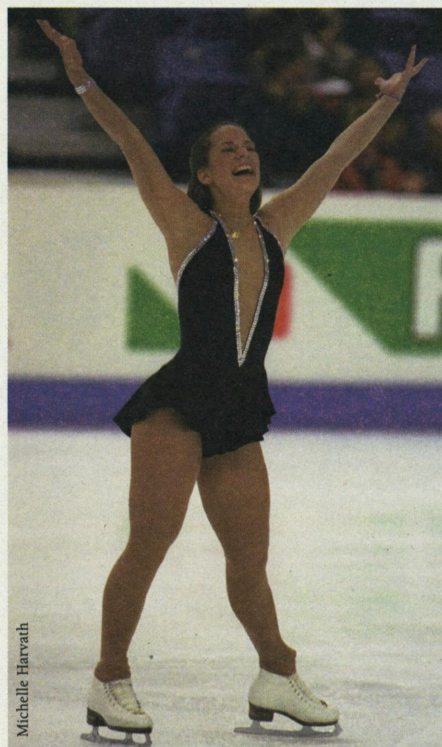

"I've had a very productive year. I placed second in the world junior try-outs and second in the Sofia Cup, and to get a fourth here really makes it an incredible year for me. I'm really pleased."

And what about the U.S. Championships?

"I'm really not sure," said McConn. "But I want to go to the nationals and place at least in the top five."

New York native Shelby Lyons, the 1996 U.S. Junior champion, was ranked 11th after the short program, but moved up to seventh after earning sixth-place marks in the free skate, while California's Angela Nikodinov just missed out on the top 10, placing 14th in the short program and 10th in the free for an 11th-place finish overall.

Julia Soldatova won the gold, placing ahead of Russian teammates Elena Ivanova and Victoria Volchkova.

Michelle Harvath

Brittney McConn of Marietta, Ga., was pleased with the way she rebounded from a sixth-place finish in the short program to finish fourth overall.

* In 1976 & 1977, competition was known as ISU Junior Figure Skating Championships.

Team USA also enjoyed good results in the pairs competition as the California pair of Natalie Vlandis and Jered Guzman finished fourth, while the brother-sister tandem of Tiffany and Johnny Stiegler from Manhattan Beach, Calif., placed eighth and Massachusetts skaters Jaisa Macadam and Garrett Lucash were 11th.

Vlandis and Guzman were third after the short program, but were judged fourth-best in the free program and ranked fourth overall.

The Stiegler siblings managed to hold on to their ranking after slipping a bit in the free skate.

"It was our first World Juniors and normally you have to pay your dues," said 15-year-old Johnnie. "It's our first year doing internationals, so we just wanted to come and skate well for ourselves.

"We were really happy about our short program; it was the best we could've done. We could have skated better in our long program.

"Every year we try to improve on everything," Johnnie added. "We're not perfect yet in any aspect of our skating. We need to improve mentally and physically.

"We're trying to keep up with the older teams and we're doing a pretty good job, but it's hard."

Yulia Obertas and Dmitry Palamarchuk of Ukraine, ranked fourth after the short program, turned in a spectacular effort in the free skate to claim the gold medal, while Russian skaters Svetlana Nikolaeva and Alexei Sokolov earned the silver. Victoria Maksuta and Vladislav Zhovnirsky of Russia won the bronze after placing sixth in the short program and second in the free program.

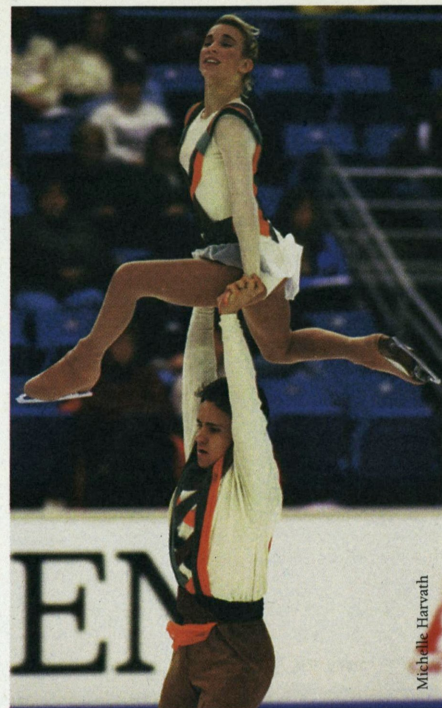

NOTES: China's Chengjian Li entered figure skating record books as the first skater to land a quad-triple combination in World Junior Figure Skating Championships history. The 18-year-old Li landed a quadruple toe loop-triple toe loop combo in the men's free program on Thursday, December 4 . . . The fierce winter weather wreaked havoc on travel and practice sched-

Shelby Lyons of Oswego, N.Y., training in Colorado Springs, Colo., won the World Junior Selection Competition to qualify for the World Junior Championships, but a disappointing 11th-place short program finish kept her in seventh overall.

ules, but did not affect the competition timetable. . . . More than 120 athletes from 40 nations participated in the 10-day event. . . . Weather also took its toll on attendance in Saint John, with crowds averaging about 1,500 to 2,500 through the week and climbing to an estimated 3,500 for the Parade of Champions finale. . . . The medals presented during awards ceremonies early in the week were fakes. The real medals fell victim to a postal strike in Canada and arrived only late in the week. . . . International Skating Union officials used the World Juniors to experiment with video replay. A report from the Saint John competition will be presented to the ISU for further review. The international governing body is expected to make an announcement regarding future use of instant replay in February.

Dave MacLean is a sports reporter / columnist for the New Brunswick Telegraph Journal in Saint John, New Brunswick.

After two consecutive sixth-place finishes at the World Junior Championships, Natalie Vlandis and Jered Guzman of Lake Arrowhead, Calif., had high hopes of medaling, but instead finished just short of the podium in fourth place.

Career Moves

Peter G. Martell

Peter G. Martell, chair of the USFSA Rink Operations Committee, has been appointed Executive Director for the Ice Skating Institute (ISI), effective Dec. 1, 1997, the ISI announced recently.

Martell brings more than 25 years experience in ice rink management and related services to ISI. Most recently he headed his own management and consulting firm — the Pasadena, Calif.-based Sports Management Services — and served as Director of Ice Rink Development for Recreational Management Services Corp. of Warwick, N.Y.

Prior to forming his own firm, he spent 17 years with the Ice Capades/Ice Chalet organizations — serving in various capacities from rink manager to President prior to the sale of the company in 1994.

Martell has served on the ISI Board of Directors for 17 years, including nine years as vice president. In addition to serving as chair of the USFSA Rink Operations Committee, he has served on USA Hockey's Facilities Committee.

"I am excited about being able to devote my full time and attention to the business of the Institute and the ice skating industry," Martell said of his appointment. "The ISI recognizes its role as the leader in ice rink management and recreational ice skating activities for over three decades and I'm looking forward to further improving and expanding the Institute's wide range of services into the 21st Century."

Honors

Margaret Anne Weir

USFSA Judges Committee Chair Margaret Anne Weir of Park City, Utah, was honored recently as one of three Distinguished Alumni for 1997 at The University of Tulsa.

Weir was the first female athlete ever to receive an athletic letter from The University of Tulsa for her participation in three World Figure Skating Championships (1951, 1953 and 1954). A ladies' singles competitor in her first two World Championships, Weir skated in both the ladies' singles and the pairs competition with partner/brother Hugh C. Graham at the 1954 Worlds — placing 11th in ladies' singles and fifth in pairs. Weir was the 1953 U.S. bronze medalist in ladies' singles and the '53 and '54 U.S. silver medalist in pairs with brother Hugh.

Weir was honored by her alma mater during a half-time ceremony at the university's homecoming football game and again at a banquet later that night.

Now a World Judge and member of the USFSA Board of Directors, Weir was instrumental in establishing the Moves in the Field testing system and continues to improve judging through her leadership of the USFSA Judges Committee.

Weir has been executive director for Robert Morris and Associates Real Estate Co. in Park City, Utah, for the past 11 years.

Marriages

Carrie Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Richardson, was married to Norman Smilowitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard D. Smilowitz, on May 25, 1997, at the Irving J. Whalley Memorial Chapel on the campus of the University of Pittsburgh. The couple resides and coaches near Pittsburgh, Pa.

Fay Kelley and Jim Sladky, a five-time U.S. ice dancing champion and six-time U.S. World Team member, were married in a private ceremony on Oct. 7, 1997, in New York's Adirondack State Park. The couple resides in Troy, N.Y.

Deaths

Richard A. Luttenton

Richard A. Luttenton of Shaker Heights, Ohio, a USFSA national accountant and longtime member of the Cleveland SC, died Nov. 29 in a Cleveland area nursing home. He was 75.

Born and raised in Cleveland, Luttenton had been a member of the Cleveland SC and the USFSA for more than 30 years. During that time, he served as the director of the Cleveland SC's Ice Show in addition to serving as the show's announcer. His wife, Virginia "Dickie," whom he married in 1945, shared his love for the sport by serving as a longtime judge.

Outside of his contributions to the sport of figure skating, Luttenton was an expert refrigeration engineer for the Cleveland-based Stouffer Corp. He was on a team that established Stouffer's Frozen Foods Division in the 1950s and was construction supervisor during the construction of a major Stouffer plant built during the 1960s.

Luttenton graduated from Shaker Heights High School in 1940 and attended Adelbert College of Western Reserve University before being inducted into the Army Air Forces during World War II. Following the war, Luttenton returned to college and earned his bachelor's degree.

In addition to skating, his outside interests included power boats and fishing. He was a former member of the Fairport Harbor Yacht Club.

Luttenton is survived by his wife; a daughter, Virginia L. Phillips of Mount Pleasant, Mich.; and a granddaughter.

The family has requested memorials to the USFSA Memorial Fund, 20 First Street, Colorado Springs, Colo. 80906-3697.

Charles Binkowski Sr.

Charles Binkowski Sr., father of former national junior dance competitor Kathy Binkowski, died on Oct. 11. He was 75.

Binkowski is survived by his wife, Eileen Binkowski, nine children and 13 grandchildren. His youngest daughter, Kathy Binkowski-Collings currently teaches in Simsbury, Conn.

Celia Cella Masionis

Celia Masionis, mother of well-known New England coach and skating director Michael Masionis, died Oct. 14 at a Framingham, Mass., hospital. She was 85.

Born in Framingham, she was a lifetime member of the St. Tarcisius Church, the Catholic Women's Club and a founding participant member in the Framingham Heart Study. After retiring as a waitress, she was active with the Callahan Senior Center, which she later attended during her long-time bout with Alzheimer's disease.

Masionis was preceded in death by her husband, Joseph.

With their son Michael, an active national competitor from 1967-74, the Masionises were members of several area skating clubs including Bay Path FSC, Commonwealth FSC and the SC of Worcester, where they served on hospitality and show committees. Celia was a friend to many skating families in the Boston area and elsewhere.

Masionis is survived by three sons; one daughter; seven grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

The family requests memorials to The Adult Day Center, 89 Bethany Road, Framingham, Mass. 01702.

Marilyn Holmes

Marilyn Holmes, mother of U.S. and World medalist Julie Holmes-Newman, died Oct. 19 in a Phoenix-area hospital following a brief illness. She was 65.

Marilyn lived most of her life in Southern California where she provided for her only child — Julie Lynn — by working in the garment industry.

Her warm and loving support of her daughter enabled Julie Lynn to enjoy much success in the sport of skating during the late '60s and early '70s — earning four consecutive U.S. silver medals from 1969 to 1972; a World bronze in 1970 and a World silver in 1971.

Julie Lynn Holmes went on to represent the United States at the 1972 Olympic Winter Games in Sapporo, Japan, where she finished fourth.

"My mother was a great supporter of everything I did," Julie Lynn-Holmes said. "She always showed a lot of love, offered lots of encouragement and never put any additional pressures on me."

Holmes is survived by her daughter; one brother and four grandchildren.

Trophy Lalique

Upsets of World Champion skaters common at the fourth Champions Series event of the season

Text by Jean Christophe Berlot

Photos by Daniel Castets

The fourth event of the Champions Series — Trophy Lalique, Nov. 13-16 at Paris' Bercy Arena — saw four reigning or former World Champions entered in the field of 61 skaters, but World titles seemed to carry little weight with the judges or the hungry challengers alike in this event that was characterized by a number of upsets.

Ladies

Returning to Lalique for the second consecutive year, 1997 World Champion Tara Lipinski was prepared to improve on her third-place finish from a year ago and bring home the much-coveted crystal trophy.

Lipinski opened up to an early lead with a first-place finish in the short program, but doubled a planned triple Lutz in the free skate and was forced to settle for the silver.

"I did not get very good marks in the short program and this may have discouraged me," Lipinski said.

Laetitia Hubert from France is not only known for her pure edges, but also for missing either her short or her long. Two solid performances this time earned her a win.

"The theme of my free program this year is the rendering of the fragrance coming out of a bottle of perfume," she said. "This program allows for expression, sensuality and femininity."

Hubert's compatriot Vanessa Gusmeroli managed the bronze medal after skating to her new routine to the "Four Elements."

A world champion in 1995, Chen Lu of China finished fourth.

Pairs

Elena Berezhnaya and Anton Sikharulidze from Russia provided the first surprise of the event as they defeated Mandy Wötzel and Ingo Steuer, the reigning world champions from Germany, both in the short and the long programs.

"We have been working very hard all year," Sikharulidze said. "Also, I try to skate differently. I think more about what I am skating than before."

Even with the second-place finish, Wötzel and Steuer were positive about their showing at the event.

"I'm happy about the way we skated," Wötzel said after the competition. "The level was very high today. We are not in a good form as Ingo had operations on both knees last summer."

Wins by Elena Berezhnaya and Anton Sikharulidze (above) over 1997 World Champions Mandy Wötzel and Ingo Steuer in both the short program and free skate provided the first upset of the 1997 Trophy Lalique.

By defeating 1997 World Champion Tara Lipinski, France's Laetitia Hubert stunned and pleased the Paris crowd that saw other world champions fall in surprising upsets.

"I had cartilage removed from my knees and now my ligaments hurt." Steuer joked. "Fortunately there are only four months to go before we stop competing, so I hope my knees hold out until then."

Oksana Grishuk and Evgeni Platov were the only world champions to win at Trophy Lalique, narrowly edging out the creative performances of Marina Anissina and Gwendal Peizerat (left) of France.

Dance

The ice dancing contest was close to bringing yet another major upset, as Marina Anissina and Gwendal Peizerat, from France, came quite close to reigning world champions Oksana Grishuk and Evgeni Platov in the free dance.

Skating "for all the people who try hard and cannot reach their ideal," according to Grishuk, the Russian couple's marks strayed little from 5.7, far below their usual standards.

The low marks reflected a fall by Platov after a series of very intricate steps.

"We would say in Russian that the program was still 'pretty wet' as we were presenting it here for the first time ever," Platov said.

Anissina and Peizerat skated beautifully to their newly-created, reverse portrayal of "Romeo and Juliet" in which they rise from death at the start of the program. Filled with beautiful edges, original steps and creative lifts — Anissina carries Peizerat twice in the program — two judges placed them first at the end of the free dance.

Men

Todd Eldredge may have experienced his worst competition in many years in Paris. Of course, the injury he sustained at Thrifty Car Rental Skate

America International '97 was still bothering him, as proven by the two ice bags he was carrying on his side after each training session.

Yet his clear-cut victory in the short program clearly demonstrated that he had come to Paris to win.

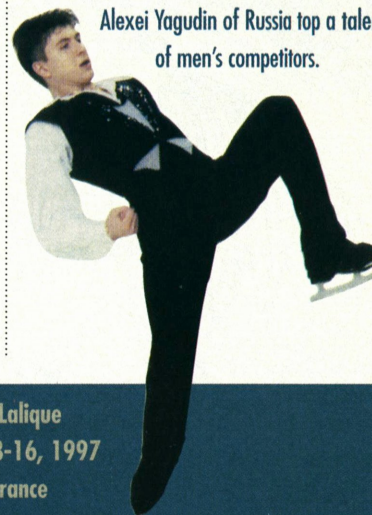

His free program, however, became a disaster, as his triple Axel eluded him three times during his program.

After two minutes without one triple jump, Eldredge managed to refocus and land two superb triple-triple combinations. He nonetheless dropped to fourth place overall.

Emerging in first place was Alexei Yagudin of Russia who proved that his third-place finish at Worlds last year was no fluke. Yagudin was the only skater of the field to successfully land a quadruple toe loop.

The French audience was thrilled to see Philippe Candeloro finally back to his best. Skating for the last time to his "Napoleon" theme, he skated a solid free program including a beautiful triple Axel/triple toe combination, and took the silver medal.

A successful quadruple toe loop in the free skate and a consistent performance helped Alexei Yagudin of Russia top a talented field of men's competitors.

NHK Trophy

New Olympic arena debuts at final Champions Series event with high praise and enthusiastic crowds

Text By Klaus Reinhold Kany

The sixth and final Champions Series event of the year — NHK Trophy, Dec. Nov. 27-30, in Nagano, Japan — gave the figure skating world its first look at the brand-new facility that will serve as the figure skating venue at the 1998 Olympic Winter Games.

The White Ring Arena, so named because of its unique outer appearance, received high marks from competitors and spectators alike during the facility's test run at NHK Trophy.

Once inside the $130 million White Ring Arena, spectators and competitors are treated to a warm atmosphere. The lighting and sound inside the facility are excellent and, if the sold-out crowds for each session at NHK are any indication, the energy generated by the audience will make for a memorable Olympics.

Ladies

The dream comeback of German skater Tanja Szewczenko, off the ice for 19 months due to injuries and illnesses, continued with a second win in the Champions Series.

Szewczenko skated a clean short program with an outstanding triple Lutz combination, but her relatively slow spins left her in third place entering the free skate. Russia's Maria Butyrskaya took the lead, ahead of former World Champion Chen Lu of China.

Butyrskaya, in the free, doubled her flip and her landing on her toe loop lacked good flow. She would settle for second place.

Chen fell on her triple Lutz and also doubled her flip. Her three other triples featured shaky landings and her technical marks suffered as a result. She finished third.

With the door to the title left open, Szewczenko skated through with two solid Lutzes and four other triples.

"It is unbelievable to me that I have won twice," Szewczenko said. "I wanted to qualify for the Champions Series Final (Dec. 19-21 in Munich, Germany) in my home country, but I didn't expect to win (at NHK). I like this Olympic rink and Japanese culture and would absolutely love to skate here again at the Olympics."

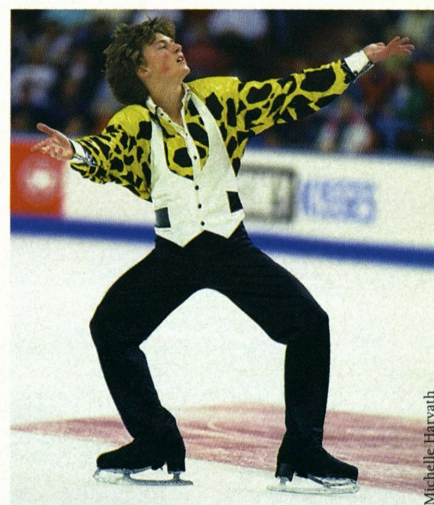

Men

Ilya Kulik entered the men's competition as the clear favorite and while the Russian did manage to skate to the gold medal, he was not flawless in either performance.

In the short program, Kulik singled the Axel on his combination, but mis-cues by the strongest challengers helped Kulik retain his lead heading into the free skate.

In the free skate, Kulik made the same mistake on his Axel, but he did manage to follow up with eight solid triples — among them a triple Axel/triple toe loop combination — to secure the NHK gold.

"I feel good. It was a step forward from my last competition at Skate Canada," Kulik said.

Ilya Kulik improved on a second-place finish at Skate Canada (above) to win NHK Trophy and earn a spot in the Champions Series Final.

The United States' Scott Davis of Great Falls, Mont., training in Simsbury, Conn., turned in an impressive showing with a second-place finish. Davis rebounded from a fall on his triple Axel in the short program to deliver a solid free skating performance that featured eight triples (six of them clean), many good steps and spins and a convincing presentation.

"It was probably my best free program in the last couple of years," Davis said.

China's Zhengxin Guo landed the only clean quadruple of the competition — a toe loop — and all six possible triples once to capture the bronze medal.

The United States' Dan Hollander of Huntington Woods, Mich, now training in Detroit, held a second place standing heading into the free skate, Hollander opened strongly with a triple Axel and a triple Lutz, but missed two subsequent triples. The fifth place finish in the free skate forced Hollander to settle for fourth overall.

Pairs

The pairs' competition figured to be a battle between Russians Oksana Kazakova and Artur Dmitriev and defending NHK champions Jenni Meno and Todd Sand of the United States, but injuries and miscues on the part of these favored pairs left the gold medal up for grabs.

Meno and Sand, making their first appearance in an international event this season, opened up to an early lead in the short program despite an unexpected fall by Meno. The fall, however, did not impact the pair's execution of their eight required elements, which were all performed well.

Kazakova and Dmitriev found themselves in second after the short program. The Russians' medal hopes were dashed, however, during the final practice session before the free skate when Kazakova crashed into the boards following a practice throw jump. She sustained a serious hip injury and the pair was forced to withdraw.

The door was seemingly open for Meno and Sand in the free skate, but the Americans were unable to cleanly step through. Sand doubled his toe loop and singled his Axel, while Meno touched down her hand on the landing of a throw Salchow in the free skate leaving the door open.

Seizing the opportunity were China's Xue Shen and Hongbo Zhao, 11th-place finishers at the '97 Worlds and bronze medalists at this year's Trophy Lalique. Their free skate featured three throw triples, as well as side-by-side triple toe loops and double Axels. With their brilliant lifts and well-executed jumps, their slight lack of unison did not impact their marks greatly and they were justly rewarded with the title.

"We never dreamed of winning such a big title because we didn't believe we could skate so well at such an important competition," Shen said.

Competing for the first time since the end of last season (shown at the 1997 U.S. Championships) Jenni Meno and Todd Sand debuted this season's programs at the year's final Champions Series Event.

Dance

Russians Oksana Grishuk and Evgeny Platov have undergone radical change in the past few months, but the four-time World Champions proved at NHK that the changes have not impacted their ability to dominate an international dance field.

At NHK, the couple showed that their recent changes have gone further than Grishuk's highly-publicized campaign to legally change her name to the one-word moniker, "Pasha," as Grishuk and Platov unveiled a retooled free dance from the one that won them the Trophy Lalique title just two weeks before.

Apparently on the advice of ISU Dance Committee Chair Wolfgang Kunz of Germany following Lalique, Grishuk and Platov eliminated some show elements from their routine, skated less often on two feet and changed Grishuk's costume. While the changes did not affect their standing at NHK, only time will tell whether these and future changes can hold off the formidable challenges being posed by many other couples.

Among those serious challengers are Shae-Lynn Bourne and Victor Kraatz of Canada, who finished second at NHK with their performance to the crowd-pleasing "Riverdance," featuring difficult footwork executed with a great deal of speed.

Italians Barbara Fusar-Poli and Maurizio Margaglio, silver medalists at Thrifty Car Rental Skate America International '97, finished in third place.

"IT MAKES SUCH PLANE GOOD SENSE"

Overcoming Centuries of Tradition

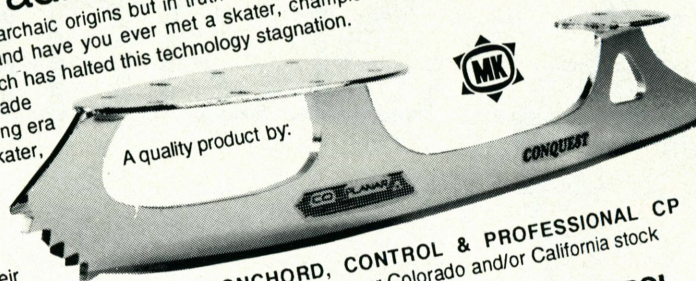

A lot has been claimed regarding current state-of-the-art equipment and its archaic origins but in truth it remains archaic. True, fantastic performances have been achieved but then there wasn't anything better for a skater to use - and have you ever met a skater, champion or otherwise, who hasn't had severe, possibly continuous problems with boots, skateblades and feet? Our research has halted this technology stagnation. Our research revealed a sorry lack of coordination between boot and skateblade manufacturers and the retention of walking boot features from the pond skating era - the toespring and heel spring - beneficial for the walker but not the skater, plus costly design gimmicks to the blade that are plainly detrimental. Our no-gimmick CO-PLANAR design is overcoming Centuries of Stagnation. Toes and metatarsals are naturally postured and an Engineering Datum Plane facilitates precision mounting. The most progressive suppliers of CO-PLANAR boots are: SP Teri for their Stock Models and Customs and Klingbeil Shoe Labs for their unique approach to customizing.

A way to earn dollars that makes sense

Corporate sponsorships offer precision skating teams the opportunity to raise more funds, but the approach of potential sponsors must be done in a professional manner

by Ann S. Gooding

"Skating is so expensive," most parents plead.

Try precision skating — that's expense times 24 or more depending on the number of skaters per team.

Expenses like travel, practice outfits, costumes, and ice and coaches' fee mount up quickly for any team hoping to become competitive. And each year, it seems to get worse, because of these rising costs.

So, how do clubs keep up?

Most teams resort to "canning" — what seems, to some as the only-slightly-more-gracious equivalent of begging — selling candles and candy bars, holding raffles and car washes and the like.

But as the sport becomes more sophisticated and costly, there becomes a pressing need to reassess not only how we spend money but how we raise it. What are our options, you ask?

If precision skating is to succeed like a business, then those in charge must approach the issue of fundraising like a business. Corporate development has to become a critical facet of the annual planning process.

Clubs need to first, assign a committee — within their board and their precision

During the month of January, all USFSA clubs will receive a corporate marketing kit for their precision programs from the USFSA Precision Committee. Even if your club does not currently have a precision team, the USFSA Precision Committee requests that you save the materials for possible use in the future.

teams, which will take on these duties.

A fund-raising committee, working in concert with the corporate development committee, can bring in the resources needed to meet mounting expenses.

Ideally, the committee would consist of individuals from the business and political communities who know where the opportunities exist. Better still, the committee would include experienced public relations and fund-development people on hand to help. If not available to you on your board or within your immediate precision groups, think about going "out" into the community to see if a company may be willing to take on your cause as a type of community service project.

Next, identify the size of your total operating budget. Then, list the corporations and government agencies you can approach.

This is where professionalism is key. Make no contacts until you are fully prepared to do so.

While you are compiling a list of businesses/agencies to "pitch," have your public relations committee put together a professional kit to present at your meetings. The kit can be your standard press kit: fact sheets on who you are; a sample of noteworthy press releases on your team(s)/club; and a budget of anticipated expenses.

Once your kit is compiled and you've identified those people you'll be calling, think about what you're prepared to give them in return: tickets/special seating to club-sponsored events; invitations to dinners; signage at rinks; inclusion in marketing materials for the club, etc. The "rewards" should be tangible as well as philosophical.

The key is to design a package that will make it worth the sponsors' while — they'll need a reason to sell it to their superiors.

Understand, too, that there are specific limitations to what you can offer — don't offer something that might jeopardize your skaters' eligible status. It's best to run all proposals through USFSA Headquarters before entering into any agreements that may jeopardize your skaters' eligibility.

Once your proposal is approved, you can begin your approach.

A small group of people prepared and professional in demeanor can begin the task of setting up appointments with likely prospects, to pitch their cause.

Always, be polite, brief and available for further questions. Listen to their concerns and look for a middle ground. Don't be married to any dollar amount before you go into a meeting — it may be beyond their immediate reach.

Most importantly remember that while this may be an urgent issue to you, they've likely been approached by many other worthwhile causes.

After you've met, always follow up with a thank-you note regardless of the outcome — they may come to you another year or be in touch with other "movers and shakers" who can help your cause.

There are no guarantees that corporate development will eliminate all personal costs to you and your club, but a conscientious and thorough approach may make precision a sport accessible to those of even the most humble means.

Haydenettes precision skating team shares rare opportunity to learn from Japanese counterpart

Text by Ann S. Gooding

Late this summer, a 26-year-old woman from half-way around the world taught one U.S. precision team just how global precision skating can be.

On a once-in-a-lifetime trip, Yoko Kameoka of Japan, a 1993 graduate of the Tokyo Woman's College of Physical Education tasted American life and sport first-hand and gave counterparts here a close up view of what Asian culture and custom is truly like.

Kameoka, a physical education teacher and former precision skater, recently won an all-expenses paid trip anywhere in the world to study anything she chose.

Her heart led her to precision skating. Her head led her to the world-famous Haydenettes of Lexington, Mass.

Having seen them in past international competitions and having their teams and coaches develop a kindred bond, it was only natural a former member of the Tokyo Women's College of Physical Education precision team — now a coach herself — would someday wind up on the shores of New England — if only for a brief stay.

Lynn Benson, coach of the Haydenettes, said this international experience was an exciting, eye-opener all the way around.

"I jumped at it," Benson said of being given the opportunity to have a visiting skater on the team.

With 24 years of precision coaching experience herself, Benson knew this was just the diversion the skaters could use during the long summer months of rigorous and routine training.

She said the idea of someone skating with them from another land — one who was well-versed in precision skating — could be fun for the skaters and a real-life lesson in international relations.

Benson said the idea was first broached to her at the 1997 International Precision Competition.

During past years, she and the coaches and team members of the Tokyo team had become friendly. Members of each team would seek out one another at competitions, no matter how far from home they were.

When the Tokyo Women's College coach mentioned the possibility, back in January, of one of her former skaters coming abroad to study with the Haydenettes, Benson didn't hesitate.

"We had seven or eight months of planning, and at first I thought it was great," she said. "I love unique things, and it's good for precision. Anything that can get the skaters (to see) beyond the competition itself is good."

However, as the time drew near, the reality of what was ahead became a little more frightening.

"We had to find her a host family," Benson said. "And then there was insurance, things we never thought of. I began to worry, 'Oh my gosh, this won't work.'"

But it did, and it worked well.

Jessica Kaplan of Lexington, Mass., a member of the Haydenettes, and her family offered to put Kameoka up for her brief month-long stay.

"Once she was here, everything just fell into place," Benson said.

The kids were relaxed with her and Kameoka immediately became comfortable with the skaters.

Any problems that potentially existed seemed to not be a concern, especially the language barrier. It helped that two of the Haydenettes were fluent in Japanese.

"That was absolutely wonderful, even though the family she stayed with spoke no Japanese," Benson said.

Kameoka and several of the Haydenettes were also able to communicate in French.

It was the drawing on each individual's talent, such as fluency in languages, that added to the fullness of the experience. Had she not come, the members of the Haydenettes would probably never know of one another's talents.

"The wealth of knowledge and the expertise in each team, much of it is untapped," Benson said. "It's amazing what a small group can come up with."

One thing that did not need translation was the precision teamwork.

Kameoka, though visiting to learn about coaching, actually skated as a member of each of the teams, including the Ice Cubes, Ice Mates and the adult level Esprit de Corps.

She spent almost everyday on the ice, usually for about four hours a day.

She came to learn, Benson said, and through her time on the ice, she did just that. Kameoka had a spot on the intermediate line, parts in the Haydenettes — doing their warm up — and even skated with the adult and juvenile lines.

"She got her dream come true," Benson said.

Any classroom teacher will say learning is a two-way street, Kameoka did some teaching of her own.

The legendary fan dance, which is as much a part of the culture of Japan as its dynasties, was taught to many of the skaters both on- and off-ice.

Fans, wedge-shaped objects usually made of silk or paper, have been used in Japanese drama and dance for centuries.

"It is very pretty and very lovely," Benson said.

Kameoka said it was part of her team's traditional dance. She learned the dance in college herself and wanted to give back to the skaters something she learned and held important.

So, for the nearly four weeks Kameoka was in the United States, she spent hours teaching the American skaters the proper way to hold the fans and use them in the Japanese style.

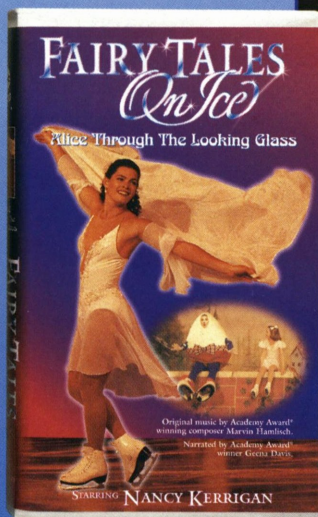

The team made a video of the fan dancing and can review it. As a memento, each skater was presented with a one-of-a-kind, hand-made, hand-painted fan from Kameoka.
